TRAFFIC SNARL
A NIGHTMARE

Allerton intersection a bottleneck

BY ROBERT WIRSING

Dangerous traffic congestion at the Allerton Avenue entrance to the Bronx River Parkway at Bronx Park East is causing headaches and raising concerns.

According to Raphael Schweizer, Bronx Park East Community Association chairman, the NYPD stations traffic control agents at this congested intersection mostly during evening rush hours, but only once or twice a week during the morning rush.

He believes more needs to be done.

“From 7:15 to 9 a.m., the area is impassable and drivers are basically just sitting there,” he said. “Congestion has been a problem at this location for years and it’s getting really dangerous.”

Schweizer explained the congestion stretches all the way back from the New York Botanical Garden’s entrance near the Mosholu Parkway and has resulted in a number of motor vehicle accidents.

According to the NYPD’s Motor Vehicle Collision Data Reports from this past January through April, there were a total of nine traffic accidents at the intersection with no injuries reported.

Last month saw a total of three collisions reported at this same intersection, one of which involved two people travelling in sports utility vehicles, which resulted in one reported injury, according to the NYPD’s Motor Vehicle

W. Farms shooting sparks change

BY ROBERT WIRSING

This past Sunday’s fatal shooting of a 20-year old man in West Farms has many in the community demanding change.

According to a NYPD spokesman, police responded to a 911 call on Sunday, July 19 at 12:45 a.m. of a man shot at 2081 Vyse Avenue, within the confines of the 48th Precinct.

Upon arrival, emergency responders observed Ray Rosello, 20, with gunshot wounds to his torso and rushed him to St. Barnabas Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Police said they are looking for Alfonso Skeeter, 27, described as an African American male approximately six feet tall, in connection with this homicide.

Skeeter, a 2311 Southern Boulevard resident, faces murder, manslaughter and criminal possession of a weapon charges, according to police.

On Sunday, July 19, Assemblyman Luis Sepulveda met with Yvonne Rodriguez, Rosello’s mother.

Rodriguez has been an active member of the West Farms

Innovative Ideas Box pops up in the ‘Heights’

BY JAIME WILLIAMS

The Bronx is now home to an innovative educational opportunity.

For the remainder of the summer, Hayden Lord Park is playing host to the Ideas Box, a pop-up media center and library from Library Without Borders.

Brought to the Bronx through a partnership between local arts and education non-profit DreamYard, Library Without Borders and the New York Public Library, the media center will facilitate summer programming in the park five days a week.

The modular device consists of six pieces that fit squarely onto two standard European shipping pallets.

The four main boxes include a component for laptops, a library, a cinema screen and an IT component, while the other two boxes become tables and chairs.

The Ideas Box contains 15 tablets and four laptops with a satellite Internet connection, 50 e-readers with 5000 e-books, 250 hard copy books, a cinema screen and projector with 100 films, and board and video games.

The mobile media center was developed by French designer Philippe Starck for Libraries Without Borders to provide vulnerable populations, especially those in refugee camps, with access to culture and information, said Patrick Weil, president of Libraries Without Borders.

To date, the Ideas Box has been used in Burundi and Jordan as well as by aboriginal communities in remote areas of Australia.

“These mobile centers have really been tools of and instruments of hope and connectivity for people in these camps,” said Alexander Soros, whose foundation was an early supporter of the project.

He was delighted that DreamYard and the NYPL saw the box as an opportunity to address needs closer to home.

“I think its really a testament to both the versatility of the Ideas Box as well as of these organizations in being able to recognize this,” said Soros.

At the unveiling of the Ideas Box in Morris Heights, the first use of it in the U.S., supporters gathered to celebrate the arrival of the project in NYC.

“I’m truly inspired by the innovative genius of this project that will increase library access for New Yorkers who need it most,” said Public Advocate Letitia James. “This project shows our ability to solve real world problems in our city through design and innovation.”

The core problem the media center and related programming seeks to address is the disparity in educational programming young people in low-income neighborhoods receive in comparison to their peers, who have access to camps and after school lessons in a variety of academic and creative subjects.

The media center will allow for multidisciplinary programming run by interns Tuesday-Saturday in the park.

“We can make a difference by investing in opportunities like this, where young people throughout the summer can be reading and learning,” said Tim Lord, president of DreamYard.

The interns, many of whom come from the neighborhood, seemed as excited about the box as the kids who will benefit from it.

Karen DelaCruz, who grew up near by, said she didn’t have any opportunities that compared to the Ideas Box when she was a kid, and she hopes her younger neighbors take full advantage of it.

“I hope the Ideas Box teaches you that learning doesn’t stop when school does,” said DelaCruz.

Jessica Blandon said she struggled to get excited about learning until DreamYard programming at her school introduced her to spoken word poetry, which she preformed at the unveiling.

Finding a creative outlet changed her life, she said, and she thinks the opportunities afforded by the media center could do the same for younger kids in the neighborhood.

“I think that this can change the face of learning,” said Blandon.

Interns help local students explore the technology component of the Ideas Box, a pop-up media center and library, at Hayden Lord Park on Wednesday, July 15.

A new housing development was celebrated this week. On Tuesday, July 21, Schur Management Company, Ltd. held a groundbreaking ceremony for 2030 Creston Avenue, an upcoming mixed-use development that will include residential, retail and commercial space.

The property, formerly a Central Parking System parking lot located between East Burnside and Bush avenues, will soon be the location of a development that tops out at eight stories at the building’s eastern and southern side and 11 stories on its northern and western walls.

The building’s 114 apartments will include studio, one-, two- and potentially three-bedroom units.

The building’s rental units will be set at affordable market rates, and will contain 11,500 square feet of commercial space.

The site will have an underground parking area for approximately 40 cars, as well as a recreation area, common room and a study room for kids and students.

“This building is a step in the right direction towards availability and improvements of housing for residents in the Bronx and it will be good for the neighborhood,” said Billy Schur, president of Schur Management Company, who said his vision of developing the Bronx began with his grandfather, who had a long-tenured history of working in the borough as a developer.

“This will prove to be a great project and I would like to thank my family, Borough President Ruben Diaz, Jr., our co-sponsors, which includes NYC Department of Housing Preservation and Development, NYC Housing Development Corporation, Capital One Bank and Hudson Capital, as well as everybody else for their involvement and support,” he said.

Schur Management Company’s new project has also gained a positive reception and response from local political leaders such as Diaz, Senator Gustavo Rivera and Assemblyman Victor Pichardo, who were all in attendance.

Diaz, who spoke at the press conference, allocated $500,000 to the project.

“I am so happy for Billy and his family and I want to congratulate them on this wonderful future development,” said Diaz. “This site, located within walking distance of the Grand Concourse, will be a tremendous asset to the community and will attract residents as well as retail and commercial businesses. It will also lead to receiving proper funding for more improvements in the neighborhood.”

“The Bronx is coming back - there’s no better way to say it,” said Councilman Fernando Cabrera. “With these types of developments, the Bronx is showing that it can not only build, but that it can also teach and demonstrate for other neighborhoods and communities how to do the same thing.”

The mayor and police commissioner of NYC recently hosted a press conference to provide an update on an initiative that promotes safety and lessening crime.

On Wednesday, July 15, Mayor de Blasio and police commissioner William Bratton spoke at Cardinal Spellman High School about the progress of the Summer All Out initiative, an initiative targeting anti-violence with focus on high-crime areas and neighborhoods across NYC.

Since the implementation of the initiative last summer, the NYPD has temporarily reassigned 330 administrative officers to boost patrols in ten high-crime precinct areas and four high-crime police service areas.

At the same time, the NYPD has also partnered with community members, social service providers and police organizations to specifically target gangs and street crews that pose threats to their neighborhoods.

As a result of these actions, Summer All Out is already on track to exceed prior expectations.

Between Monday, June 8 and Monday, July 13, shooting incidents have decreased by almost 30 percent in the targeted precinct areas compared to the same five-week period last year (39 shooting incidents compared to 55 incidents in 2014).

The press conference was held specifically in the confines of the 47th Precinct which has seen a 70 percent reduction in shootings since the beginning of this year’s program, and has had only three shootings in the five-week period compared to ten shootings during the same period in 2014.

The announcement of these positive stats follow the administration’s launch of ‘One City: Safe and Fair Everywhere’, a new neighborhood policing model designed to transform NYC’s approach to policing, while keeping crime at historic and all-time lows.

“Bringing police and community closer together builds mutual trust and respect, and results in reduced crime by emphasizing proactive, preventative policing,” said the mayor.

“We are seeing the positive results of that model right here in the 47th Precinct. Five weeks into Summer All Out and just a few weeks after announcing our new neighborhood policing vision, neighborhood residents and officers and embracing one another and shootings are down in some of our high-crime precincts. This is proof that, together, we can create a city that is safe and fair everywhere.”

“We’ve been working hard to reduce violence and crime across the city, and as evidenced here in the 47th Precinct, we are having some success - but we can’t do it alone,” said police commissioner William Bratton. “It take the collective effort of our community, our police and our local leaders to continue building trust and understanding. But with your help, we will continue to build One City: Safe and Fair Everywhere.”

“I knew that we couldn’t have a crime-free neighborhood unless community and police worked together,” said Elizabeth Gill, president of the 47th Precinct Community Council. “Crime is down in the 47th Precinct and I thank the mayor and police commissioner for listening to us, taking action, as well as providing leadership and support.”

We believe you will discover optimal well-being with the support of our three core concepts: Renew-Restore-Rehabilitate.

Our assisted living program is a residence that services individuals who value their independence, have a stable medical condition, and do require minimal assistance to maintain their current level of functionality. At Morningside, we allow individuals to age in place and use on site home care services to address their personal care needs.

Services and Amenities include:

- Single and two-bedroom living units
- Housekeeping and laundry services
- 24 Hour Supervision
- Assistance with Medications
- Personal Care Assistance
- Case Management Services
- Activity Programs
- Three meals per day
- Transportation to local appointments, shopping, and activities within the community
- Library, gardens, internet, social areas
- Therapy service

Our philosophy is to treat residents as individuals and respect them for who they currently are and who they were before entering into our care. Our staff ensures that each individual has their needs and preferences catered to by developing a service plan, through ongoing resident and family meetings.

We encourage prospective residents to contact the program and take a tour to ensure the residence is right for them. Please call 718-409-8266 for further information.
Dear editor,

I wholeheartedly agree with Bob Pascarella’s objection to the removal of Alexander Hamilton from our currency. If it is necessary to replace a white, male American leader with the image of a notable female or person of color, why did Jack Lew, our current Secretary of the Treasury, select a Founding Father - and the first Secretary of the Treasury (1789). I have to wonder why most contributions to the new nation included guiding it successfully through the massive debt that was incurred by the Revolutionary War?

How about replacing the image of Andrew Jackson who was responsible for the shameful ‘trail of tears’ the forced removal of the Cherokee from their ancestral lands, betraying their trust and violating former treaties for reasons of greed and territorial expansion. Wouldn’t that be more politically correct?

Mr. Lew needs a history lesson.

Paulaette Sorg

Dear editor,

This letter is regarding the post office at 711 East Gun Hill Road, at the corner of Eastchester Road.

My organization, Bronx Park East Community Association, has received numerous complaints about the disrespectful customer service from the staff at this branch.

On Wednesday, July 8, a member of my group, who is also a member of the 49th Precinct Council executive board and neighboring civic groups, had a very stressful experience there.

She was forced to use the branch to solve a change of address situation, which could only be done at this particular branch.

After five days of calling the branch and not getting the answers she needed, she was forced to go in-person.

For an hour and 15 minutes she was sent from one receptionist to another. She was given the wrong form to fill out, disrespected by a sharp-tongued young woman, and then to top it off had to wait another 15 minutes for a supervisor who never showed up.

Another neighborhood activist, and Community Board 11-appointed member, was also seen that day storming out of this post office, frustrated with the poor level of service.

Members of my group do not deserve disrespect and to have their precious time wasted when they utilize USPS branches.

I hope that our elected officials and others in government read this letter and do their best to ensure that the 711 E. Gun Hill Road Post Office renews their dedication to respectful, concerned customer service.

Dear editor,

The New York State Education Department announced on July 16 that 144 underperforming schools, nearly half of which are in New York City, will enter receivership, a new designation that puts pressure on the de Blasio administration to show improvement at the city’s most troubled schools, and to do so quickly.

That adds up to 100,000 students this year alone, not to mention the millions of kids to date, that have been shoved to the side when it comes to getting the education promised by our public school system.

Where is the outrage?

So now the NYS Education Department, (that has got to be an oxymoron) has a program of ‘reforms’ hammered out during Albany’s recent budget negotiations. Under the deal, schools are placed into two categories, ‘struggling schools,’ those in the bottom five percent of schools in the state for three years, and ‘persistently struggling schools,’ which those have been in that bracket since 2006. Fourteen years!

Those schools have thousands of students languishing in public schools, and in New York City, Carmen Farinha, the schools chancellor — will be the receiver. If they check, but isn’t Ms. Farina de Blasio’s progressive selection to run our schools. Isn’t that like putting the fox in the henhouse to protect the chicks?

Monopoly is the exclusive control of a commodity or service in a particular market, or an exclusive privilege to carry on a trade or business, granted by the government.

The ‘Education Market’ has been run for the past 50 years by the US, NYS and NYC Departments of Education. Our carrer financiers financed by the municipal (teachers) unions have failed millions of American students and continue to do so, and the result is our poverty rates, unemployment rates, declining work forces, and incredible prison populations.

We have a failing public school system that continues to deteriorate. It is time to bring down the monopoly on giving parents total school choice. Give parents the option to remove their children from failing public schools.

Give those parent school vouchers (your tax dollar that is being wasted by the government) to enable parents to send their children to private schools. Remove all limits on the charter schools so as to get away from the lottery system. School choice is the only way to break the education monopoly.

It is way past time to end the education monopoly. It is time for our leaders to be leaders and use our tax dollars to give school choice to all our parents and children.

Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. announced $34 million in capital assistance funding allocations from the Fiscal Year 2016 city budget, including numerous projects in the east Bronx.

The borough president’s office has made available to the Bronx Times a list of line items to be funded in community boards 9, 10, and 11. The capital budget dollars will go to schools, cultural institutions, parks, senior centers and other causes and projects.

“I am proud to have been able to provide funding to so many worthy institutions, projects and purposes within the community in this year’s capital budget,” said Diaz in a statement.

According to James Rausse, director of capital programs for the borough president’s office, the items funded will be added to the budgets of the appropriate city agencies by September or October.

The allocations are made with collaboration and consultation with the borough’s city council delegation, said Rausse.

Within Community Board 9’s communities, the Jane Monroe Senior Center on Story Avenue will receive $500,000 to expand its community center, and Kips Bay Boys and Girls Club will also receive $750,000 to expand their space.

Allocations of $75,000 each have been made to Arminio Pantoja Prep Academy, Woman’s Academy of Excellence and P.S. 100 for interactive White Boards or computers to enhance the learning experience. A STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) program at Bronx Compass High School, on the Adlai E. Stevenson Educational Campus, has seen a $50,000 allocation for computer carts.

“We are part of one of the poorest congressional districts in the country, and every dollar towards programming, infrastructure or community centers is a home run,” said William Rivera, Community Board 9 district manager, adding, after seeing a list of the allocations in his district, that every penny is well spent.

In Community Board 10’s service area, the borough president’s capital funding will boost education, including computers and technology for P.S. 71, The Pelham Lab High School, Renaissance High School for Musical Theatre & Technology, Schuylerville Preparatory High School, and P.S. 72.

“Through this year’s capital budget we are able to allocate funding to several projects in the Community Board 10 area and provide improvements including technology upgrade, building renovations and the Bronx Stem Initiative at PS ’71,” said Borough President Diaz. “It is truly a pleasure and proud moment to have been able to provide funding to these essential causes.”

P.S. 392, the Delta School, in Throggs Neck will use $750,000 to renovate a play yard. In addition to schools, Borough President Diaz has earmarked $500,000 to repair storm damage at the Bartow-Pell Mansion Museum in Pelham Bay Park, and set aside $400,000 for renovations of a bank building at 2700 E. Tremont Avenue that is the future headquarters of Bronx Council on the Arts. Community Board 11 will see allocations of $150,000 for the construction of a dog run in Bronx Park East near Lydig Avenue and $500,000 towards the reconstruction of Morris Park’s Loreto Park.

According to borough president’s statement, the funding in Loreto Park is for “new play equipment, safety surfaces and several other improvements.”

Most gardens are boasting colorful displays of blooming flowers at this time of year, but not on City Island’s Banta Lane.

The City Island Civic Association is searching for the owner of 179 Banta Lane, also known as 179 Hawkins Street, after receiving complaints from neighbors about the vacant derelict structure and a variety of vehicles left to rot beneath the out-of-control, overgrown brush.

This property has been a point of contention for approximately four years, said board members of the organization.

The civic group had the lower level of the vacant home sealed up in 2011, and is now trying to locate the owner to discuss clearing weeds and debris, and removing the rusting vehicles from the premises, said John Doyle, CICA corresponding secretary.

The owner of the home, that is situated on a sleepy residential street, was sent a letter from the CICA to his last known address in Throggs Neck.

“As you may be aware, this property sits vacant, in poor condition and is currently being used as a dumping group for abandoned vehicles and construction equipment,” the letter stated. “As you can imagine, having a property within our community sit totally vacant sends a terrible message about the condition of our neighborhood.”

Citing a belief that an abandoned property can lend itself to “vandalism, vagrants and other troublesome conditions,” as well as a depreciation of the values of other nearby properties, the CICA asked the owner to meet with the organization’s leadership to discuss the matter.

Unfortunately, said Doyle, the letter was returned to the sender, but he believes that the owner may still be living nearby.

They are reaching out to the media with the hope that he sees the coverage and contacts the CICA. He can reach the organization at city.island.civic@gmail.com.

There is garbage, as well as derelict vehicles at the location, and the top floor of the structure is wide open, said a City Islander with knowledge of the property.

“It is more than an eyesore,” said the resident, who did not wish to be identified. “It is really becoming a health hazard.”

The CICA president, Bill Stanton, said that when properties are not maintained, a meeting between the owner and the community group can help rectify the problem.

“It is obviously an eyesore,” he said of the location. “As president of the City Island Civic Association, I want City Island to be as idyllic as possible.”

The site had become an underage hangout before its lower level was sealed, which is always a concern, said Doyle.

The Department of Buildings and Sanitation Department recently visited 179 Hawkins Street.

As of press time, there was an open DOB complaint regarding “several vehicles being stored on the side and rear yard the property.”

The corresponding secretary said he was hopeful that the Sanitation Department would soon clean up the location at the owner’s expense.

The owner is listed on DOB and Department of Finance documents as Dominick Mincieli.

Attempts to reach Mincieli before press time were unsuccessful.

Klein wraps up timely SCRIE/DRIE town halls

BY JAIME WILLIAMS

A series of town hall meetings were held to instruct local seniors and people with disabilities about housing benefits they may be eligible for.

Senator Jeff Klein recently hosted a number of information sessions in his district about the Senior Citizen Rent Increase Exemption and Disability Rent Increase Exemption.

The programs, which freeze eligible participants’ rent, are an attempt to support the population of seniors and people with disabilities, said Klein.

“If you’re living on fixed income, it’s very hard to make ends meet,” he said.

SCRIE applies to NYC residents who are at least 62 years old, rent an apartment that is regulated by the Division of Housing and Community Renewal (i.e. rent controlled or rent stabilized apartments or hotel stabilized), pay more than one-third of the household’s total monthly income for rent, and meet the income cap.

Expanding the programs to support middle class seniors and people with disabilities is a priority, said Senator Klein.

In 2014, the SCRIE/DRIE income cap was raised to $50,000 to help seniors make ends meet.

In a related effort, last year eligibility requirements, as well as increase overall enrollment.

The Bronx ranks second to last in terms of enrollment across New York City, according to Klein’s office, and is also home to areas with the highest number of non-participating eligible households in NYC for SCRIE, including Kingsbridge Heights/Moshulu, Riverdale/Kingsbridge, and Throggs Neck/Co-op City.

“I want to make sure as many Bronxites as possible sign up for the program,” said Klein.

The forums were a success in terms of providing information and getting people to sign up, said the senator.

One constituent, Pelham Parkway resident Denise Mangione, was glad for the town hall meeting at Bronx House in late June. She had applied for SCRIE as soon as she turned 62 several months ago.

“If I could put a freeze on my rent it would be great, I could make ends meet better,” said Mangione.

But the application was pending for months and she couldn’t figure out why.

When she received an invitation to Klein’s town hall in the mail, she decided to attend, and the senator’s office was able to get her the answers as to why her application wasn’t moving forward.

Now she’s keeping her fingers crossed that her application will be approved.

“I think the meeting was very beneficial,” said Mangione. “I appreciate what Senator Klein did to reach out to the community.”

Gómez named 7th Hostos Community College president

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

The interim president of Hostos Community College since August 2014 was recently selected as the college's seventh president.

David Gomez, the new Hostos president, has over four decades of service and experience in the City University of New York system and its community colleges.

A firm believer in the community college movement, Gomez said that he would lead the institution as changes and development in the southern part of the borough create challenges and also opportunities for its residents.

“The challenge for this institution moving forward is to embrace the changes taking place in the Bronx in a positive way,” said Gomez, adding that in viewing the changes in the south Bronx, he will empower people to ‘move up’ instead of moving out.

From its humble beginnings in a closed tire factory building in 1968 to a sprawling campus along the Grand Concourse at East 149th Street today, Gomez, who holds a Doctor of Education, believes that what is perhaps unique to Hostos Community College compared with otherschools around the country is its close synergistic relationship to the community.

Indeed, Gomez said that he feels that the bonds forged when the community fought Hostos’ potential closure during New York City’s 1970s fiscal crisis created a sense of community ‘ownership’ of the institution of higher learning that he does not believe exists in the same way at any of more than 100 community colleges he has visited around the country.

“There is a synergy between the community and the college that I don’t think exists anywhere else,” the college president said. “This is an institution that’s not merely ‘in’ the community, but ‘of’ the community.”

The new president said that Hostos should continue to focus on its Allied Health Career Pipeline Program, as well the media and technology fields.

A partnership with Lehman College to facilitate Hostos graduates pursuing bachelor degrees is also a focus, he said.

Gomez said he continues to be inspired by the students he sees at Hostos, many of whom have to deal with students’ issues that become intensified in the college’s Melrose location: homelessness, raising two or three children while attending college, and juggling several jobs.

“It is an extraordinary struggle for them, and I am extremely proud and in awe of what they do,” he said of the students at the college, adding that many face extraordinary challenges.

The president added that he is not given to speaking in hyperbole, noting that the challenges many of the students face are real.

Gomez is committed to making sure that the college experience of Hostos students is no different from that of college students anywhere else in the country.

He said he will work to ensure that Hostos students will receive the same quality and academic rigor that CUNY students should and do receive.

This is Gomez’s second stint at CUNY Hostos, having worked at the college from 1974 to 1986, but said that until his appointment as interim president in August 2014, he had not set foot back on the campus in decades. He had been an administrator in a variety of capacities at other CUNY institutions around the city before rising to his current position.

As an annual display of solidarity, thousands of Bronxites will join local law enforcement officials for this year’s 32nd annual National Night Out Against Crime set for Tuesday, August 4.

During that evening, the borough’s 12 precincts and two police service areas covering public housing will host family-friendly carnival festivities at varying hours while sharing important crime prevention advice.

Partnering with the 49th Precinct and the 49th Precinct Community Council, Neighborhood Development Initiatives Corp. will hold its 11th annual NNOAC at the Great Lawn of Pelham Parkway North between Wallace and Barnes avenues from 6 to 9 p.m.

The free community event will see elected officials, law enforcement agencies, fire fighters, city agencies and community-based organizations in attendance building neighborhood unity, strengthening police-community partnerships, raising awareness of police programs in communities and bringing police and neighbors together under positive circumstances.

“This year, we’re coming up on 11 years and we want to help strengthen the ties between community members and the local organizations which help them,” said Valete Graham, NDIC Development/Communications associate.

“This is meant to help raise awareness of the local opportunities the majority of community members may not be completely aware of.”

Festivities will include a live musical performance from Just Nuts, a dance performance by the Albanian Entertainers, free amusement rides, games, free refreshments and slushies as well as cotton candy and pop corn for guests to enjoy throughout the evening.

NNOAC also allows community members to speak with their elected officials, Bronx borough officers, NYPD police units, local fire fighters, U.S. Armed Forces members, the New York City FBI, representatives from United Health Care, Health First and AARP among many other organizations.

Free information on crime prevention, volunteer community patrols, the Bronx District Attorney’s office, community organizations and homeland security will be available for guests.

The 49th Precinct will be providing bicycle registration and cell phone and tablet registration services.

“We try to keep everyone entertained with great music and fun activities, but we also help provide them with important information they should know about like crime prevention and health care options,” said Hazel Muirat, NDIC Volunteers and Community Development director and 49th Precinct Community Council treasurer.

Community-based organizations looking to attend should contact Hazel Muirat at (718) 231-9800 ext. 11 by Monday, July 27 if they wish to participate.

The 49th Precinct’s NNOAC will take place at Co-op City’s main Greenway from 6 to 11 p.m. and features an outdoor screening of “The Amazing Spider-Man 2”.

According to Michelle Sajous, Riverbay Corp. director, the event is a collaboration between the 45th Precinct and the 49th Precinct Community Council, Assemblyman Michael Benedetto, Riverbay Corp. and Fidelis Care featuring free hot dogs and drinks, a bounce castle, prizes, raffles and community organizations sharing their resources with guests and residents.

“It’s a wonderful event for people to meet with their local police officers and community organizations wanting to sharing their resources with others,” she said.

Community organizations wishing to participate at NNOAC should contact Sajous at (716) 320-3500 ext. 3532 prior to Friday, July 31.

Klein releases summer concert schedule

BY JAIME WILLIAMS

The summer concert series is back.

Senator Jeff Klein has released the schedule for the outdoor music and movie events that take place in parks throughout his district each year.

People really enjoy it, they look forward to it. It’s become a tradition.

Jeff Klein

Senator

It’s been almost 20 years since he started providing free concerts in the summer, said Klein.

The idea came from attending outdoor cultural events in Manhattan during the summer, and realizing there was a lack of similar opportunities closer to home.

“There was not the same type of free entertainment available in the Bronx,” he said.

When he was elected, he made it a priority, and the concert series has grown into something that residents throughout his district, which includes Throggs Neck, Morris Park and Riverdale, get excited about each year.

Klein said he starts fielding questions about the concert schedule as soon as the weather gets warm.

“People really enjoy it, they look forward to it.” he said. “It’s become a tradition.”

The events are an opportunity for residents to connect with family, friends and neighbors as they enjoy great music outdoors, he said.

Parks are also a boon for local businesses, especially restaurants, as residents decide to make a night of it, said Klein.

“We have hundreds and hundreds of people that come out,” he said.

This year’s line-up includes the singing sensations Chubby Checker and Engelbert Humperdinck.

Attendees should bring chairs or blankets to the park.

For more information, call Klein’s office at (718) 822-2049.

Students’ poetry book wins award

BY JAIME WILLIAMS

A group of local students have recently become award-winning authors.

In Spring 2014, the 4th grade class at Christ the King Elementary School on the Grand Concourse self-published ‘De Donde Vengo Yo (Where I’m From): Poems of Pride,’ with the help of author Nancy Arroyo Ruffin.

The book has now won the ‘Best Book Written by a Youth’ award at the Latino Literacy Now International Latino Book Awards.

The book grew organically out of a writing prompt from a work of Arroyo Ruffin, a friend of the school’s, said principal Tara Braswell.

“She likes to give back to the community,” said Braswell about Arroyo Ruffin, who was also the one to submit the book for the award.

The author and the principal share a commitment to promoting writing among youth, said Braswell.

“My concern as a principal is that students refine their poems, which express pride in their ancestry, and gifted students refine their poems, which express pride in their ancestry,” said Braswell.

The students also got something out of writing about their heritage, she said.

“For them to put it in writing and say this is who I am, this is where I came from, it’s a sense of pride,” Braswell said.

The project was such a success that Braswell decided to make the book a yearly endeavor. She’s incorporated the poetry lessons into the curriculum, and each 4th grade class will end the year with a published book, which the school raises money to print.

This year’s book is ‘Quien Soy Yo: Who I am,’ and both are available for purchase on Amazon.com. All proceeds go to support the school.

“It made them feel like they accomplished something major in their lives.”

“The students also got something out of writing about their heritage, she said.

“They are excited about writing, and creating a book that other authors get involved with.”

Braswell agreed.

“I think it’s important for students to have a platform to express their identity, and the book is a great tool to structure lessons around, which Arroyo Ruffin and other authors get involved with.

“We want to give the kids a sense of how to be good writers,” said Braswell.

Without strong reading and writing skills, students will struggle in other skills, Braswell said.

“We want to give them the skills to be successful in life.”

Free Wi-Fi access at Mott Haven Houses

The Mott Haven Houses became a backdrop for a new effort to bridge the ‘digital divide’.

Mayor de Blasio and Obama Administration cabinet member Julian Castro, Department of Housing and Urban Development Secretary, visited the sprawling New York City Housing Authority Development on Thursday, July 16 to announce that 2,500 residents in the development who might not otherwise have access will receive free, high-speed Internet in coming years.

The planned connectivity at the Mott Haven Houses is part of a larger initiative led by the Office of the Mayor’s Counsel in partnership with NYCHA and the Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications to ultimately connect 16,000 NYCHA residents in selected projects around the city with free wireless Internet with a $10 million investment.

This effort is being made in conjunction with President Obama’s ConnectHome, an initiative designed to bring broadband access to the Internet and devices to thousands of people in 27 United States cities.

The first NYCHA site, in Queens, should go online in 2016.

“Through ConnectHome, my administration will be able to deepen our private partnerships, leverage our public investment in universal, affordable Broadband for hard working New Yorkers who struggle to support their families and desperately need broadband,” said the mayor.

Mayor de Blasio said that having access to reliable, high-speed Internet is important for fighting inequality because without sufficient education, access to information, and the ability to find and apply online to jobs, people are just “not in the game.” He called the connectivity a ‘game changer’.

During a news conference at the Mott Haven Houses announcing the initiative, the mayor told the story of a resident of the project, Nifitia Hazard, who had to choose between Internet service which was crucial to her son’s education and ability to do homework, and additional spending on medicine.

Maya Wiley, Counsel to the mayor, said that access to Broadband should be available to all young people and their parents.

“No child should worry about whether or not she can finish her homework because her family can’t afford Broadband at home,” said Wiley. “Every parent should be able to go online to see if their child has completed that homework, no matter the size of their paycheck.”

John Johnson, the tenant association president at Mott Haven Houses and leader of the Bronx South District Council of Presidents for 34 projects in the borough, said that residents at Mott Haven Houses struggle with being part of the poorest congressional district in the nation, and oftentimes even struggle to buy the devices and computers on which they can access the Internet.

Johnson said he was glad that the announcement touched on helping people obtain devices to access the Internet as well access to WiFi. Access to computer hardware is part of ConnectHome.

Douglas Frazier, co-chairman of the Digital Divide Project, an organization that seeks to connect people to the Internet, said that he hoped the new initiative would involve and engage the community in the connectivity process at a grassroots level.

MUSICIANS AGAINST CANCER FUNDRAISER

The Yard at Mr. McGoo’s Pub & Grill held their first ever annual cancer awareness fundraiser, Musicians Against Cancer, on Saturday, July 11. Local music artists such as Jameson’s Revenge, East Coast Rednecks, Kilcullen, Monster Brew, Caz Van Queen, the Bryan Durieux Project, the Wondermics and Rocky and the Pressers performed for those in attendance. Proceeds from the event will benefit the American Cancer Society of the Bronx and will fund the borough’s groundbreaking research and local programs. A ceremony was held after the performances to honor those who lost their battle with cancer.

Bronx youth is Gates, BOA scholar

By Patrick Rocchio

A local youth is making a difference and learning about grassroots community building this summer after taking home two prestigious national awards.

Vidhur Beharry, a recent graduate of DeWitt Clinton High School and a Williamsbridge resident, is learning about leadership as a Bank of America Student Leaders® scholar. He was also recently selected as a 2015 Gates Millennium Scholar, a program run by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, which Beharry said will include college scholarship opportunities for both undergraduate and graduate study.

The hard working 18-year-old is currently an intern for the summer at Citizens Committee For New York City, an organization that provides microloans for grassroots based organizations to rebuild communities.

He obtained that position through BOA Student Leaders.

“I chose citizens committee because I wanted something different,” the award-winning scholar said, adding that he wanted to learn more about the non-profit sector.

Just five New Yorkers were selected for BOA’s program, and Beharry is the only Bronxite, he said.

About 2,000 young people from around the city applied, he added.

“I was surprised when I was chosen,” said Beharry. “I was in shock and then relieved that I had something to do this summer.”

As part of the BOA program, Beharry said that he recently went on a trip to Washington D.C. at the start of the summer, where he attended leadership workshops and went on a tour of various national monuments.

Some of the overarching themes of what Beharry said he learned about during his experience with the Student Leaders program in Washington were financial literacy and the interconnection of various sectors.

“I think that (the student leaders program) is a great program,” he said. “Students should apply because it is a great opportunity to learn about how businesses, government and non-profits have similarities and work together.”

Beharry attended P.S. 16 and M.S. 113, and that he grew up near East Gun Hill Road and has two older sisters. He hopes to focus on learning more about the sciences, especially astrophysics, and wants to obtain a doctorate, but has not yet decided in specifically which discipline.

“Science was limted in my high school,” he said. There was never an oceanography class or an astronomy class, and I want to learn more about them.”

And he should have ample opportunity.

With a full-scholarship for both undergraduate and graduate study from the Gates Foundation, Beharry should be able to study the sciences to his heart’s content without being concerned about college costs.

“When I received the Gates Scholarship, I was in awe,” he said, adding “I don’t think it is going to hit me until I am going off to graduate school and my peers have to pay for graduate school and I don’t.”

Throggs Neck Volunteer Ambulance Corps, a long-lasting volunteer ambulance corps, has been dedicated to aiding, and medical service for its residents.

Along with extending its contributions to the neighborhoods that it serves, “said Jim McQuade, Throggs Neck resident and businessman. Despite the constant difficulty with receiving donations as well as finding volunteers, they still educate the community about safety while passing along a ‘neighbor helping neighbor’ mentality.

“There are other neighborhoods in NYC that now have to wait for emergency medical service because they lost their volunteer ambulance services, and that should not be taken for granted because the first few minutes of any medical emergency is invaluable.”

“The founding and formation of the (TNVAC) was a good idea when it was started and has proven to be a great idea over the years for residents in need from Throggs Neck, Country Club and Pelham Bay,” said assemblyman Michael Benedetto. “Hopefully this same trend can continue for many years to come.”

“The (TNVAC) is an institution providing first rate care and emergency services to our families, children and loved ones,” said Klein. “Ensuring the volunteer organization continues to deliver these services and more to their residents is a very important cause. I’m proud to have supported the (TNVAC) in years past and I look forward to continuing to work together in the future to protect the health and safety of all Bronx residents.”

TNVAC still serving after 35+ years

By Steven Goodstein

A nonprofit organization in Throggs Neck is still caring for the lives of Bronx residents after over 35 years.

Throggs Neck Volunteer Ambulance Corps has struggled to generate the funds to stay afloat.

However, TNVAC is here today because of the additional financial support it receives from local political leaders such as Senator Jeff Klein and Councilman James Vacca.

As recently as 2013, City Council speaker Christine Quinn allocated $50,000 in NYC funds to the organization while the Rudin Family Foundation contributed $25,000.

After obtaining the funding it looked like the corps was back on track, but then in 2014 tragic events occurred.

Laura D’attore, the first vice chairwoman and the first woman to be chief of operations for TNVAC, passed away on August 13 after spending over three decades with the organization.

Just three months later, chairman Bill Heaney, who was also with TNVAC from its infancy, passed away on November 9.

“It’s been a tough time period for (TNVAC) because of those two major losses,” said Ruth Leith, TNVAC chairwoman, who has held various positions within the organization for almost 20 years. “We’re trying to pick up those broken pieces, but when an organization loses two people who were so important and so instrumental to its success, it’s difficult for everybody.”

Amidst the losses and tribulations, the organization has certainly seen improvements since its inception.

Along with extending its boundaries to other neighborhoods, TNVAC now offers free CPR classes to the community, first aid and lifeguards while providing other classes.

They also train their members for free.

“I am very thankful to this organization because they trained me for free and they paid for my classes when I was in school,” said volunteer Carlos Garcia, who has been with the organization since 2002 and trained to be an emergency medical technician. “(TNVAC) taught me everything, and when an organization like this efficiently trains their members for free, it leads to a safer community in return.”

After looking at the organization’s history, it is clear that the TNVAC has been and continues to be a vitally important asset for the community, even with the current issues the organization now faces.

“This organization, now in its 36th year, is a tremendous asset to the neighborhoods that it serves,” said Jim McQuade.

How to Use Technology to Keep Your Child Learning All Summer

Build a website. These days, building a website doesn’t require computer programming skills, but rather, creativity and a willingness to learn. There are lots of website builders out there that offer customizable templates. Your child’s summer learning project could be to create a website—the budding artist or photographer.

Download learning apps to practice skills. While reviewing homework and assignments from the prior year is an excellent way to keep your child fresh, if you didn’t save your child’s work, there are other great alternatives to deter summer learning loss. Check out Reading Rockets for some of the best apps for vocabulary, writing and spelling practice and reading comprehension. Common Sense Media (free) ranks all kinds of apps, including math apps with addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, geometry and logic games and practice tools. Before the school year ends, also ask your child’s teacher for recommendations.

Learn to program. For imaginative and mathematically or technically inclined students, websites like Scratch (www.scratch.mit.edu) are excellent learning tools. Created for children ages 8 to 16 by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Scratch is a “programming language and an online community where children can program and share interactive media such as stories, games and animation.” Other websites to check out include www.alice.org, a 3D programming environment that makes it easier for students to learn object-oriented programming, and Hackety.com (www.hackety.com/) which teaches students the Ruby programming language. For beginners, check out apps such as Lightbot Jr. ($2.99) coding puzzle (and later, Lightbot) and Cato’s Hike ($4.99).

Download a podcast (or five). Whether your family is planning a few road trips this summer or your child enjoys audio learning, podcasts can be great fun for children of all ages. You can download and listen to podcasts on any mobile device or computer. What interests your child? Try searching the iTunes store for podcasts on various topics (www.apple.com/itunes/podcasts). Also, check out these great podcasts: Bookwink (which reviews books for kids ages 8 to 14, plus Road Trips and Global Wonders (which introduces children to different world cultures), Reading Rockets (which interviews top children’s book authors and illustrators) and Brains On! (a science podcast).

Think about what your child is into. The great news about the world we live in today is that there are so many mobile technologies that if your child has an interest, there may very well be an app or other technology program to teach or fuel that interest. Is your child curious about learning a new language? Check out one of the many foreign language learning apps out there such as Little Pim. Is your child a hands-on learner who enjoys creating? Don’t miss DIY, an app that has children complete skill-based, hands-on challenges.

Technology has changed education forever—and has provided today’s students some incredible learning opportunities. This summer break, explore the many programs available to your child and incorporate a few such tools into your learning repertoire. Not only will you encourage your child to keep learning this summer, you will also be emulating 21st century classroom teaching.

Innovation award to College of New Rochelle

The College of New Rochelle has been selected to receive the 2015 Innovation Award for Resource Enhancement from the National Association of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO) for the development of an innovative shared services model for technological advancement in collaboration with Marist College.

The NACUBO Innovation Award honors higher education institutions that incorporate cutting edge solutions to significant institutional challenges applicable to all colleges and universities. The College of New Rochelle received the award for a Resource Enhancement model that recognizes high performance IT units that have successfully reduced costs, increased revenues or improved productivity in response to a campus need.

This collaboration has thus far resulted in the CNR’s new website (www.cnr.edu), which was launched in December 2014. The website is a critical communications vehicle to articulate the College’s mission and support both students and the college’s support for its four schools. The new website is hosted on Marist’s server in an environment that applies the highest industry standards for data storage, security, backup, and the like.

The second phase of this collaboration launched on July 1 as CNR transitioned its finance operations to the Banner enterprise resource planning system, using funds from a $10 million Title III grant the College received in 2014 to support technology infrastructure and Marist’s expertise to accelerate the project timeline. Integrating all finance operations to the Banner enterprise system will be the next phase in this endeavor. This consolidation of systems into a single platform will allow The College of New Rochelle to enhance data integrity, improve efficiency, provide consistent and timely service for CNR’s constituents, and save valuable resources.

As a NACUBO award recipient, CNR has joined a group of innovative academic institutions from across the United States.

Last year’s recipients alone included The California Institute of Technology, John Brown University, the University of Colorado System, the University of Nebraska Lincoln, and Yavapai College. Con Edison's 2015 Sustainability Report - containing these and other highlights, is available at http://www.conedison.com/ehs/2015-sustainability-report.pdf. The ongoing progress converting customers from using inefficient heating oil to cleaner-burning natural gas is also highlighted, as well as significant growth efforts supporting renewable generation.

For the fifth consecutive summer, Barlow-Pell Mansion Museum, in partnership with Preservation Volunteers and the Huntington Learning Center, will offer a week-long restoration workshop focused on restoring the mansion’s interior wooden shutters. The ca. 1840 Greek Revival building has interior wooden shutters—sandy in need of repair—that help protect from summer’s sun and winter’s chill. This year—the workshop’s last—the volunteers will restore the shutters in an upstairs bedroom and the library/ensuite space, thus completing all the public rooms in the landmarked building—one of only 115 New York City interior landmarks (the building is also a New York City-designated individual landmark, as well as on the National Register of Historic Places). This year’s workshop will take place Monday, August 3rd through Friday, August 7, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

As in past summers, participants will learn the necessary steps for a historically sensitive restoration of architectural components with an eye towards curatorial, preservation and environmental impacts. Under the guidance of professional woodworker and project manager Gerald Garner of Fifty Three Restorations—an award-winning, New York City-based restoration firm currently undertaking an exterior restoration of the mansion—the volunteers will learn how to safely handle lead paint removal; make appropriate carpentry repairs; prime, and paint. Throughout the week the volunteers will enjoy mansion tours and guest speakers during lunch breaks.

Six of the volunteers come from as far away as France through an exchange program of the Brooklyn-based Preservation Volunteers, and will be hosted by local families for the week.

The $1.7 million exterior restoration project began in the spring and includes masonry repointing and cleaning; repair and painting of the cornice and gutters; and restoration of the second floor wrought-iron balconies. The project is expected to be completed in the fall.

The cost of the workshop for the week is $295 and includes snacks, lunch, instruction, materials, and insurance. Participants must be 18 years old or over and space is limited. For more information or to register please call (718) 885-1461 or email info@bpmn.org.
The Throggs Neck Merchants Association recognized two community figures on Monday, July 20 who were instrumental in TNMA's annual street fair this past May. The merchants awarded certificates of appreciation to both Rite Aid's store manager Rony Matli and John Marano, Community Board 10 vice chairman, for their help with this event. Matli was presented an award on behalf of the store for allowing Rite Aid's parking lot to be utilized for street fair activities and Marano was honored for his help in securing a rock climbing wall, one of the event's most popular attractions.

Because of the new mission as a community action, and the support they need to stay healthy,” SBH Health System (St. Barnabas Hospital) and the Belmont BID invite area residents to participate in a family health and fitness event dedicated to Bronx residents on Sunday, July 26.

“Stepping Out on Arthur Avenue” is intended to promote family physical activity and good nutrition for the better health and wellness of people of all ages and sizes.

The free event will be opened to the public, and free of traffic, on Arthur Avenue between 184th and 187th streets from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

“Stepping Out on Arthur Avenue” will also include local events like this fits perfectly into our new mission as a community healthcare provider,” said Dr. David Perlstein, SBH Health System’s Executive Vice President and Chief Medical Officer.

Our next meeting is Tuesday, August 4 at 7:30 p.m. at The Sanz, 815 Allerton Avenue. Please feel free to stop by and listen.

Any issues or concerns, contact us at AllertonMerchants@gmail.com.

We are still collecting for the Allerton clean up projects, including but not limited to some new murals.

Thank you to everyone for all the support. It was great to see many familiar faces on Al-power of wages has not progressed for decades. “For most U.S. workers, real wages that is, after inflation is taken into account — have been flat or even falling for decades, regardless of whether the economy has been adding or subtracting jobs. Cash money isn’t the only way workers are compensated, of course — health insurance, retirement-account contributions, education and transit subsidies and other benefits all can be part of the package. But wages and salaries are the biggest (about 70%, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics) and most visible component of employee compensation.”

One organization has increased its’ income during this era of economic challenges— the federal government.

According to the monthly treasury statement Indications continue that the U.S. economy continues to languish.

According to the CNS analysis of the Monthly Treasury Statement, “The federal government racked up a record $2.446,920,000,000 in tax revenues through the first nine months of fiscal 2015 (Oct. 1, 2014 through the end of June). That equaled approximately $16,451 for every person in the country who had either a full-time or part-time job in June. Despite the record tax revenues the government ran up a deficit of $313,381,000,000 during the period.”

Thwaites 4: Artists Reign

You’re invited to the 4th Annual Thwaites Place Block Party on Saturday, July 25 from noon to 8 p.m. at Olinville Avenue and Thwaites Place, by Pelham Parkway North.

This year the focus is on artists. There will be painters, photographers, authors, poets, dancers, musicians and other artists showcasing their works and performing at our event. It is ‘kitchen-sink’ style, with the aim of showing appreciation to the human beings that make New York City great artists!

There will also be a bounce house from noon to 6 p.m., pony rides from noon to 2 p.m., Zumba w/ Dena Sarauw at 2 p.m., a magic show at 6 p.m., facepainting from noon to 4 p.m., our 3rd annual ‘Pizza Eating Contest’ at 5 p.m., and for the first time, a dunk tank, from 4 to 8 p.m. Or, as some might call it, ‘Revenge on Raph’ (wink-wink).

The plans are culminating magnificently and it should turn out to be the best Thwaites Block Party yet! But there’s a reason for this.

Thank You, Sponsors
Without the support of the following, the annual event to bring our community together would not be possible:

- Community Green Market at 2228 White Plains Road, for their awe-inspiring generosity
- Steven Restaurant at 2233 Boston Road for providing food for the fourth year in a row
- La Pentola Pizzeria and Nicodemos Social Club at Lydig Avenue and White Plains Road for providing a steep discount on 15 pizza pies, and providing tables for the artists
- Erika Newsome and Primera for their consistent support
- 80th A.D. State Committeeman Joseph McManus for his generosity; He donates to every block party, without hesitation, question, or partisan-ship. If it makes the kids smile, he supports it.
- Neighborhood Initiatives Development Corp. for their help, as always
- Wellcare for providing facepainters
- Assemblyman Gjonaj for his financial contributions
- Assemblyman Rivera for his financial contributions
- Bronx Park East Preparatory Academy’s Pre-K For All at 2270 Bronx Park East for their contributions
- Neighborhood businesses Freddy Fred’s Used Car Sales at 691 Thwaites Place, The Look Hair Salon at 2251 White Plains Road, Ganzo’s Food Market at 2233 Boston Road, and 5-Star Deli and Food Choice Market of the Thwaites Place business-area.
- Finally, a warm thank you to the neighborhood residents and Bronx Park East Community Association B-PECA members and supporters, who have made financial and in-kind contributions ahead of time to make this event possible: Debbie Simmons, Francine Ruh, Linda King, Evelyn Rivera, Penny Lopez, Lisa Roma, Besim Kukaj, Ya-mone Hurley, Thomas Grant, Kathleen Blue, Ann Progler, Kenny Agosto, Norma Lopez, Kay Cardona, Lauretta Talbert, Paula Diaz, Audrey Morales, Stacy Lowe, Gloria & Tatiana Garcia, Christina Coffiel, Elaine Williams, Stephanie Chambers, Sally and enter, and of course, Thwaites Place artist Jayson Agosto.

If you’d still like to support this event in some way, email bxparkeast@gmail.com or text/call (347) 654-7044.

It’s all about the artists and the youth!

Calendar of Events

Hopefully you’ve set up text messaging on your phone, or have opened up an email or facebook account so you can keep track of B-PECA’s texts, emails and facebook updates.

If not, here are highlights of FREE activities going on in our area in July and August:

- Each Friday in July and August: free B-PECA Outdoor Zumba workouts w/ Dena Sarauw. At 6:30 p.m., at Bronx Park East and Waring Avenue. Made possible by Community Green Market at 2228 White Plains Road.
- Each Saturday and Sunday in July and August: free community rowing at Hunts Point Riverside Park, organized by Rocking The Boat. Go to rockingtheboat.org for details.
- Thursday, July 30 from 6 to 9 p.m.: ‘Greater Neighbors’ Art Walk. Sponsored by the City of New York, Community Board 10, and Partners for the Environment. More info and details at greaterneighbors.org.

Hello all!
The Throgs Neck Memorial Post 1456 is hosting a fundraiser to offset medical expenses for Bobby Stokes. Bobby is the commander of the Bronx County Sons of the American Legion, and has been extremely active in this position. Bobby is also the ‘go-to’ guy for any help you might need with anything. The fundraiser is a BBQ being held on Saturday, August 8. Cost is $25 per person and includes hamburgers, hot dogs, London broil, clams on the half shell, sides, draft beer. Live music will be provided by Paul Grasso for your listening and dancing pleasure. I don’t have a start time for this function, but you can call (718) 822-6502 for info and let them know that you will attend. There will be a 50-50 raffle, and any leftover funds will go to Bobby to help pay for his medical expenses.

Looking for a great date-night movie? Run, do not walk, from "The Stanford Prison Experiment." But if you want to see something that could change your whole view about good guys and bad guys, get a ticket.

I attended a screening at the Fortune Academy in Harlem, a stately building housing about 100 men and women who have served time. The academy gives its residents a helping hand as they re-enter the world, sometimes decades ago.

The movie recreates one of the most infamous psychological experiments in history. It was conducted by Philip Zimbardo, a Bronx-born Stanford professor of psychology who, in 1971, he.evaluated 24 middle-class young men from Palo Alto, California, to live in a mock prison for two weeks.

The group was randomly divided into "guards" and "prisoners." The "prisoners" were then arrested by real Palo Alto police who agreed to play along, and taken to the jail — actually the basement of the Stanford psychology department. There they were fingerprinted, blindfolded, and sprayed with "de-lousing" compound (actually deodorant).

They were then issued smocks that looked like dresses and sere numbers. For their part, the "guards" were given nightsticks and reflective aviator glasses.

The idea was to dehumanize both groups. Boy did it work.

The movie, starring Billy Crudup as Zimbardo and based on videos and transcripts of the experiment, shows the guards experimenting with their power: "You will call us sir."

"Yes sir."

"No, call us 'Mr. Correctional Officer, sir. '"insists one guard, twirling his-nightstick menacingly.

In very short order, the guards start insisting on more and more abasement: "I don’t like the way you said Sir. Give me 20 push ups. Say it again. No, I still don’t like it. Give me 40 push ups and 40 jumping jacks. I don’t appreciate your attitude. I’m going to have the other prisoners sit on your back while you do your pushups. What? You can’t do it? Into the hole."

"The Hole" — actually an unlit closet — served as solitary confinement. Again and again the guards started locking "prisoners" there if they spoke back, or even didn’t finish their breakfast. And watching all this unfold, unseen behind a wall, Zimbardo did nothing to stop the budding tyrants. Not when they marched the prisoners around with bags over their heads. Not when they forced the prisoners to use a pail in the hallway as their toilet. Not when the guards were making the men bend over and simulate raping each other.

And there he was at the Fortune Academy last week, at this strange special screening.

When the lights went on, the audience was introduced to the surprisingly young-looking Zimbardo, now 82, and immediately, their hands went up:

"I was in prison practically all my life and I never had any discussion with a guard," said one man, disputing the film’s verisimilitude.

"You can’t ‘create’ a prison."

Zimbardo agreed: This was not reality. His intent was to show how even good people can become heartless in a heartless system.

"I read that your study has been criticized," said another man. "That the guards were actually told to be cruel."

This criticism isn’t new to the doctor, who insists he told the guards only to "be" guards — leaving the interpretation up to them.

Zimbardo actually ended up cutting the experiment short after his girlfriend showed up on day six and was appalled. It was only then, Zimbardo told the Fortune Academy crowd, that he realized he had gotten too into his own "role" as prison superintendent.

"I thought it was a brilliant movie," said Mauer Hernandez, sitting quietly as the audience drifted out. Gray-haired and bifocaled, he’d served 10 years for drug distribution. Not all the guards he encountered were cruel, he said. "But you have a lot of them that kind of grab that stick. It’s like they come from their house to ruin your day."

For instance, he said: If a prisoner being released after 30 years bequeaths to a fellow inmate something as simple as a pen, "The guards take it away from you. That pen — it’s the closest thing to being back on the outside, free. But they say, ‘You’re not supposed to have it.’ They take it — and hope — away."

Watching the movie made Hernandez’ legs twitch. He had to force himself to stay. If we all do the same, maybe we, too, will be able to resist the urge to dehumanize if life randomly bequeaths us that power.

Who’s running the ship when they run for president?

I’ve been worried recently about New Jersey and Wisconsin. These states elected governors a few years ago and they probably expected that a big job like running a state would be more than a full time job.

But instead, their chief executives are running around the country auditioning for a new job while their constituents get to scratch their heads and wonder who is minding the ship.

Governors Scott Walker of Wisconsin and Chris Christie of New Jersey think that they deserve a promotion. But instead of handing over the reins to a new governor while they campaign, these supposedly hard-working men are actually celebrating their day jobs. What if there’s another big storm like Sandy and Jersey is unprepared? What if Wisconsin union members decide to strike one day and the state is left without basic services?

Can these governors just phone in directions from New Hampshire or Iowa?

I’ve always thought that if an elected leader wants run for a higher office, they should be forced to resign. If you want to be President, which now requires almost two years of full-time campaigning, then you shouldn’t hang on as governor or senator or congressman.

All the presidential candidates talk about economic growth and creating jobs — well, wouldn’t stepping aside create new jobs?

Even though you may not agree with candidates like Carly Fiorina or Ben Carson or former governors Rick Perry or George Pataki, at least they aren’t campaigning on the tax-payer’s dime. Hillary Clinton has logged lots of hours in government jobs — first as senator and then later as Secretary of State, but now her plate is to be an unpaid employee of the Obama administration.

Then there is Donald Trump — maybe it would be better if he went back to his day job making lots of money by hanging his name on buildings or golf courses. But because there is no better way to get attention these days than running for President, Trump has found a new way to keep his name on the front page of the tabloids.

Remember the Post headline: “Best Sex I Ever Had,” from his second wife Marla Maples? That was more than 20 years ago and now The Donald has figured out new ways to make splashy headlines. If he is elected president, there will be many New Yorkers who might make their way to the Mexican border to escape the inevitable chaos in our country.

And speaking of jobs, Jeb Bush recently spoke about making the U.S. economy grow by four percent annually, which would require the creation of many new jobs, something that seems counterintuitive in our modern computer- and app-assisted economy. If cars will soon be self-driving, if computers and robots will be able to replace many humans, and if new markets opened up by the Trans Pacific Treaty will flood the market with workers willing to work well below the pathetic U.S. minimum wage, then that sucking noise will be all the good jobs leaking out of our country.

I have yet to hear any presidential candidate articulate a plan to rebuild our infrastructure and transit systems to keep pace with the rest of the world. Japan and China have bullet trains, but in the world’s leading economy it takes four hours to get from New York to Boston. Our roads are choked with traffic and we have outdated highways and bridges. We lose millions of hours of productivity by allowing workers to sit in traffic each day or commute in slow trains and buses.

But there is one thing to rejoice about: A bold move by President Obama to change the criteria for eligibility for overtime pay. Now, workers who make up to $50,000 are eligible for overtime pay if they work more than 40 hours — a middle-class boon. Perhaps through labor policies like this we can achieve wage growth for the lower-and-middle-class.

With one stroke of the pen, the President gave a raise to thousands of American workers. It seems like our lame duck President is working more than full time in his last 500 days.

At least someone in public office is providing constituents with their money’s worth.

BRONX CENTENARIANS FETED AT BREAKFAST

Two Bronx centenarians, Antonia Bodon and Melinda Ferrer, each celebrated birthdays during EssenMED House Calls’ 10-Year Anniversary Partner’s Breakfast at Tosca Marquee on Thursday, July 9. The breakfast acknowledged EssenMED House Calls’ decade of service as well as the partners, staff and patients who have contributed to the organization’s success. Bodon turned 107 and Ferrer 106. They are both home-bound individuals who depend on in-home medical care services provided by EssenMED House Calls.

SCHUYLER HILL CIVIC HOSTS CARNIVAL

On Saturday, July 11, the Schuyler Hill Civic Association hosted its annual Carnival, with more than 50 children in attendance. The event included numerous games, face painting and temporary tattoos. The children also enjoyed cotton candy, popcorn, zeppolles, hot dogs, chicken nuggets and soft drinks.

The heat is on! Nine a.m. and already its 90 degrees outside; it’s going to be a scorcher. I’ve already been outside to water, I used the watering can and rain barrel until it got too hot and I had to move inside to water the whole place a good spray. And now, while I wait to hear from the CSA truck driver with his ETA, I will try to tie up the loose ends I’ve been dropping. I had a little time this weekend to work through the stack of back issues of the Bronx Times’ reporter. I love to read all of the other ‘civic center’ columns and yes, I do read my own!

I set an intention in February this year to do yoga for 100 consecutive days. I made it to 60. I am pretty proud of myself actually. I mean, I’m not even getting the weaning off of the statin drug I was on. One of the side effects I was suffering from the statins was pain in my left shoulder and right knee. Sixty days of yoga definitely helped with that as well as with the depression that the drugs caused. So while I did not stick with the intention for the time I was shooting for, the duration I lasted was enough to help me through some of the roadblocks.

Why did I end up stopping? I remembering getting nicer and the call of the garden won over. Being outside with my hands in the dirt is my yoga too, it’s my zen. Weeding is my meditation. The whole process has been successful in that I have begun to see more clearly my place in the world. And I’m pretty sure that place is in the garden and, consequently, the kitchen.

I never did hear back from anyone else besides my friend Jill when I asked if anyone was trying to find ways to simplify their lives. I’m hoping that it is something that will get me the traction I keep feeling with sharing me. So many times I’ve found myself getting upset or wrapped up in some conversation on social media, something I swore I would never do! I have been reasonably successful in the last few weeks at scrolling past the things that make me crazy and concentrating on the things that make me happy.

That goes for real life too, I recently gave up a responsibility with the Locust Point Civic Association and have never been happier just being a plain old board member.

The CSA has been really great this year, lots of new members so a few growing pains with getting people to follow rules. But a friend of mine recently joined a CSA in her Westchester County neighborhood and was telling me about the email her group received from their CSA coordinators and I realized we all have the same problems!

Our members have been enjoying the selection of Lewis Waite Farm CSA with the depression that the CSA.

Every year the board prepares its budget priorities for our service area. We are asking all the community organization to forward to us their ideas about the city’s Capital and Expense budgets. Ideas in the past included new sewer lines, extra police, better lighting. We are looking for any ideas that you think will make the community better. Please forward your ideas to the Board office at bx10@cb.nyc.gov.

In response to reports of incidents where young women have been threatened in the community, the board is in conjunction with our elected officials will be scheduling a meeting with the police to obtain updates on their efforts and explore public safety strategies.

The New York Botanical Garden, Bronx River Parkway (Exit 7W) at Fordham Road, will offer the following events:

FRIDA KAHLO: Art, Garden, Life, through November 1: The first solo presentation of artist Frida Kahlo's work in more than ten years, FRIDA KAHLO: Art, Garden, Life focuses on the artist's engagement with nature in her native country of Mexico, as seen in her garden and decoration of her home, as well as her complex use of plant imagery in her work. Opening on May 16, The New York Botanical Garden's exhibition is the first to focus exclusively on Kahlo's intense interest in the botanical world.

The exhibition reimagines Kahlo's studio and garden at Casa Azul (Blue House) in the Enid A. Haupt Conservatory, and includes a rare display of more than a dozen original paintings and drawings on view in the LuEsther T. Mertz Library's Art Gallery. Accompanying programs invite visitors to learn about Kahlo's Mexico in new ways through poetry, lectures, hands-on activities for children, and Mexican-inspired shopping and dining.

The Mexico City of Frida and Diego, through November 1: This panel exhibition presents museums and other sites in Mexico City where Frida Kahlo's and Diego Rivera's artwork and personal collections can be viewed, conveying the scope of their artistic and intellectual contributions to the cultural life of Mexico.

The Two Fridas, through November 1: Inspired by Kahlo's self-portrait, The Two Fridas (1939), contemporary artist in Residence Humberto Spindola uses reeds, tissue paper, and a Mexican folk art technique to recreate the two figures and dresses with a trompe l'oeil effect that closely resembles fabric.

Frida's Flora and Fauna, through September 27; 10 a.m. – 5:30 p.m.: Experience the inspiration Frida Kahlo found in the natural world that can be seen and appreciated in her artwork. Children can use scientific tools throughout the Adventure Garden to investigate plants and animals growing and living in New York City. Other expressive activities include play at Frida's Puppet Theater and in the La Casita Azul playground, as well as creating self-portraits using seasonal colors, fruits, and vegetables, just like Frida might!

The Two Fridas: Through November 1: The works of influential 20th-century Mexican poet Octavio Paz, many referencing native plants and flowers, will be displayed amid the seasonal beauty of the Garden's own collections.

Cooking with Frida, through November 1: & 4 p.m.: Hands-on activities bring together children and their families to experiment with the many regional tastes of Frida Kahlo's Mexican kitchen. Cooking demonstrations feature recipes inspired by those served to friends and family, using nutritious, garden-based ingredients. Visitors can explore and tend to the plant staples of Mexican cuisine growing throughout the Family Garden: beans, tomatoes, peppers, chilies, herbs, and more.

Mario Batali's Kitchen Gardens, through November 2: 1:30–6 p.m.: Garden beds are planted with plants featured in the favorite recipes of the chefs from Mario Batali's restaurants. Children can explore the gardens to solve Mario's Menu Mystery game.

Dig! Plant! Grow!: Pickle Me! Saturday, August 1 and Sunday, August 2: 1:30–6 p.m.: Plants and imaginations grow at the Howell Family Garden, where children are encouraged to play in the dirt. Display gardens, such as the Global Gardens and the Bean Tunnel or Salad Bowl, and daily interactive gardening activities delight and inspire.

¡Cámara, Acción! Mexican Film Series, Saturday, August 1 and Sunday, August 2: 1:30 – 4:30 p.m.: The film series includes the Academy Award-winning Frida (2002) every Saturday and a revolving series of documentaries and shorts on Sundays, presented in partnership with Cinema Tropical.

Live Music: Mexico Beyond Mariachi, Saturday, August 1 and Sunday, August 2: 2:30 & 4:30 p.m.: Mexico Beyond Mariachi's performances form a bridge that connects audiences to the living traditions of Mexico through a musical journey that begins with the conquest and leads to the present day.

Spotlight on Agave: A Tequila Story, Saturday, August 1 and Sunday, August 2: The rich history and long-standing traditions of Mexican tequila will be told through a living presentation of the plant at the heart of the mezcal trade, or an informative look into the botany and craftsmanship of one of the world's favorite spirits. Sponsored by Jose Cuervo Reserve.

The Bronx Trolley First Wednesday Arts & Culture Tour, a program of the Bronx Council on the Arts (BCA), rolls again on August 5 with an evening of exhibitions at BCA's Lower East Art Gallery @ Hostos, Bronx Museum of the Arts, Metropolitan College of New York-Bronx Extension Center, BronxArtSpace and Wall Works Gallery. The evening begins and ends at Longwood Art Gallery @ Hostos on the campus of Hostos Community College. Admission to venues is free and all are welcome to hop on board the trolley and enjoy them. Directions to Hostos: Subway: 2, 4 & 5 trains; Bus: BX1, BX2 & BX19; all destinations to 149th Street/Grand Concourse.

August 5th's trolley begins at 5:00pm at Longwood Art Gallery @ Hostos (Hostos Community College, 450 Grand Concourse at 149th Street) with a meet-and-greet reception for Freddy Rodriguez. My Geometrics 1970-2002, a solo exhibition featuring paintings, drawings and mixed media works between 1970 and 2002, created by the Dominican-born, New York-based artist and curator by Rocío Aranda-Allvardo. This is the first exhibition to chart the artist's expansive and unique approach to geometric abstraction since his formative training during the apogee of Minimalism. While Rodriguez's early work drew inspiration from Piet Mondrian, Frank Stella and Mark Rothko—whose paintings he encountered at MoMA—his work soon came to reference historical, emotional and political subjects often deemed anti-theoretical to pure formalism.

First comes the physical: the hard-edged abstraction of the 70's joins content in the form of human figures; sensual references to music, dancing and culture emerge. In the 80's, crisp geometric lines co-exist with fluid, loose brushstrokes. Sensuality again breaks through. The 90's see the historical and political take center stage: color and form combine with sugar, dirt, ground glass and peppercorns to evoke the European “Encounter” with the New World. Priestly vestments and slashed canvases reference the sexual abuse scandals in the Catholic Church. This is not your average geometry.

The trolley bell clangs at 5:30, 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. indicating the trolley's departure from Hostos on its way to the evening's cultural events. The trolley is your free ticket to a cultural tour along the South Bronx Cultural Corridor of the lower Grand Concourse. The trolley runs on the First Wednesday of each month (except January and September), providing Bronxites and tourists alike a fun way to travel via a replica of an early 20th-century trolley car. Passengers are given the opportunity to sample several of the area's hottest cultural attractions, dining establishments and entertainment venues along the way.
John Scuoppo was at an affair some time ago and was fascinated to meet a Tuskegee Airman by the name of Lt. Colonel Floyd Carter there.

He mentioned my name and obtained the colonel’s home address and phone number for me. I was ill at the time and couldn’t drive so I asked Nick DiBrino to stop by to see him and get some preliminary information for me.

The colonel is quite a busy man so finding a mutually convenient time to get together with me proved challenging and then he had to postpone a couple of meetings when his wife was hospitalized. In the interim, we had many very pleasant chats and I got to know the colonel quite well. The Tuskegee Airmen, for those who don’t know, were a unit of African-American pilots established in Tuskegee, Alabama in 1941. Prior to that, African Americans were banned from flying in the military service which was still segregated.

The Tuskegee Airmen proved not only that they were excellent pilots, but also that they were fearless in combat.

They were credited with shooting down over 100 German airplanes and destroying an even larger number on the ground. They also sunk one destroyer and bombed almost a thousand war vehicles including railroad cars.

They received several Unit Citations and numerous medals, including eight Purple Hearts, and about 150 Distinguished Flying Crosses for their valiant efforts.

There weren’t all tough times as they occasionally found something to bring a smile to their faces.

One comical story he is fond of relating concerns the governor of Alabama, who was a well-known bigot.

One very dark and starless night, Colonel Carter was on a training flight in a very noisy B-25 when on the spur of the moment he decided to play a trick on the governor whom he knew was giving an important speech at the Capitol Building in Montgomery, which was only about a half hour flight away. He knew it was dark enough that his identification markings could not be seen from the ground. When he was directly over the building, he turned the props up as high as he could creating a racket that could be heard for miles around and then he quickly disappeared into the night chuckling all the way home at disturbing the governor’s solemn speech.

Floyd J. Carter was born in historic Norfolk, Virginia and joined the U.S. Army Air Corps in 1943. He graduated from the Tuskegee Flight School on March 23, 1946 as a flight officer in class 46-A-TE.

It was at the school where he met his wife, Arthurine, who worked there repairing airplanes. The couple moved to the Bronx in 1953 where they still reside.

The colonel would later join the Air Force Reserve where he flew missions during the Berlin Airlift. He also served as the first African American commander of the 732nd Airlift Squadron from 1971 to 1974. His service to his country spans several decades and three wars: World War II, the Korean War and Vietnam. He was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor in 2007 by President George W. Bush. As if his life wasn’t busy enough Lt. Colonel Carter also spent 27 years with the New York City Police Department. His last position there was as a detective in the 40th Precinct.

Assemblyman Michael Blake marched with others during the Disability Pride Parade at Madison Square Park in NYC on Sunday, July 12. The parade, dedicated to 'Inclusion, Awareness, Visibility', had over 1,000 people in attendance. Mayor de Blasio kicked off the event, dubbing July 'Disability Pride Month'. The parade also celebrated the 25-year anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990.

Monroe College's student chapter, the National Association of Black Accountants, was named the Top Chapter of the Year of the Eastern Region at the organization's annual conference in Las Vegas. NABA is a professional trade organization that works to increase the participation of African Americans and other minorities in the accounting profession. Monroe College's NABA chapter was founded in 1996.

Children and staff from the Police Athletic League attended the ceremony at City Hall that followed the ticker-tape parade celebration for the U.S. Women's Soccer Team's World Cup Championship on Friday, July 10. At the ceremony, held by Mayor de Blasio, four PAL girls from M.S. 118 greeted the players, while more than 50 PAL participants and staff members cheered on the winning team.

LEGAL NOTICE

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK COUNTY OF BRONX INDEX NO. 354306/2014E, NOTICE TO DEFENDANTS. STATE OF NEW YORK TO: Kim Marie Genvavi a/k/a Kim Marie Genvavi Vanzandt; and Raul Salazar. You are hereby summoned and required to serve upon Nor- ris, McLaughlin & Marcus, PA, plaintiffs’ attorneys, whose address is 875 Third Avenue, 4th Floor, New York, New York 10022, an answer to the verified complaint in a civil action in which ARS In- stigators 2011-2 HVB, LLC is plaintiff and 1314 Blodell Avenue Corp, a/k/a 1314 Blodell Avenue Corp., and others, including you, are defendants pending in the Supreme Court of New York, Bronx County, within 30 days after August 14, 2015 exclusive of said date. If you fail to do so, judgment by default may be rendered against you for the relief demanded in the verified complaint. This action has been instituted for the pur- pose of foreclosing a mortgage and recovering possession of the lands and premises described in a mortgage dated January 4, 2005, recorded in the Office of the Register of the City of the City of New York on January 5, 2005 under CRRN 2005000045162, made by 1314 Blodell Ave, Corp. a/k/a 1314 Blodell Avenue Corp. (“1314 Blodell”) to Hudson Valley Bank, N.A. and covering real estate located at 1314 Blodell Avenue, Bronx, New York. Plaintiff is the holder of the Mortgage by way of an Assignment re- corded on June 28, 2012 in the Office of the City Register of the City of New York under CRRN 2012000256276. You, Kim Marie Genvavi a/k/a Kim Marie Genvavi Vanzandt and Raul Salazar are made a defen- dent because on January 4, 2005 you and others executed a Commercial Guaranty in favor of HVB by which you guaranteed all monies due under the Note and Modification Agreement, which is secured by the mortgage. To the ex- tent, the value of the mortgaged premiss- es is insufficient to satisfy the amounts due under the Note, Plaintiff seeks a de- ficiency judgment against you. You, Raul Salazar are made a defendant be- cause you hold a judgment against 1314 Blodell in the amount of $1,278,347.50, which judgment was docketed in the City Register of the City of New York’s Office on September 13, 2010 under control number 010276849-01. This lien or other interest in the Mortgaged Premises is subsequent and/or subordinate to the mortgage being foreclosed herein. You are named herein for the purposes of terminating your interest in the mortg- aged premises. Dated: July 9, 2015.

Allerton traffic snarl nightmare

This hazardous situation is also problematic for parents walking their children to P.S. 96 via Bronx Park East and attempting to cross at Allerton Avenue with vehicles trapped in the crosswalk, he added.

Last October, Schweizer; Jeremy Warneke, Community Board 11 district manager and Vincent Prezioso, CB 11 Transportation Committee chairman, gave New York City Department of Transportation Borough Commissioner Constance Moran a walkthrough of the traffic-plagued area and they were told the DOT would offer to conduct a traffic study.

Residents have suggested widening the Bronx River Parkway entrance for two-vehicle use as well as banning the left turn only traffic signal for motorists exiting the parkway from turning onto Bronx Park East and interfering with Allerton Avenue commuters attempting to enter the parkway.

“The traffic congestion during the a.m. rush is very dangerous for pedestrians and drivers alike,” Schweizer said. “We need DOT to listen to the community’s suggestions on changing the current traffic signals and roadway conditions.”

A spokeswoman for the NYC DOT explained the department is aware of the community’s concerns at the Allerton Avenue entrance to the Bronx River Parkway at Bronx Park East and is evaluating several factors at this intersection including turn signals and signal timing.

As with every community concern, the DOT spokeswoman explained the agency works with local community boards and elected officials to obtain valuable input that plays a significant role in its work.

The spokeswoman added the intersection’s evaluations should be completed by the end of this summer.

“My office is working with the Department of Transportation to identify options for reducing traffic congestion in the Allerton section of the Bronx. I am optimistic that DOT’s traffic study will result in a more fluid traffic pattern at the entrance to the Bronx River Parkway,” Councilman Ritchie Torres said.

“I will be in communication with DOT and community stakeholders to ensure the necessary measures are taken so that residents have an easier commute.”

Without traffic agents directing traffic, the Bronx River Parkway entrance at Allerton Avenue becomes clogged, contributing to rush-hour back up and accidents.

Assemblyman Sepulveda consoles Yvonne Rodriguez as they stand beside the memorial to her slain son, Ray Rosello.

Community and has worked with Assemblyman Sepulveda on numerous projects.

Her annual summer block party which encourages community involvement is set for Saturday, July 25, and will go on as planned.

It will be dedicated to her son’s memory.

Assemblyman Sepulveda, who lives a few blocks from where Rosello was shot, explained that over the last couple of years there has been a concentration of shootings occurring in the corridor composed of Vyse Avenue, East 180th Street, East 181st Street, Vidalia Park and Daly Avenue.

In addition to the Rosello shooting, Sepulveda said a 26-year old man was shot in the head as he was driving his convertible with the top down.

Jefferson then lost control of his vehicle and drove up onto the sidewalk before crashing into a plywood construction barrier near East 180th Street.

He was also taken to St. Barnabas Hospital and is listed in critical condition, a NYPD spokesman confirmed.

The assemblyman has allocated capital funds for police cameras to be installed along this troubled corridor which are expected there by February.

Sepulveda has also been in contact with the 48th Precinct’s commanding officer about continuing the impact zone program and bringing back community policing for the community.

He has also called for an increase in gun control to prevent the flood of guns into New York.

“The Bronx is bleeding and it’s our youngest citizens who are being affected the most,” he said. “We must come together as a community to put a stop to this violence.”

The assemblyman urges community members to report illegal guns and suspicious activity to the NYPD’s Operation Gun Stop Program.

Started in 2001, Operation Gun Stop is privately funded by the New York City Police Foundation and has since led to over 5,500 arrests and the removal of 3,350 illegal weapons from New York City streets.

Rewards of $1,000 are available for anonymous tips phoned into 1-866-GUN-STOP.

“If you know someone with a gun, call the NYPD’s Operation Gun Stop hotline so that we can remove as many guns from the street as possible. Too many times I’ve had to console mothers who have lost their children to gun violence. It must come to an end,” the assemblyman expressed.

Anyone with information about Rosello’s shooting is asked to call NYPD Crime Stoppers at (800) 577-TIPS.

All calls are kept strictly confidential.

PIPE DREAMS

By Bob Connolly

Wasted Effort

As of 7/13, John Kerry has now been sitting at the table 17 days, supposedly negotiating with Iran for a nuclear agreement. As far as I can see Iran is following their usual successful tactic with the US - they keep stalling until the US negotiators run out of patience and agree to undesirable conditions just to get any kind of an agreement. How would Trump negotiate?

Well, the Iranians were able to get exactly what they wanted all along - removal of all of the financial sanctions that supposedly had been removed from consideration. Now they are able to pay for what they want to do.

Summer League

I watched Kris Porzingis play in that opener in Vegas and was impressed. He went to the hoop confidently and blocked a couple of shots. I can see a need for him to bulk up but he's only 19 and doesn't have his "man-muscles" yet. I think when their gotten he has the possibility of turning into a Shaq type center. I hope.

Ian Begley wrote about his 2nd game: "In spots, Porzingis was able to establish strong post position. This is something that many thought the rookie would struggle with because of his slight 230-pound frame. He may have a tough time with this against NBA rotation play."

Former Manhattan star enjoys success overseas

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

Rhamel Brown’s future was blossoming across the Atlantic Ocean as his legacy back home was growing as well.

The Brownsville native and former Manhattan College star watched the Jaspers reach a second straight NCAA tournament while he was making a name for himself playing in Israel. Brown was part of a senior group that led the Bronx school to its first Big Dance since 2004 a year earlier. Manhattan repeating as MAAC champions only furthered the winning culture Brown and his teammates left behind.

"It makes it much more special because we know we left a foundation behind," Brown said. "It wasn't just a great team for that one year. We put together and brand and a program that can last for a long time."

With his alma mater continuing to flush, Brown did the same. He enjoyed a successful first season overseas playing for Maccabi Hod Hasharon in the Israeli national league. He started at center and averaged 11.2 points, 11.6 rebounds and 2.5 blocks per game. It was a superb experience getting his first taste of pro ball.

"I met some great people," Brown said. "Got to play in a great country. It was just a different experience and I value it a lot."

There were a number of adjustments he had to make both on the court and culturally. The 6-foot-7 Brown was away from home for a long period of time before things fell into place.

"They wanted me to do that a little more because I had a speed advantage," Brown said. "I'm smaller than most fives." One thing that did make life a little easier was the FIBA goaltending rules. Unlike in the NBA, FIBA rules allow players to knock the ball off the rim after it touches the cylinder without being called for a violation. It was something the already dominant Brown adjusted to and furthered to his advantage guarding the basket.

"I never really blocked shots once they get to the rim," Brown said. "Being able to do that helps me a little bit."

Brown did all this while enjoying seeing his former teammates having success at Manhattan, continuing the legacy he left behind.

"I am so proud of those guys," Brown said. "I know they had the capability of doing it because they are so talented. They played so together. They are just a hard working bunch of guys and I am so proud of them."

He's done plenty to be proud of as well.

Bronx native Hardy takes game to next level in Turkey

By Joseph Stasewski

Dwight Hardy took the next step in his career and as a person last year.

The Bronx native and former St. John’s University men’s basketball star already had four successful seasons playing in Italy under his belt, including an MVP campaign with Tuscany Pistoia in 2012. Hardy felt it was time to further challenge himself and signed with Trabzonspor of the top league in Turkey.

“My role increased and I think the Turkish league has competition that is a little bit better than the Italian League so I just wanted to see how I would do,” Hardy said.

He started and distinguished himself as one of the league’s top players. The 6-foot-2 Hardy was ninth in the league’s top players. The distinguished himself as one of

He also led his team scoring with 15.7 points per game. He also led his team with three assists for contests. Trabzonspor finished 16-14 and his time there brought out some of the best in him. He was asked to be the club’s defensive stopper along with its top scorer. Hardy felt he benefited from his time there so much that will return to Trabzonspor next season.

“We had a great year,” Hardy said. “I played with some great guys. It definitely made me a better player.”

His role also further brought out his leadership qualities. Hardy has traditionally been a lead by example type player, deferring to veteran players and other guys who are better suited to be vocal. That couldn’t be the case with Tuscany Pistoia. It was Hardy who was thrust into the role and grew comfortable in it.

“I became a better vocal leader out there last season,” Hardy said. “I felt that helped me to improve all around. My having to do that made our team better.”

The year also saw a shift in his personal life has he married his girlfriend of 10 years. He is spending his offseason again playing streetball all over New York City this summer. There is a new wrinkle however with the first ever Ball Up Million Dollar Summer Challenge tournament at John Jay College in Manhattan.

New York City’s winning team receives $50,000 and a chance to play the five others winners from late July for $500,000. Hardy, who played with R2K/Ooh-Way, lost in the final to Sean Bell 81-67 on July 19. He was impressed with the tournament despite the tough defeat.

“It brings the best competition in the city and it is extra money to whoever wins,” Hardy said. “I think it is a great opportunity for everybody who is participating in this tournament.”

Hardy made the most of his opportunity overseas this season, showing this is plenty of room for him still to grow as a player and a person.

“Older guys would be the leader,” Hardy said. “I wasn’t the older guy this year, but they looked up to me so. I knew that was the right opportunity for me to do it.”

Motivated Poindexter in search of scholarship, elite status

By Joseph Stasewski

Cardinal Hayes coach C.J. O’Neil has a warning for anyone standing in Tim Poindexter’s way on the football field next season.

“He is going to play his senior year and some people are going to get some physical [football],” the coach said. They are going to get banged up because he is playing with a chip on his shoulder to prove he is the best football player in the city.”

Poindexter began doing that as a sophomore as the Cardinals physical star running back, leading his team to the CHSFL Class AA title. A pre-season shoulder injury last year hindered his performance early on and the rising senior finds himself needing to prove himself again and put his name back in that discussion.

“A lot of people expected a lot last year and I didn’t live up to expectations so this year I am playing with a chip on my shoulder to pass the expectations,” Poindexter said.

The 5-foot-10, 185-pound Poindexter is determined to do that and raise his stock with colleges and try to earn a scholarship as a safety now. He has interest from MAC schools like UMass, Toledo, Ohio and Buffalo. Stony Brook and Fordham are also in the picture.

Poindexter earned offers early on from the likes of Rutgers and Boston College as running back, but many big programs are taking a wait and see approach with him as a safety because of his size. He needs to prove he can cover players bigger than him.

“He is going to have to play his butt off and see who comes calling,” O’Neil said.

He more than proved what a combination of speed and power he is with the ball in his hand as a sophomore. Poindexter 1,379 yards and 20 touchdowns He never got to build off that momentum. The injury to his shoulder kept him out of games early as Hayes made the jump to the CHSFL’s AAA division. Poindexter couldn’t hit has hard and use his strength to get the extra yard. Junior Justin Covington excelled in the role as the team’s primary back.

“That’s the only way i know how to play. so being limited wasn’t the best thing for me,” Poindexter said.

Poindexter however showed he could be a force on the other side of the ball also at safety. He made 48 tackles and collected two interceptions.

“I don’t think anyone is questioning his ability to tackle in space,” O’Neil said. “His ability to tackle in space is as good as any kids that I’ve had.”

Poindexter knows what he wants and understands what is at stake. He plans on accomplishing it all the only way he knows how with some physical football. His opponents have been warned.

“He is going to leave a path of carnage on the the road to that,” O’Neil said.
Junior Olympics, here we come!!

Velocity Track Club New York continues to be blessed! On August 2nd, we will travel to Norfolk State University in Norfolk Virginia to compete in the 2015 AAU (Athletic Amateur Union) Junior Olympic Games. To advance to the 2015 AAU Junior Olympic Games, we had to advance from our New York Metropolitan District Championship and then travel Veterans Memorial Stadium, New Britain, CT for the Regional 1 Championship, Regional 1, which consist of Adirondack / Connecticut / New England / New Jersey and New York Metropolitan.

To advance, an athlete needed to finish in the top six (6) in a Running Event, top five (5) in a Field Event, and/or the top four (4) in a Relay/Multi-Event. Top 3 finishers in each individual event and top 3 relays received medals. “I’m pleased to say that VTC had 22 athletes advance to the Junior Olympic Games, plus we won 14 medals, 5 Gold, 2 silver and 7 bronze. This is a great accomplishment, Regional 1 is one of the hardest regional to compete in and for us to have 22 student athletes advance to the nationals is a blessing!” The following athletes that advance and medal are: Avery Philip.

Winning the Metro Eagles Invitational Track Meet

2nd Shot Put, Julian Caldwell 3rd 100 meter, DaJion James 1st Javelin, Don-tae Lindo 1st 1500 meter, Adrian Swift-Henry 1st 100 meter hurdles, Olyvia Burrell 3rd 100 meter & long jump, River Sampson 3rd 100 & 200 meter dash, Lisha McKenzie 2nd 80 meters hurdles, Shantae Leach 1st long jump, Jaelah Eagle 2nd 200 meter hurdles and Pearl Webster-Rutledge 1st shot put & 3rd Discus.

The following athletes who also advance to the Junior Olympic Games are: Darius Jones, Jordan Ingram, Matthi- aus-Love-Anderson, Kaseam Shand, Jordan Samuels, Kristan Cadiz-Domville, Darius Gordon, Brianna Bur-rell, Danielle Jackson, Nariah Mathis & Dominique Jackson.

On Friday, July 17th, we will be traveling West Chester University in West Chester, Pennsylvania for the United Age Group Track Coaches Association, Inc. (UAGTCA) Invitation.

Velocity Track Club New York will be having its semi-annual orientation on Friday, August 21st at 7:00pm in the Bartow Community Center. If you know a child between the ages of 6 & 10 that is interested in track & field please have parent attend orientation.

Velocity Track Club New York is a 501C3 Non for profit. 100% of your donation will go to help our children. For additional information, you can go to our web site Velocitytrack.org or contact me, Coach Winston Dinkins at 914-441-6196 or email me at watch@ aol.com.

Porzingis again showed a nice touch around the basket and moved well without the ball, setting screens and cutting well.

He also moved his feet well on the defensive end. He had a strong challenge at the rim on a Jordan Clarkson drive late in the fourth quarter but also struggled with because of his defender and rebounder but let us keep this in the realm of reality:
