

SEA OF LITTER STORMS BEACH

Waves of disgusting debris spoils the 'Bronx Riviera'

BY ALEX MITCHELL

Will a new NYC Parks Department initiative keep the 'Riviera of the Bronx' any cleaner?

As the much-awaited warm weather continues, Orchard Beach is once again welcoming toes on its sand.

But along with the million bathers that will frequent the beach this year will be tons and tons of garbage: dirty baby diapers, water bottles, empty beer containers and rotting, half-eaten food.

"Nobody throws anything away at the beach anymore. People drink and eat and leave their garbage on the sand as if a busboy is going to come around to pickup after them," said one beachgoer. "It's like the garbage cans are there for display. I saw someone change a diaper on the sand and just leave it there to float out into the water, and that's not even half of the stuff that washes out from the shore," another beachgoer added.

The same sun worshipper has also seen a large influx of glass bottles left behind that eventually end up buried under the sand. "People step on these buried bottles and cut their feet all the time, and if the bottles that don't get kicked under sand they just end up floating into the water," the beach lover said.

The only message in these bottles and other trash is that

What a relief: FP comfort station

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

Park advocates are relieved that their need 'to go' has been addressed.

Community members gathered at Ferry Point Park to dedicate a new comfort station on Friday, June 8, that will also double as a performance area.

The ceremony was approximately 15 years in the making, according to park advocates.

Even though on warm summer days the west side of the park would draw crowds of 5,000 to 8,000 people, there was no public restrooms for the visitors to use, according to park advocates, other than port-o-sans.

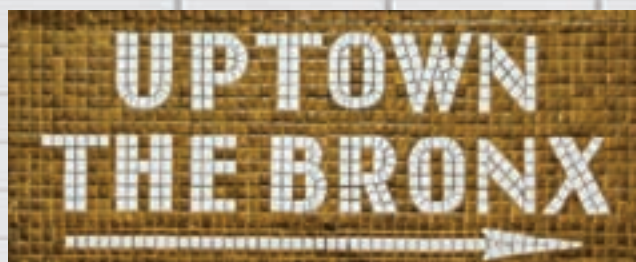

According Mitchell Silver, Parks commissioner, the design of the bathrooms is purposely elevated to withstand flooding.

The comfort station is on the northwest side of the park, near the soccer fields, is in an area that sustained flooding during Hurricane Sandy.

'New York Salutes America' on June 28th

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

The whole community is invited to a fireworks show that has become a borough tradition at Orchard Beach.

The annual New York Salutes America fireworks extravaganza, which is also a celebration of the communities comprising the borough, will take place at the beach in Pelham Bay Park on Thursday, June 28.

The event, which features a fireworks extravaganza by the world-renowned Fireworks by Grucci, is also a boardwalk festival that features musical entertainment and a program at 7 p.m. at the beach's bandstand, followed by fireworks at around 9:20 p.m.

New York Salutes America is the borough's largest fireworks show and serves as a precursor to the start of Independence Day events, with thousands expected to attend.

The Bronx Tourism Council produces the event, which is hosted again this year by Senator Jeff Klein and Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr.

Klein has co-hosted the show since he was first elected to the senate in 2004.

The senator said it was a tradition that he will always work to continue, adding he has now coordinated the event with two borough presidents to make the fireworks extravaganza happen every year.

"I think our goal is to ultimately have it as the premier fireworks display, rivaling what Macy's does," said Klein. "It is a way for the Bronx to come together and celebrate our diversity and our communities, and is an early start to the Fourth of July."

The borough president appears to be equally enthusiastic to be co-hosting the event.

"Every year, my office is thrilled to partner with Senator Jeff Klein to bring fireworks to Orchard Beach as part of the 'New York Salutes America' celebration," said Diaz. "This year, I encourage everyone to come out with their friends and family to enjoy the fireworks, our annual empanada eating contest, music, food and fun as we begin our city's celebration of our nation's independence."

For the fourth year, the Bronx Empanada Eating Contest comes back to the fireworks extravaganza and boardwalk festival, featuring mini-empanadas from the Havana Café.

Sophie Thierfelder, Bronx Tourism Council deputy director, said as of press time that the council is still finalizing the roster of sponsors for this year.

These sponsors typically include companies and non-profits from around the borough and beyond, according to previous Bronx Times articles.

About two months of planning go into preparing the event, said Thierfelder, who described it as a "beautiful event" that will have significance for United States citizens or those who want to celebrate the country's history, including the fireworks and a concert on the beach.

SENATOR JEFF KLEIN

"It is a nice place to go either with your partner or with friends and family," she said.

Many borough residents enjoy the event every year, with Bob Bieder, a community leader in Westchester Square, saying he makes it a point to attend annually.

"I love the fireworks display; they do a great job," said Bieder, describing New York Salutes America as 'old home week' or a kind of reunion for neighbors.

"It is really nice to get together with all of the community people, neighbors and friends and celebrate the country," said Bieder.

James Monroe Campus honors longtime coach in field renaming

BY SARAH VALENZUELA

On Saturday, June 11, the James Monroe Campus Schools community celebrated their longtime baseball coach and physical education teacher by renaming the field after him.

Going forward, the baseball field on the Monroe Campus will be known as the 'Mike Turo Field,' and friends, family and alumni showed up in full force for their one and only coach, Coach Turo.

"This is such a great honor, but my job is to help get the students to college and to continue their education," said Turo before the ceremony.

"Sure, everyone likes to win, but my job is done when I see them get to that next level of education," continued Turo.

Over the last 41 years, many people have considered Mike Turo to be the best high school baseball coach in New York City.

His record, specifically the six city and 35 borough championships and over 1,325 games won, are a testament to those statements.

But it has been Turo's unmatched dedication and commitment to the students that shaped his legacy.

"There's never a dull moment with coach," said current student and player, Juan Pinero.

"He teaches us to respect ourselves and those around us," added another current student and player, Bryant Bassett.

Mike Turo does not just talk the walk, he walks the walk, and all of his teachings and life lessons are led by examples, not just lectures.

Even the school administrators and his volunteer assistant coaches can attest to his scheduling of early morning practices, which his players are all expected to attend.

"You don't find people like Mike Turo everyday," said Dr. Ramon Namnum, principal of the High School of World Cultures within the Monroe Campus.

"His efforts are more than commendable and he's more than deserving of this," continued Namnum, who helped reach out to Assemblyman Marcos Crespo about getting the field renamed.

Those efforts include the attention he pays to maintaining the field, making sure those who use it keep it clean, even driving to the campus just to make sure tarps are placed on the baseball diamond when it rains.

He even commutes three hours daily to get to and from the school from his home on Long Island, sacrificing family time to stay at the school just to help out.

"Mike is who he is today because he loves what he does and he's really good at it," said Teresalyn Turo, Mike's wife.

"Everyone in the Bronx knows him and the team has become part of our family too," added Danielle and Michael Turo Jr, Teresalyn and Mike's two children.

Among those that came to show their support were one of Coach Turo's former students and players, Francisco Justo, who was recently drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals, and Dr. Cesar Presbott, an area scout for the New York Yankees.

The new field signage with Turo's name will have to wait a bit as the school raises money for a new digital score board and the new sign.

Diego Beekman presents Mott Haven jail alternative

BY ALEX MITCHELL

Before there were talks of a jail, the NYPD tow pound in Mott Haven was being eyed for bigger and better purposes.

Non-profit Diego Beekman Mutual Housing for years has been formulating an expansion plan that included the acquisition of the pound on 141st Street and Concord Avenue.

Being part of a larger, neighborhood revitalization, representatives from Diego Beekman presented their affordable housing and development pitch to Community Board 1 on Thursday, May 31.

The proposed plan would split the superblock containing the current tow pound into two halves, creating two distinct blocks, while expanding adjacent Wales Avenue as a vehicular street that would run through the new development down into East 141st Street.

Major parts of the redevelopment include converting the tow pound grounds and surrounding block into 533 housing units spread throughout 12 buildings on the lot.

The plan also calls for a three-story light-manufacturing plant in addition to a supermarket with a rooftop parking deck.

After extensive research was conducted, Mott Haven was determined to be a 'food desert,' with little variety or healthy options.

Also, recent surveys have found that a supermarket was number one 'service want' by residents of the area.

Improved public safety was also found to be a frequent request while the report also indicated six homeless shelters in close proximity to the Beekman houses.

Diego Beekman's plan extends past developing the tow pound, though.

Two other neighborhood sites had also been eyed for development as both affordable and senior housing at 351 Powers Avenue and 698-700 E. 138th Street.

Worse than Beekman's plan being overruled by a jail, there is expressed concern for Mott Haven's overall welfare if the site is grabbed by the mayor.

Johnnie Johnson a board member of Diego Beekman and lifetime resident of the area talked about the drop in crime she's seen in the past that Mott Haven is not the right spot.

"The Lippman report indicates that the best location for a jail is near civic centers, which is why the courthouse is the right location, nobody wants a jail in their district," Salamanca told residents.

The councilman also stated that constructing a jail on the tow pound site would place three jails within two miles of each another in the south Bronx.

Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. is aware that in the end, a community somewhere in the Bronx will have to host the jail, but he along with many others believe it should not be placed at the police pound site.

Diaz organized a protest of the Mott Haven jail site on May 1 to express his opposition.

"What we're saying is the way (the mayor's office) went about selecting this site, the fact that this community has already toughed it out and that the community has an actual plan for (this spot), this is just not an acceptable location," Diaz said.

four years.

"As soon as we took over, began fixing the buildings, it's become beautiful now, we can breathe now," said Johnson.

If a jail is built on the site, "Property values are going to go way down, who's going to want to buy something over here?" she said.

Johnson also mentioned that many residents approached her saying they would likely move if the jail is built, including herself.

"Everybody is scared of this, they're terrified, it's sad," Johnson said.

During the CB 1 meeting, Councilman Rafael Salamanca Jr. addressed the issue of the new jail, advocating

Graduation

Congratulations to Anthony Alfredo Madia on graduation from Salesian High School on Saturday, June 3.

Your graduation started with the beautiful Baccalaureate Mass on Friday, June 2 and ended with the school's 94th Commencement Exercises on Saturday.

Salesian was the best choice for you. You are now the third Salesian alum in the family, joining your brothers Joey and Johnny. You made many great friends and probably got along better with your teachers and faculty than most young men and possibly adults!

Your graduation day came with much anticipation and excitement, and it ended the same way.

You have made us all so very proud of you!

You have amazing leadership qualities which were recognized by your receiving the school's highest honor: the Silver Eagle Award.

As your class's student body president, you maintained constant energy and good spirit throughout the year as you carried out your daily responsibilities.

Zamechansky receives her award.

You approach life with morality, tenacity, humor and compassion, setting your goals high and motivating yourself and others to reach them.

As you begin your new journey at Iona College, we have that same anticipation and excitement to see where it leads you.

God bless you and the 115 young men who graduated with you at Salesian High School.

Love always, Mom, Dad, and your big brothers Joseph and John.

Newly assigned priest

St. Benedict's Church is welcoming a new priest who was recently assigned to the parish: Fr. Daniel Tuite, confirmed the pastor, Fr. Stephen Norton.

Local businessman John Cerini, who is a lector at St. Benedict's Church in Throggs Neck, said he is thrilled that a third parish priest has been assigned to the church, which should be a great help to the priests already assigned there, he believes.

Real Estate Award

Kathy Zamechansky, president of KZA Realty Group, recently received the Bronx-Manhattan North Association of Realtors' Presidents Award.

The award is given annually to a recipient who the organization's president selects for contributing to the organization's success.

Christina Leigh-Stevens, organization president, said that Zamechansky is a highly respected member of the local real estate industry who helps others in the field by helping them stay informed of trends and issues, as well as chairing a legislative committee.

Edenwald YMCA's ULURP passes in record time

BY SARAH VALENZUELA

After more than 30 years, Edenwald's quest for a community center received its final approval.

The news came to Community Board 12 on Wednesday, May 23, when George Torres, the board's district manager, received an email informing him the YMCA had been approved by the City Council for its Edenwald location.

"Including a community recreation center has been on this community board's registry of district needs for 35 years," said Torres.

"We are beyond excited and for me, I know I'll cry during the breaking ground ceremony," continued Torres.

The Uniform Land Use Review Procedure process for the Edenwald YMCA project was completed in an incredibly short time - three months and one day, the fastest ULURP public approval on the NYC Economic Development Corporation record.

The Council had forgone the hearing process for the project, deferring to Councilman Andy King's approval of the facility and its location.

The project also garnered unanimous support across the entire community and all of its local elected officials.

So, by skipping the Council hearing and vote, the ULURP approval process was sped up, shaving almost nine months off the calendar.

"When everyone is in agreement, that's when government works most effectively," said Councilman King, who grew up in the CB12 community.

He remembered trying to establish a community center in the area as a teen.

Every year a community center location or sponsor was proposed, there were mitigating factors that prevented the plan from moving forward.

Finding a suitable site, obtaining the necessary funding, or locking up support, were some of the issues that delayed the project, according to King.

"The work really began with the community," said Senator Jamaal Bailey referencing the community members he recalled being at the forefront of the calls for a community center.

Bailey also grew up in the area and had long supported the construction of a community center.

"Not just government, but people make things happen and if you don't do something, outcomes don't change," said 91-year-old Alonzo de Castro, another advocate for the community and the community center.

De Castro explained a few years ago he saw an opportunity to gather support for a community center again.

That call to action helped the YMCA get the unanimous support it received.

The YMCA efforts to host the new community center in 2016, were backed by Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie, Mayor de Blasio, Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr. and the EDC.

"We are one step closer to the ground breaking and one step closer to a huge win for the Bronx," said Heastie on the news of the Council's approval.

The YMCA was the first to offer to partner with the community and provide some of their funding towards the project, according to King.

The project, though expected to begin construction this fall, could actually see shovels in the ground as early as the end of the summer, according to Joseph Chan the YMCA's senior vice president of Real Estate and Management Property.

The 50,000 square-foot facility will be located on 1250 E. 229th Street and contain amenities such as new basketball courts and pools, among other features.

TN merchants rally behind BID: heads for CB10 approval

BY SARAH VALENZUELA

The effort to establish the Throggs Neck Business Improvement District is ready to clear its next hurdle, a vote of support from Community Board 10.

On Wednesday, June 27, the NYC Small Business Services will present the Throggs Neck BID application before a CB 10 public hearing at 3077 Cross Bronx Expressway at 7 p.m.

Ten of the 75 BIDs in the city operate in the borough, with Morris Park receiving the most recent designation at the start of 2018.

At first the Throggs Neck Merchants Association had trouble lining up support for the BID because of a lack of understanding of what the BID would mean for merchants and property owners, according to the TNMA.

The TNMA spoke with merchants and property owners individually, going door to door to explain the benefits of a BID and to gather support for it, according to Bobby Jaen the president of the TNMA.

As of Monday, June 11, Jaen reported the TNMA had 139 merchants and property owners on their list of yay's.

"We have way more commercial business owners and merchants who have pledged their support than we're required to have," said Jaen.

In Throggs Neck, the main boundaries of the BID would run from East Tremont Avenue and Bruckner Boulevard, south to Miles and Tremont avenues, plus a handful of businesses north of Bruckner Boulevard as well.

BIDs are funded and maintained by its local stakeholders, the merchants and property owners within the defined boundary.

"How could you say 'no' if the money is from and for the neighborhood," continued Jaen.

The funds to operate a BID are acquired through special dedicated property tax assessments.

Commercial property owners within the geographical BID would have their properties assessed an additional $38 per linear front footage, with corner properties assessed slightly higher, according to the TNMA.

Within the proposed

Many of the businesses on East Tremont Avenue have held their locations for many years.

Throggs Neck BID zone, there are 13 private homes, which will also be assessed an additional $1 a year.

These numbers remain constant every year, unless there is a unanimous agreement to change those assessment rates, according to Jaen.

The future Throggs Neck BID committee would use these funds for the advancement of the neighborhood to attract more consumers and other businesses to the area.

"If you look up and down Tremont Avenue, there are a lot of empty store fronts," said Gerri Colon, another member of the TNMA.

"The BID could change that and try to turn it around for the better," continued Colon.

Some of these improvements could include additional street cleaning and garbage pickup, the installation of security cameras, and creation of spaces of beautification like adding more greenery and sidewalk lights.

As the TNMA amasses more yay's as newer merchants join the effort, Jaen believes the BID will likely receive the necessary amount of support at the CB10 hearing to move forward with its ratification.

If CB 10 vote okays the BID, the process requires five more approvals before it's enacted.

"I have an evacuation plan. I will make sure my family does too."

Street renamed for Bronx vet, LEP Joseph Morabito

BY ROBERT WIRSING

Bronxites saluted a family man who believed in liberty and the 'American Cause'.

On Sunday, June 10, Councilman Mark Gjonaj joined relatives in dedicating the intersection of Laconia and Waring avenues as 'Law Enforcement Professional Joseph A. Morabito Way.'

The heartfelt ceremony honored the late 54-year-old law enforcement and military veteran tragically killed overseas five years ago.

"Today and always we salute Joseph Morabito's dedication to our country, his service and sacrifice will proudly be remembered," stated Gjonaj.

Morabito was born to the late Joseph Anthony and Antoinette Morabito on June 10, 1958 in Allerton.

For over 34 years, he served in law enforcement starting as a military police officer assigned to the U.S.S. Kitty Hawk and Naval Investigation Service.

His impressive resume included time as a U.S. Veterans Administration Investigation Section federal officer; U.S. Department of Defense Police Counter Terrorism Task Force lieutenant; a certified SWAT officer, supervisor and training officer; certified in VIP Protection and Police General Topics Instruction; firearms instructor; Counter Terrorism Task Force School supervisor; a U.S. Treasury Department federal lieutenant officer and an undercover narcotics officer.

Upon retirement in 1999, Morabito and his family moved to Haines Falls, NY, but he often visited the Bronx while on leave.

In 2006, Dyncorp International and the U.S. State Department hired Morabito as an international law enforcement professional. He served his first Iraq tour that same year.

While stationed in Haiti in 2008, he earned 14 commendations and two Service Stars for various missions he conducted as a civilian international police officer and instructor and Haiti National Police Force advisor.

Between 2009 to 2013, Morabito was assigned to various MPUs and task forces while stationed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

He was the Scorpion Police Academy's lead instructor and an advisor to the Iraqi National Police Force.

Morabito accompanied the INP on missions and raids into hostile situations.

According to his wife Andrea, he was affectionally known as 'Joey Pots and Pans' by troops stationed in Afghanistan.

"He became famous for the meals he cooked and he grew into a fatherly figure for the younger soldiers," she shared.

On Saturday, June 8, 2013, Morabito was one of three service members fatally shot by a man dressed in Afghan National Army attire while teaching policing to residents at an Afghan National Army base in Paktika. The gunman was slain by American forces.

The night before, Morabito was awarded his own customized chef's hat and apron and cooking utensils by his fellow troops in a surprise ceremony.

A fan of the Yahoo! cooking show, 'Chow Ciao with Fabio Viviani,' Morabito often shared photos of meals he created in Afghanistan utilizing the show's recipes to its Facebook page.

Chow Ciao aired a special segment 'Behind the Stove: A Tribute to Joe Morabito' on July 2013.

He was posthumously awarded the Secretary of Defense Medal for the Defense of Freedom and a memorial bench near his Haines Fall home.

St. Theresa's Feast returns with a 'family-friendly' push

BY ALEX MITCHELL

It's that time of year again, the St. Theresa's Italian American Family Feast is set for its annual return on Wednesday, June 20 through Sunday, June 24.

The 22nd rendition of the festival is going to see a large effort made to cater to a family-friendly atmosphere.

"We are a family parish which is why we are making this the focus," said Msgr. Thomas Derivan, who has been running the fair for the past four years.

"For the past 22 years, the feast has been a special feature for our parish and community, we look forward to the 22nd annual feast," he added.

The monsignor wrote a letter to his parish that explained the focus towards a family-friendly environment.

"Times change, circumstances change and our feast changes too. Our feast, again, this year will take on a different look, more like the 'Family Party' which began the feast years ago... In this our 91st year, we want to emphasize that it is our families that make 'St. Theresa Strong,'" the letter said.

While the feast in past years had been held in July, this year the parish decided to move it up to late June to coincide with school term ending, encouraging families to attend.

"We will start the feast earlier, at

The St. Theresa's Feast will feature various carnival game stations and attractions.

5 p.m. and will end each night at approximately 9 p.m. with longer hours on Saturday and Sunday. We will also emphasize that this is an Italian-

American Feast with Italian food and pastries. As usual, we will have our Grand Raffle, our Mass each evening, the procession of the statue of St. Theresa on Sunday, and the concert in the church," the monsignor explained.

In all the years of the feast, the closing procession has been Msgr. Devrian's favorite part of the festivities. His letter also took to encouraging feast goers to contribute to grow the feast's grand raffle's outcome.

"I am writing to you at this time to request your help with our Grand Raffle. Following many suggestions, this year the raffle will feature money prizes: First Prize, $25,000; Second Prize, $5000; Third Prize, $1000. We will need your special help with the raffle this year. Because we are making many changes in the feast, we will depend on the raffle to be the mainstay of our feast operation," the letter said.

"We are hoping for a considerable profit from the raffle to assist our church. The number of raffle tickets sold in the past few years has declined. We hope to change that trend both by making the prizes more appealing and by asking your usual generous help. I am enclosing a raffle ticket, one which I hope you will be able to take. You may wish to join someone else in buying the ticket. The price of the ticket will be $100, but we feel the prizes are worth it," the letter added.

Msgr. Devrain encourages anyone that wants additional tickets to contact his rectory.

St. Barnabas Hospital's Filipino nurses celebrate 35 years

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

A local hospital honored a cross section of its workforce that it recruited from overseas and trained decades ago.

St. Barnabas Hospital in 1982 and 1983 helped Filipino nurses immigrate to the United States to staff the hospital, with scores making the 8,000 mile journey on a 19-hour flight to live in a dormitory on the medical center's Fordham campus.

Today, 35 years later, many of the nurses are still employed at St. Barnabas, and on Wednesday, June 6 the hospital celebrated all of their accomplishments in a ceremony and party that honored their dedication to the hospital's patients.

The ceremony, which included a tribute from Dr. David Perlstein, St. Barnabas Hospital's CEO and president, took place in what was the former nurses dormitory: the Braker Building.

"Can you imagine how much courage it took for these nurses, all in their early 20s, to leave their families and come to the Bronx?,"

asked Robert Church, chief nursing officer. "And can you believe the commitment they have given to us at St. Barnabas Hospital by choosing to work here for 35 years?"

Among the nurses in this cohort who still work at the hospital is Vernie Bacolot, who us still on staff along with roughly 30 other Filipino nurses who came to the United States during this period.

Bacolot, who is currently a nurse educator at the hospital and who served as president of the Philippine Nurses Association (New York Chapter), said she started at the hospital in July 1983.

She was directly recruited to come to St. Barnabas, and upon arriving in America moved into the Braker building, which served as temporary housing until they were established enough to get their own spaces.

In many cases, they lived there for years, she said.

"We were excited because we were here in America, and we had heard a lot about it when we were in the Philippines," said Bacolot. "At the same time, there was an adjustment phase: we had to adapt to the culture, the language and the way nursing is practiced here."

The immigrant nurses received a great deal of support from each other as well as the administration, and within six months to a year typically were acclimated to working with patients at the hospital, said Bacolot.

"We had the skills, but we had to adjust to the people around us," she said.

Bacolot has been in the nursing education department since 1992, where she trains new nurses, nurse attendants and nursing clerks.

She described the atmosphere at St. Barnabas Hospital, a community hospital, as being "like one big family" and the administration as very supportive of Filipino nurses.

Bacolot said that she came to America to find "greener pastures" and that there are many nursing schools in the Philippines, the graduates of which are often encouraged to go overseas to find work in order to better support their families.

According to the hospital, there are currently 146 nurses of Filipino heritage on staff, including those in the original recruitment 35 years ago and later hires.

'SMM' reveals borough's crack epidemic gangsters

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

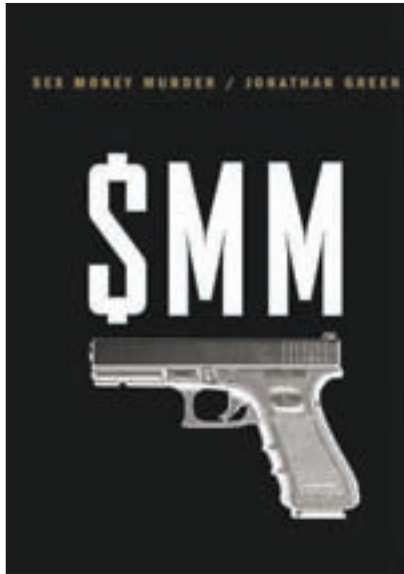

An English-American journalist penned a book about how the crack epidemic had rattled a Bronx community two decades ago.

Award-winning journalist Jonathan Green chronicles an unfortunate era in the borough's past: the crack epidemic and its impact on the Soundview community in the 1980s and 1990s in his new book 'Sex Money Murder: A Story of Crack, Blood, and Betrayal'.

The 384-page true crime story follows four characters through a dramatic and troubling period when crack cocaine ran rampant in the Soundview Houses and the police and federal authorities sought to bring down members of the Sex Money Murder gang.

Two of the people chronicled in the book are gang members Pipe and Suge, who were ultimately taken down by federal law enforcement after a vicious killing in broad daylight of someone suspected of cooperating with cops in 1997.

The book is also notable because it also contains the story from the perspective of law enforcement in the persons of Detective Pete Forcelli, a young crime fighter who worked during this period with a small, specialized group of detectives based out of a converted closet in the 45th Precinct and John O'Malley, a federal law enforcement official who grew up in Soundview but left the community as crime and disorder engulfed it.

"It was important for me that we have both sides of the story," said Green, adding that while O'Malley and Forcelli wanted to tell the story, they were reserved and it took some time to convince everyone to get on board with the book, which took five to six years to complete.

A key incident in the narrative was a murder at a football game on Thanksgiving Day that opens the book and turns out later on, after an exhaustive telling of the origins of the crack epidemic and the four subjects, to be the downfall of gang's reign of terror.

Gunfire was sprayed into a crowd of players and onlookers from Soundview and Castle Hill houses during a holiday football game, which was normally a time of calm, thus leading to an uproar in the community that finally broke the 'code of silence'.

After the incident, individuals that attended the event approached the 43rd Precinct, offering them bits and pieces of information about the shooters, the book relates.

Locales in and around Soundview are mentioned in the book, including Throggs Neck and Country Club, which are recalled as places where respect for the law remained relatively intact during this period, and Clason Point, where O'Malley grew up.

City Island, a favorite restaurant haunt for one gang member, and Co-op City, a relatively safe-haven, are also mentioned.

Even today, people continue to be fearful of speaking about the gang in Soundview, Green said, illustrating the type of impact they had on instilling fear as they participating in a trade

29-year HIV AIDS survivor preaches about risk-taking

BY ALEX MITCHELL

Ed Shaw was an average New Yorker; he lived in Manhattan, held a job and was very social.

In 1988, Ed received the news that rocked him to his core and changed his life.

He tested HIV-AIDS positive at the age of 47.

Now, 29 years later Ed is alive and well, and calls Morris Heights his home.

"I was in denial for five years after my diagnosis, I didn't seek treatment or anything" said Shaw. Ashamed of the stigma that went along with HIV-AIDS during the peak of it's epidemic, Ed became reclusive and cut himself off from almost everyone in his life. "I exhausted all of my money and funds in about a week because I thought I was going to die then and there," said Shaw.

Afterwards, Shaw endured five months of being homeless once he realized death wasn't imminent.

"Five years later, after many hospital visits I finally decided to get treated and open up about what happened to me," said Shaw. As Ed first began opening up about his disease, there were two people in his life that he was concerned about sharing his secret with.

We are one, big community, no matter our age, our race, our sexual orientation. We need to help support one another.

Ed Shaw

"I brought my brother and sister down to the city one night after not speaking to them for years, I told them what happened and broke down in the restaurant, they rushed to hug me and I can still see the look on their faces as soon as I told them, it gets me choked up to this day still," Shaw recalled.

Once he embraced his life and realized HIV-AIDS wasn't a death sentence, Ed began to embrace the powerful community of survivors like himself.

"We are one, big community; no matter our age, our race, our sexual orientation. We need to help support one another," Shaw said.

Now at the age of 76, Ed is still involved in raising awareness and education of the disease throughout numerous discussion groups.

Shaw recently spoke to the NYS Department of Health about HIV-AIDS and community relations on Wednesday, June 13.

"I've worked with so many people and that is what's changed my life, a huge part of it all, is speaking with teens and college kids," Shaw said.

He also mentioned the importance of educating youth, explaining that risky behavior can cause lifelong consequences. It's one of the most rewarding aspects to his work.

Shaw also mentioned many older adults need to recognize the fact that they are at risk too.

"With an older age group there isn't a lot of concern when there should be. They are also at risk and pretending that they aren't won't prevent something from happening," Shaw said.

Another element to the puzzle according to Shaw is different health departments working in unison with one another.

"The state and city health departments need to work more hand-in-hand especially when it comes to engaging the community and you can bet I spoke to that on Wednesday."

Picnic basics: tips to prevent foodborne illness

by Healthy Seniors CliCC

Now that the weather is warm, you may be thinking about more outdoor dining. But ants and bees aren't the only thing you have to worry about at picnics. Eating outdoors in warm weather presents a food safety challenge. Bacteria in food multiply faster at warmer temperatures so the basics of food safety are especially important. Here are some tips to stay healthy while you're having fun.

Wash hands.

If you're in an outdoor setting with no bathroom, use a water jug, some soap, and paper towels. Consider carrying moist disposable towelettes for cleaning your hands.

Keep raw food separate from cooked food.

Don't use a plate that previously held raw meat, poultry, or seafood for anything else unless the plate has first been washed in hot, soapy water. Keep utensils and surfaces clean.

Marinate food in the refrigerator, not out on the counter.

And if you want to use some of the marinade as a sauce on the cooked food, reserve a separate portion. Don't reuse marinade that contained raw meat.

Cook food thoroughly.

Always use a food thermometer. Hamburgers should be cooked to 160°F. If a thermometer is not available, make sure hamburgers are brown all the way through, not pink. Chicken should be cooked to at least 165°F.

Refrigerate and freeze food promptly.

It can be hard to remember while a party is going on, but food should not be left out of the cooler or off the grill for more than two hours.

Keep hot food hot.

Hot food should be kept at or above 140°F. If bringing hot take-out food such as fried chicken or barbecue to an outdoor party, eat it within two hours of purchase. If you're grill-ing yourself, remember to check that your food reaches a safe internal temperature. When reheating food at the outing, be sure it reaches 165°F.

Keep cold food cold.

Cold food should be held at or below 40°F. Foods like chicken salad and desserts that are in individual serving dishes can be placed directly on ice or in a shallow container set in a deep pan filled with ice. Drain off water as ice melts and replace ice frequently.

Message from Councilman Mark Gjonaj

COUNCILMAN MARK GJONAJ

Earlier this week the Manhattan U.S. Attorney's office issued a report which described disturbing allegations of cover ups, lies and blatant attempts to mislead government regulators by NYCHA officials.

As a result of this I feel compelled to call on my colleagues to start a perjury investigation to uncover any and all misleading and false testimony provided by NYCHA leadership in previous testimony before the Council.

This is no longer a case of mismanagement and incompetence. The actions revealed in the U.S. Attorney's report shed light on a coordinated scheme by NYCHA and the administration to mislead the public and demonstrates a callous culture of deception that gave little to no regard to the safety of the 400,000 New Yorkers that live in its developments.

I am calling for this investigation because New York's system of checks and balances is only as strong as the good faith in which its elected officials are willing to provide transparent and honest answers to the public. As a member of the New York City Council I have an institutional obligation as a legislator and a moral obligation as the elected representative of my constituents to hold executive agencies accountable.

The city's charter provides the Council with oversight responsibilities for a very important reason - to ensure that all city agencies are living up to their mission and that they are good stewards of the public's money and trust.

NYCHA has repeatedly violated this trust and has acted with impunity for years. It is time that they are held accountable and to the same standards as everyone else. A private entity would not get away with this, we must not allow NYCHA to do so either.

(Councilman Mark Gjonaj represents the 13th Council District, which includes the Allerton, City Island, Country Club, Edgewater Park, Ferry Point, Locust Point, Morris Park, Pelham Bay, Pelham Gardens Pelham Parkway, Silver Beach, Spencer Estate, Throggs Neck, Van Nest, Waterbury LaSalle, Westchester Square, and Zerega neighborhoods.)

Serrano announces nearly $15M for health centers

Congressman José E. Serrano announced nearly $15 million in federal funding for three community health care centers in the south Bronx.

Awarded through the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Health Resources and Services Administration, the funding has been distributed as follows: $6,141,027 for United Health Care Inc.; $6,284,689 for Morris Heights Health Center; and $2,804,674 for Bronx-Lebanon Integrated Services System.

"The services provided by health centers are vital in underserved communities like the Bronx. With health care expenses expected to go up in New York, thanks to the Trump Administration's efforts to destroy the Affordable Care Act, their work will only be more important in coming years," said Serrano. "The funding announced will allow three key centers in the south Bronx to continue offering excellent health care services as they face growing demand. No one should have to worry about not being able to access basic health services simply because it is too expensive. This funding will help countless families access the care they need and maintain the Bronx's community health."

The Health Center Program provides critical funding for community-based health clinics that provide a full range of integrated care services- from medical and dental care to case management and transportation services- for low-income individuals, regardless of their ability to pay.

More than 24 million Americans across the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the territories rely on health centers to access and receive medical treatment.

BY FRANK VERNUCCIO

The decision to cancel Roseanne Barr's TV series following her inappropriate tweet is wholly inconsistent with Hollywood's tolerance for the most brutal, threatening, racist and sexist remarks made against President Trump, members of his administration, and conservatives in general.

The message is clear and unambiguous: While left-wingers are free (as all Americans should be) to say anything, Americans will be penalized for criticizing them. If a Republican, a middle-of-the road politician, or a conservative makes an off-color remark, or one that simply states the truth in a harsh manner, he or she will suffer serious consequences. As Daniel McCarthy wrote in National Review: "Beware the rise of left-wing authoritarianism: for too many in the chattering classes, the imaginary fascism of Donald Trump ... excuses the real-

Since the 2016 election, a stunning quantity of offensive and occasionally violent remarks have been made about President Trump. The purveyors of these comments have not suffered any significant consequences.

Where are the cancelled contracts and media outrage following Johnny Depp's public fantasy of assassinating the President? Or Whoopi Goldberg's dream of torturing Trump? Or Keith Olbermann's ongoing and obscene rants? Why is there no Hollywood pressure against the comics who belittle the President's wife, or call his 12-year old son a 'rapist' and 'home-school shooter'? Bill Mahr has described the President as an "Orangutan" and that's apparently ok with the show biz crowd. In fact, actors like Robert De Niro frequently call Trump an 'idiot,' insulting not only the President but those that voted for him, and that seems to be acceptable.

Why are sexists and racist comments against women and people of color within the Trump Administration such as Press Secretary Sarah Sanders, Deputy Press Secretary Raj Shah, Second Lady Karen Pence, and HUD Secretary Ben Carson apparently ok with the media? When Joey Behar alleged that Vice President Pence had a mental illness because he was a Christian, she didn't lose her job or have her show cancelled.

Ben Shapiro writes: "The left likes to bully, and it's good at it...if you're a conservative in Hollywood you stay underground for fear of firing...as [director] Nicholas Meyer...told me when asked about [anti-conservative] discrimination in Hollywood, "Well, I hope so." Or as [producer] Vin DiBona... explained to me, "I think its probably accurate [that there's anti-conservative discrimination] and I'm happy with it actually..."

Writing in The Atlantic, Caitlin Flanagan notes that "somewhere along the way, the hosts of the late-night shows decided that they had carte blanche to insult not just the people within this administration, but also the ordinary citizens who support Trump, and even those who merely identify as conservatives."

There was a clear drive to rein in Roseanne's show, in which pro-Trump comments, to the utter dismay of Hollywood power brokers, were included. Shortly before the program was cancelled allegedly in response to Ms. Barr's tweet, it was announced that the show would be less political in upcoming seasons. When the star of the program rebelled against that, another excuse had to be found to get her off the air, and that excuse was found. It's similar to the rather unconvincing reasons the successful Tim Allen program, 'Last Man Standing' which also contained pro-conservative quips, was dropped.

In a nation guided by the First Amendment, comments, even those that are tasteless, about political figures should be protected. Increasingly, that's not the case for anyone left-wing power brokers dislike. From universities, where centrist and conservative speakers are chased off campus, frequently through violence, to the mainstream media and Hollywood moguls, there has been established a climate of fear and repression aimed directly at those who refuse to kowtow to leftist beliefs. It is a profound danger to the future of freedom in our land.

Weekly tax tips from the Bronx Tax Man

Business Tax Obligations

Do you own a business? Are you thinking of starting a business? Whether your business is home based or has a store front, you need to abide by the same rules and tax returns as every other business.

Let's start from the beginning. After you decide on a name, and an entity type such as LLC, C-Corp, S-Corp, Partnership or Sole Proprietor, then you must get your business registered with the State of New York, Bronx County and Internal Revenue Service. Usually you will need an CPA or Enrolled Agent to help get these steps done for you. I would not advise doing this on your own. If you don't complete the process or do it incorrectly, you may have fine or violations or worse occur.

Once you have your entity and your Federal Tax Identification Number, you can now proceed to apply for your Sales Tax Certificate of Authority and your NYS Department of Labor Unemployment Insurance Identification Number. You will need these to file your required quarterly sales tax returns as well as your quarterly payroll tax returns. Below is a schedule of due dates for these taxes. Remember even if your sales or payroll are zero for the period in question, the taxing authority must receive your taxes indicating that you have had no sales or employees. If not, they will estimate your taxes using the average business in your industry, which could be much higher than what you actually had. For example, if you are a home improvement contractor in the Bronx, and the average home improvement contractor shows $250,000 in sales per quarter, then you will get a tax bill using this as an estimate. You can imagine how unpleasant it would be to receive a bill for the taxes on $250,000?

Sales Tax Schedules

Sales tax collected from December to February would be due March 20th

Sales tax collected from March to May would be due June 20th

Sales tax collected from June to August would be due September 20th

Sales tax collected from September to November would be due December 20th

Payroll taxes withheld from your employee's paychecks must be paid on a schedule. This schedule could vary based on the volume of taxes collected. A typical business would have to make a monthly tax deposit with the Internal Revenue Service once a month by the 15th of the following month. For example: you would pay the taxes withheld for the month of January no later than the 15th of February. You would need to create an account for the tax payments on a electronic system called EFTPS. State tax payment are due when the tax liability accumulates to the amount of seven hundred dollars. From that payroll date a typical tax payer would only have 5 days to get that payment into the New York State Department of taxation and finance. You would need to create an only NYS Tax Account to do so. Payments cannot be mailed in any longer.

Payroll Tax Schedules

Payroll paid to employees from January to March would be due by April 30th

Payroll paid to employees from April to June would be due by July 31st

Payroll paid to employees from July to September would be due by October 31st

Payroll paid to employees from October to December would be due by January 31st

Along with the 4th quarter reports due by January 31st, you also have to file the W-2's for your employees and a copy must be submitted to the Social Security Administration.

The entity return due date varies depending on the type of entity you have. The due dates would be as follows:

1. Sole Proprietor (non-corporate) would be due by April 15th
2. Single member LLC would be due by April 15th
3. Partnership or Multi Member LLC will be due March 15th
4. S-Corporation would be due March 15th
5. C-Corp would be due three and a half months after end of tax year:

Ex: If your year ends December 31st, your tax return is due April 15th; if your year ends June 30th, your tax return would be due October 15th (a tax year that ends on December 31st is called a calendar year, however a tax year that ends on any other date in the year is called a Fiscal year.)

Therefore, as you can see by these return deadlines, an average business has nine annual tax filing. However, on each filing there may be multiple tax filing for the Internal Revenue, NYS and NYC, there for those nine filings can be as much as nineteen. Now while these returns we have discussed today are the usually returns any business must file, there may be more returns you must file based on your type of business. For example, do you sell tobacco, tires, lottery services? Are you a hair stylist? Are you a truck driver? Do you have Tractor Trailers? Do you own a restaurant? These and many many more may have additional taxes to be filed.

It's no secret that the tax laws are complicated. This is the reason you should seek the advice of a tax profes-

CM King sponsors rain barrel giveaway; NYBG program offerings; upcoming Wave Hill events

The New York City Department of Environmental Protection and Councilman Andy King will hold a rain barrel giveaway on the Evander Childs High School football field, 800 East Gun Hill Road, on Saturday, August 4, during the 6th annual 12th District Community Engagement Day/ Fun In the Sun Parade & Concert.

A hundred rain barrels will be distributed to local residents at 10 a.m. However, residents must call and reserve their barrel -- one per person per household.

The 60-gallon rain barrels are easy to install and connect directly to a property owner's downspout to capture and store the storm water that falls on the rooftop. The water collected in the rain barrel can then be used to water lawns and gardens, or for other outdoor chores.

Rain barrels should only be used for non-potable purposes, such as gardening, and must be disconnected from the downspout during the winter months to avoid freezing.

For more information or to reserve a rain barrel, call (718) 684-5509.

The New York Botanical Garden, Bronx River Parkway (Exit 7W) at Fordham Road, will offer the following programs

Through October 28: In 1939, at the age of 51, Georgia O'Keeffe traveled on commission to Hawai'i to produce images for a Hawaiian Pineapple Company promotional campaign. Her nine weeks on O'ahu, Maui, Kaua'i, and the Big Island of Hawai'i resulted in stunning depictions of mountains and waterfalls as well as her signature close-cropped views of flowers and plants she observed. At the time of her trip, O'Keeffe was among the most famous artists in the United States, best known for her depictions of the stark landscape and desert flora of her beloved New Mexico. Georgia O'Keeffe: Visions of Hawai'i, will explore this lesser-known chapter in her career, the enduring cultural impact of mid-century perceptions of Hawai'i, and the natural history of the Hawaiian Islands—one of the most ecologically diverse places on Earth—hidden behind O'Keeffe's depictions. Integrating art, horticulture, and historical interpretation, the exhibition will explore the Hawai'i that O'Keeffe experienced and also reveal the complex history of the Hawaiian Islands that she was not familiar with at the time.

Visitors will experience a lush flower show in the Garden's Enid A. Haupt Conservatory evoking the gardens and landscapes that inspired O'Keeffe as well as the complex story of the flora and unique ecology of Hawai'i. Plantings with more than 300 types of plants designed by Francisca Coelho and set pieces designed by Tony Award-winning designer Scott Pask explore the profound importance of plants in Hawaiian culture and growing concerns about threats to native Hawaiian plants.

Georgia O'Keeffe: Visions of Hawai'i, through October 28: A stunning display in the LuEsther T. Mertz Library Art Gallery offers a rare focus on Georgia O'Keeffe's works of art created during a nine-week sojourn in 1939 while on commission to produce images for a Hawaiian Pineapple Company promotional campaign. Her works depicting Hawaiian subjects garnered critical and popular attention when they were exhibited in 1940 at An American Place, the gallery of her husband, famed photographer Alfred Stieglitz (1864–1946). The exhibition spotlights a transformative experience in the legendary artist's life, revealing O'Keeffe's deeply felt impressions and the enduring influence of the Islands' rugged topography, dramatic landscapes, and exotic plants.

The works in this grouping, not seen together in New York since their 1940 debut, were all created in 1939 and include Heliconia, Crab's Claw Ginger [plant depicted is actually a 'lobster claw' heliconia] and Pineapple Bud (both of which were used in the Hawaiian Pineapple Company's advertisements and which are held today in private collections); Hibiscus with Plumeria (loaned by the Smithsonian American Art Museum); and a series of landscape paintings depicting Maui's interior 'ao Valley and lava-studded shorelines (loaned by the Honolulu Museum of Art, the Memphis Brooks Museum of Art, and a private collector).

Off in the Faraway Somewhere: Georgia O'Keeffe's Letters from Hawai'i, through October 28: An original short film narrated by Academy Award-nominee and NYBG Trustee Sigourney Weaver features excerpts from O'Keeffe's personal letters to her husband, famed photographer Alfred Stieglitz, written during her journey to and around the Hawaiian Islands.

Flora Hawaiiensis: Plants of Hawai'i, through October 28: This exhibit traces the history of Hawai'i's flora, from unusual native plants, to those valued by the ancient Hawaiians, to the ornamental and agricultural plants O'Keeffe painted. Displays showcase archival photos, illustrations, and letters from the LuEsther T. Mertz Library and specimens from the William and Lynda Steere Herbarium.

The exhibit also highlights the work of current and former NYBG botanists in the Pacific Islands, including Collaborators in Hawaiian Botany, Drs. Otto and Isa Degener, who explored and documented the flora of Hawai'i in their magnum opus, Flora Hawaiiensis (1932–80), and worked to conserve its ecology.

Georgia O'Keeffe's Hawaiian Voyage, through October 28: Part of the exhibition Georgia O'Keeffe: Visions of Hawai'i, Georgia O'Keeffe's Hawaiian Voyage is a display highlighting the artist's journey from her departure at New York's Grand Central Terminal through her nine-week island-hopping explorations of exotic flora and lush landscapes.

Contemporary Hawaiian Art by Mark Chai, through October 28: Outdoor installations by contemporary Hawaiian-Chinese sculptor Mark Chai, inspired by the forms of the plants that O'Keeffe encountered while visiting Hawai'i are on view and illuminated for evening events.

Elder question of the week by Salvatore M. Di Costanzo

Dear Mr. Di Costanzo: Is it true I can gift $15,000.00 without jeopardizing Medicaid eligibility for nursing home care?

This is a question I'm continually asked, so I'm glad I have another opportunity to clear things up. The main thing to remember is this: IRS rules are different from Medicaid rules.

Under current IRS rules, you may gift up to $15,000.00 to as many people as you'd like in 2018 (increased from $14,000.00 in 2017) without needing to file a gift tax return. This is known as the gift tax exclusion, and you can think of gifts that qualify as being excluded from needing to be reported to the IRS. If your gift to someone (other than your spouse) is over $15,000.00, you must tell the IRS.

The annual gift tax exclusion, however, does not tie into Medicaid. Under rules concerning Medicaid eligibility for nursing home services, any gifts within the preceding five (5) year period (often referred to as the "look back period") will be evaluated and may result in a penalty period during which Medicaid will not pay. (It is important to note that currently, there is no look back period for community Medicaid when one stays at home.)

Again – and I can't stress this enough – do not try to reduce your assets for Medicaid eligibility purposes by making gifts that you do not need to report to the IRS. You will need to report them to the government for Medicaid purposes, and they can have a detrimental effect on eligibility.

If you're thinking about planning for the future and contemplating the fact that you might eventually need nursing home care, an elder law, estate planning, and special needs planning attorney can help by offering advice based on the law, your specific circumstances, and the attorney's professional experience.

We can be reached at 914-925-1010 or by e-mail at smd@mfd-law.com. You are also encouraged to visit our website at www.plantodayfortomorrow.com. Questions may be submitted to smd@mfd-law.com for a response.

BRONX FACES

Art imitates life in a brand new exhibit on display in Westchester Square! An opening reception was held in honor of 'Bronx Faces: A Solo Exhibition by Annie Legnini' on Saturday, June 9 at the Huntington Free Library. The Morris Park artist created this series by taking photo submissions from people all across the borough and transforming their portraits into lifelike mixed media masterpieces using everyday materials. The exhibition documenting the Bronx experience through culture, race and class will be on display until Wednesday, June 27.

Sharks! at the WCS New York Aquarium

The Wildlife Conservation Society will hold a grand opening of its New York Aquarium's Donald Zucker and Barbara Hrbek Zucker Ocean Wonders: Sharks! exhibit on Saturday, June 30. The aquarium opens 10 a.m. year-round.

The new exhibit will amaze visitors as they journey through nine galleries breathtakingly eye-to-eye with sharks, rays and hundreds of species of ocean wildlife. As you explore the exhibit, the wondrous world deep below the ocean surface is revealed, whether it is in the Coral Reef Tunnel, The New York Bight or the dark and mysterious Hudson Canyon's Edge with large sand tiger sharks, sandbar sharks, nurse sharks and hundreds of marine species which live off the coast of New York.

Donald Zucker and Barbara Hrbek Zucker Ocean Wonders: Sharks!, a three-story, 57,500-square-foot exhibit building, will drive awareness of the importance of sharks to the health of the world's oceans; educate visitors about the severe threats sharks face; and inspire guests with the diversity of marine wildlife that exists in the waters around the New York, New Jersey, Connecticut tri-state area. Through cutting-edge and innovative displays, including a shipwreck and shark tagging vessel, the exhibit will create a new generation of conservation stewards. Each year, hundreds of thousands of visitors, and tens of thousands of students in the aquarium's education programs will learn to value and protect our ocean.

In total, Ocean Wonders: Sharks! will showcase more than 115 marine species, including 18 species of sharks and rays, to tell the 450 million-year-old story of sharks; their role as top predators; their vulnerability in a world where 100 million sharks every year are lost to unsustainable fishing; and the surprising diversity of sharks and other wildlife in the waters of New York. The exhibit will highlight the work that WCS' New York Aquarium scientists are doing to protect sharks throughout the region, as well as the conservation efforts of WCS experts globally to protect sharks; and illustrate how the choices we all make in our day-to-day lives affects sharks and their marine habitats.

"The opening of Ocean Wonders: Sharks! is a transformative moment for the New York Aquarium. The exhibit inspires awe and admiration for sharks and opens our visitors' eyes to what they truly are – keystone species in the world's ocean which, as top predators, helps to regulate the populations of other species, bringing a vital balance to a healthy ocean. The exhibit will connect millions of visitors with the wildlife and habitats in New York waters and expands the Wildlife Conservation Society's global commitment to shark and ray conservation," said WCS CEO and president Cristián Samper.

"We want to thank the administrations of Mayor Bill de Blasio and former Mayor Mike Bloomberg; the New York City Council including current and former Council Members Mark Treyger and Domenic Recchia; current and former Brooklyn Borough Presidents Eric Adams and Marty Markowitz; former Staten Island Borough President James Molinaro; and the Department of Cultural Affairs and the New York City Economic Development Corporation.

"We further extend great appreciation to WCS life trustee Barbara Hrbek Zucker and her husband, Donald Zucker, the entire WCS Board of Trustees and other private donors who have generously contributed to the building of Ocean Wonders: Sharks!. Both the public and private supporters of Ocean Wonders: Sharks! have shown strategic leadership advancing the imperative that we must protect sharks, their habitats and our ocean."

Said Jon Forrest Dohlin, Director of the New York Aquarium and WCS vice president, "This exciting new shark exhibit will inspire our visitors to help conserve these amazing animals and awaken them to the reality that the city that never sleeps is surrounded by the sea that never sleeps. With Ocean Wonders: Sharks!, we will bring New Yorkers the miracle of this ocean wilderness surrounded by 20 million people.

"I want to thank all our colleagues throughout WCS who joined in the building of Ocean Wonders: Sharks! during the most difficult time of the aquarium's history following the destruction wrought by Hurricane Sandy. It is a tremendous accomplishment that has resulted in the most significant exhibit for the New York Aquarium since it first opened in 1896 at Castle Garden in Battery Park."

Jim Breheny, WCS EVP of Zoos & Aquarium and Director of the Bronx Zoo said, "Ocean Wonders: Sharks! is a perfect example of the higher purpose of zoos and aquariums -- the conservation of wildlife and wild places. You can't go through this exhibit -- where you can find yourself just inches from a shark -- and not be inspired to join our efforts to save sharks and the ocean."

Home Of Marine Science

Ocean Wonders: Sharks! is a platform that illustrates the power of the New York Aquarium's marine conservation efforts, the New York Seascape program. It showcases the conservation work of New York Aquarium scientists both in the field and at the aquarium. Objectives of the conservation program include: securing habitat protection for juvenile sand tiger sharks; tagging sharks to study their migration patterns and promoting better management of their fisheries; developing the science for successful propagation of sand tiger sharks at the aquarium; increasing the monitoring of great whale migrations in and out of New York waters to reduce ship strikes; and working with the offshore wind energy industry to create guidelines for the protection of marine mammals. Worldwide WCS invests in ocean protection, sustainable fisheries and marine conservation.

Education As A Priority

The aquarium's Education Department is taking full advantage of the power of Ocean Wonders: Sharks! to build programs that inspire guests of the aquarium, and the millions of tourists on the nearby boardwalk and beach. About 60,000 youth and adults are anticipated to participate each year in the aquarium's education programs. The Oceanview Learning Laboratory located on the top floor of Ocean Wonders: Sharks! is a 1,500-square-foot education space with ocean views and an outdoor terrace. The aquarium's education team will provide live interpretation throughout the exhibit; a rooftop touch tank; dive talks; a new overnight program; and a re-imagined summer camp.

ating a structure that is inspired by nature with a façade that is alive and visually magnetic. Rising seamlessly from the famed Coney Island boardwalk in sweeping curves, the dramatic design is the product of a team headed by WCS' Susan Chin, Vice President of Planning & Design and Chief Architect, in collaboration with Edelman Sultan Knox Wood/Architects, Doyle Partners, and Seattle-based interdisciplinary design firm, The Portico Group. The organic form of the building cantilevers over the boardwalk, creating a new and dynamic relationship between the New York Aquarium and the surrounding community and forming unique gathering spaces for the boardwalk visitor. The kinetic beauty of the 1,100-foot-long Shimmer Wall wraps around the fluid forms of the Ocean Wonders: Sharks! building, creating a dynamic structure that is ever-changing and driven by the forces of nature. Designed in collaboration with visual artist Ned Kahn, the Shimmer Wall is constructed of more than 33,000 4" x 5 1/2" aluminum flappers that move individually with the wind. Ocean Wonders: Sharks! has received a LEED Silver Certification, achieved through multiple strategies related to water efficiency, sustainable sites, energy use and materials. The project was recognized by the New York City Public Design Commission with an Award for Excellence in Design.

Said Chin: "The architecture evokes the natural world and reflects the function within; an engaging exhibit that connects people to the ocean and inspires their stewardship. Ocean Wonders: Sharks! is transformative in many ways for the New York

Aquarium and Coney Island's community and visitors."

Sustainable Seafood And Plastic-Free Retail

As part of the message and the mission of Ocean Wonders: Sharks! the New York Aquarium will now sell only sustainable seafood options, use green packaging and focus on eliminating all single-use plastic including straws, cups, bags and other items in its restaurants and retail outlets. The aquarium has partnered with Monterey Bay Aquarium in selecting seafood and merchandise options to ensure the sustainability of food options and to minimize the use of plastics in packaging, utensils, and merchandise. Single-use plastic is polluting our waterways across the globe, damaging habitats and bringing great harm to wildlife.

The Financing Of Ocean Wonders: Sharks!

Ocean Wonders: Sharks! and its supporting Animal Care Facility has an estimated cost of $158 million ($111 million from New York City, and $47 million from generous private funders and tax exempt financing).

When fully restored from Hurricane Sandy (in 2020), the aquarium, which was devastated by the storm, is expected to generate over $80 million annually in direct and indirect economic activity, of which Ocean Wonders: Sharks! is estimated to contribute over $20 million.

The aquarium is expected to employ the full-time equivalent of almost 300 jobs of which more than 80 would be attributed to Ocean Wonders: Sharks!.

The WCS New York Aquarium is located in Coney Island, NY. Accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, it is open every day of the year.

BY GENE DEFRANCIS, FOUNDER

I walked into Toys R Us this week and it was the same experience and feel when I last walked into the store about two years ago. Cold, quiet, and empty. It had no soul, no energy, and no feeling.

And I hear it all the time... brick and mortar can't compete with Amazon and online sales. That belief is not only inaccurate, it is quite simply with no exaggeration un-American.

"Whether you think you can or you think you can't. You're right." Henry Ford.

Many box stores have fallen into a victim mentality. Most have thrown in the towel and surrendered. Toys R Us failed because Toys R Us gave up. It lost its heart and it lost its energy. It did not think it could compete with online sales.

Americans shop for an experience. They shop to create memories. They shop with friends and family members. There is an entire psychology and social experience that the online market can not compete with.

But you as the store owner need to fuel that experience. Many brick and mortar businesses are doing battle with a giant and leaving their weapons at home.

You need to attack the senses. When a customer walks into a space it has to be visually appealing. Colors that pop. Your product displayed so it can be seen and attract customers to the next item. But sight is not the only sense that you should focus on.

The sounds of a store are just as important to create buzz and comfort. You play the music to your target audience. You need to incorporate music. You play the music that will make your customers comfortable not your employees. And it needs to be structured and intentional. Within seconds the music will tell the customer this is the place for them. It creates an energy and identity that humanizes the business. It gives your business life.

Aside from smell, which your establishment obviously needs to smell appropriately, the sense of feel is one of the most important senses that online can't 'touch'.

Americans, God bless us, are stubborn and independent. We want what we want. We like fast and easy but we do like to feel and pick our purchases ourselves and not trust someone in a warehouse picking our items for us. For some items (namely disposable items) this won't be a factor. But for toys, clothing, and and will also be hosting a special event for our members and residents.

We have contracted Angel Hernandez, the director of Programs and External Relations for the Bronx County Historical Society, to give a special presentation on the history of Country Club and its immediate surrounding food we want to hold these items before committing to a purchase. And businesses also rely (many survive) on the impulse buy. A small affordable item that the customer will pick up generally as an appreciation for being apart of the experience.

Toys R Us could have been saved. More importantly Allerton can draw more foot traffic. Curb appeal and signage dictate who you want to walk the streets. Some stores are doing great in this department. Most are not. The front looks tired and run down. Dirty and broken sidewalks effect this as well. People with money want to be surrounded and spend their money where they are appreciated and welcomed. If we do better in the visual department we will attract more people into the stores. Once they are inside the visual continues with the inside cleanliness and display. The attention to detail. The sounds will stir an energy inside the customer.

It's something you can do today and little to no extra cost.

People also love to think they are saving money. So coupons and discounts in a promotion sense are simple and great. Stay away from blanket discounts. They give the appearance of desperation. Instead Fathers Day discount for fathers (likewise for Mothers Day), Veteran Discounts, or resident discounts for people who live in the area are all better ways to promote discount. It still demonstrates the product has value but the particular demographic is more appreciated.

That is why we began advertising in our local paper The Bronx Times. We encourage those advertising to offer discounts to those who subscribe and read this paper. In the near future we will have our next full page ad offering discounts for you at some of your favorite stores. Don't miss out.

Brick and mortar can survive in the age of technology if they believe they can survive. But you have to advertise. You have to connect. And you have to make the people you are serving feel special. There's an art to running a business and it must always be taken serious. And the art of Small Business is a valuable part of the Bronx Renaissance.

The Allerton International Food Festival is scheduled for July 21st. If you would like to be apart of the experience reach out to us.

We want to bring attention to an upcoming storm brewing. The building at 761 Bronxwood Avenue was built in 1910. It's over a hundred years old with great bones. A landmark in our community. Inside seniors citizens have called this home for over 40 years. In October a new owner purchased the property and is refusing to renew their lease and is looking to tear down this property and build up a 6 story 35 unit building. Aside from parking being a luxury, our schools overcrowded, and hospitals overflowing, the mere history and beauty of this property is why we say no. We will not support this property being torn down and will do everything possible to keep it. We encourage the new owner to give the residents their lease and suggests that he finds a buyer that will keep the property in its current form.

If you have any questions or concerns join the conversation on Facebook Allerton International Merchants and email us at AllertonMerchants@gmail.com.

How to get your children outside again

It's been a summer or two since kids suddenly burst outside in pursuit of virtual Pokemon. Now the question is: How to get them outside again, considering the lure of all things air-conditioned and pixilated?

The games that most of us adults played managed to entertain not just us, but children for hundreds or even thousands of years. Get your kids to try them and they just may play long and hard enough to need some water from the hose. And then you know what they're drinking in?

Summer!

Take a look at how old some of your favorite games are:

Hopscotch: If you were a Roman soldier, you would have hated hopscotch. That's because the game began as a grueling exercise. Soldiers in full armor had to run or hop or somehow make it across 100-foot long hopscotch grids, the same way football players have hop through all those tires.

Buttokidsitlookedlike

fun — at least if you only had to hop through 10 squares. Back in the day, the word at the top would be "London," because that's where Rome's famous 400-mile road led. (You'd think it would lead to "Rome," but no.)

The word hopscotch itself comes from hopping, of course, and "scotch" which is a bastardization of "scratch." Kids would scratch the lines on the ground. When I was growing up, we called the top "Blue Sky," which may harken back to the fact that when Germans played this game they called it "Himmel und Hölle" — Heaven and Hell. (Those cheery Teutons.) You'd get to the top and you were in heaven, or the sky.

In any event, it is a nifty game and requires only chalk and a stone. Roman soldiers optional.

Jacks: Jacks go back to Ancient Greece. You can see pictures of the game on urns (if you look really hard). Back then, however, no one had balls.

Well, I mean, no one had a bouncy ball. Or jacks, per se. They had, instead, the knuckle, wrist, and ankle bones of sheep, so the early name of the game was

RHYMES WITH CRAZY

Lenore Skenazy

"Knucklebones." Kids would toss these into the air and have to catch them either in their palms or on the back of their hands or some other way that made it hard, hence fun.

When rubber finally made its way to Europe in the 1700s, the first bouncing balls were introduced and these made their way into the games. But for centuries before that, kids played jacks with whatever they had on hand (literally — ;), including apricot seeds in Egypt and little bags of rice or sand in China.

And by the way, jacks is short for "jackstones," which came from "chackstones" which came from chucking stones — throwing them.

Capture the Flag: This one is depressing. The game is just too glaringly modeled on war — and not just war exercises, like hopscotch. In a real war — in the Civil War, as a matter of fact — you'd come upon your enemy and shoot or stomp or bayonet them, all in the service of literally capturing their flag. At the end of the skirmish what mattered most, insanely enough, was not how many people died, but who'd captured the other team ... er ... the other side's flag.

I realize I haven't watched nearly enough Ken Burns or I'd have known that. But it wasn't until reading up on this particular game that I learned that the soldiers stuck trying to keep their flag from falling into the enemy's clutches were called "color guards" — for guarding their side's colors. I'd thought color guards were just a Boy Scout thing.

Anyway, the game is played just like war, but without the bayonets.

Blind Man's Bluff: The bluff is that because you are blindfolded you "accidentally" end up touching anyone you want, anywhere you want. No surprise that this game was a big hit with the original #MeToo despot, Henry VIII and his friends. Back then, it was an adult game. Very adult.

Kickball: Sit down. Here's a shocker. Kickball was invented not in ancient someplace, but in Cincinnati in ... 1917! Unlike baseball, or even jacks, which require some serious hand-eye coordination, in kickball a giant ball rolls right toward you, for gosh sake. It is like being a human bowling pin. Because it was so much easier than any game ever, gym teachers pounced on it and by the 1920s it was already a physical education staple and today it's still alive and, well, you know.

So here's the deal. Kids love their video games. But a study often quoted by Peter Gray, author of a basic textbook on psychology used at Harvard and beyond, found that 86 percent of kids prefer playing outside to computer play.

Summer's here. Send 'em out.

Lenore Skenazy president of Let Grow, and founder of Free-Range Kids.

Bronx scene

Public art exhibit opens in Starlight Park

On Saturday, June 30 and Sunday, July 1, in Starlight Park, the Bronx River Arts Center will launch the year-long exhibition River Rising/Sube el Rio: An Exposition of Science, Art and Technology.

The exhibit, which will be on view June 30, 2018 through June 30, 2019, consists of eight commissioned sculptures by 15 artists informed by the 1918 Bronx International Exposition of Science, Arts and Industries, which took place on this same site 100 years ago. Produced by BRAC's Executive Director Gail Nathan and Program Associate Laura James, with site curation by KaN Landscape Design, Karine Duteil and Nadej Hocini, River Rising is the first major public art exhibition to be located in Starlight Park.

River Rising presents large-scale outdoor artworks and sculptures that explore what it means to serve a community that is connected to and intersected by Starlight Park and the Bronx River. Through these reimagined 'pavilions,' participating artists explore notions of access to green spaces, outdoor recreation, environmental reclamation, urban design, community-based entrepreneurship, and other environmental issues. Topical to the Bronx and beyond, this extravaganza intends to connect Bronx histories to ongoing evolution of the arts, technology, and science.

The first weekend, Saturday, June 30 and Sunday, July 1, will open with much fanfare including performing artists, emerging creative entrepreneurs, games and art workshops, and moonlight dancing to Latin jazz.

World's Fairs have traditionally served as futuristic beacons, providing expositional platforms for the avant-garde in design, scientific exploration, and industry. River Rising installations embrace new technologies and incorporate interactive elements such as health monitoring, stargazing, and puzzle solving that engage park-goers with places to sit, play, and develop a deeper understanding of their built and natural environments. Some works evoke fairgrounds of times gone by — such as Samantha Holmes 'Starlight Ride,' which implants carousel horses directly into the ground; or 'What Goes Around Comes Around' by Drew Seskunas and Gabriela Salazar that evokes the dizzying feelings of a roller-coaster ride.

"This production intends to raise the profiles of The Bronx River, the new Bronx River Greenway, and in particular its Starlight Park segment, to the status of a destination known for innovative interdisciplinary art and environmental experiences. Through this project we also seek to reinstate the Bronx River Art Center as an incubator of creative production and engagement — a virtual 21st Century "Bauhaus" where utilitarian doctrines of art and community outweigh hierarchical notions of art," said Gail Nathan, executive director, Bronx River Art Center.

Participating artists include Infinite Archive Artist Collective (Patrick Perry, Sarah Rowe, and Rachel Sydlowski), River Pulse Artist Collective (Nicolas R. Mariscal, Sarena Rabinowitz, and Cecile Yama) Manuel Acevedo, Nina Edwards Anker, Eduardo Benamor Duarte, Samantha Holmes, Amy Pryor, Moses Ros, Gabriela Salazar, Drew Seskunas, and Caterina Tiazoldi.

History of Beck Mem'l Church

The village of West Farms had been growing and when it reached a population of 300, some members of the Presbyterian Church thought it was time to have their own church and minister. Dr. Gardiner Spring, the pastor of the Brick Church, and Robert Lenox acting as advisors met on August 14, 1814. Robert Given, James Bathgate, Caleb Pell, Ebenezer Waterbury, John Gillespie and James Renwick were chosen as the first trustees and by the following year construction on a church building began on 180th Street opposite the current edifice.

Rev. Isaac Lewis was installed as the first pastor and divided his time between his existing congregation in New Rochelle and the new church in West Farms.

He served for four years and was replaced by a series of ministers beginning in 1819 with Rev. Truman Osborne and all serving pro tem until Rev. Joseph D. Wickham was officially installed as the second pastor in 1825. He was succeeded by Rev. George Stebbins in 1829 and a long line of pastorships ensued.

do you remember

by Bill Twomey

There were some hard times and the building was almost foreclosed when the school teacher, Miss Nancy Leggett, and her assistant Miss Ann McGregor, interceded by walking all the way down to Broome Street in lower Manhattan to consult with a wise pastor. The pastor of the Spring Street Church was so taken with their long walk and humility that he instantly began to conscript funds for the West Farms church starting with his own personal donation.

When Charles Bathgate Beck passed away on October 11, 1893 his estate was valued at approximately five million dollars, most of which was left to worthwhile charities. He also directed that $28,000 be given to the First Presbyterian Church of West Farms of which he was a trustee. $3,000 was to pay off their mortgage and $25,000 to be invested and applied to the future needs of the church. He also left $100,000 to erect a new church across the street from the current building on 180th Street in memory of his mother, Janet B. Beck. The new church was built at 980 East 180th Street and dedicated in 1895. The name of the church was changed from the First Presbyterian Church of West Farms to the Beck Memorial Church in 1910.

The first big event at the new church was the celebration of the centennial of their founding on May 10, 1914 starting with a memorial service by Rev. Dr. Charles Payson Mallery, the pastor emeritus who served from 1885 to 1907, and was well-familiar with its history. He detailed the history of the church from its beginning to that point in time. The celebration continued later that day with talks by Rev. Howard Duffield, Rev. Dr. David Gourley Wylie, and Dr. George

REPRINTED FROM 5-5-2011

This old photo of Beck Memorial Church also shows the cemetery monuments still in place. I went by there a couple of weeks ago with Tom Casey and the church is now in a state of disrepair. It would take quite a bit of work to restore it to its former beauty.

Alexander representing the Presbytery of New York. John H. Finley, the State Commissioner of Education, was the final speaker of the day but the celebration continued with special speakers each day for the rest of the week.

The church is now in total disrepair and it would take major renovation work to restore it to its former beauty. The support wall for the front steps is closed off with a wooden barricade and windows are broken or missing. Even the wood trim in the upper part of the church is rotting away. It would be a great loss to see the grand old structure demolished. Hopefully some wealthier church will come to the rescue.

We'll help take the mystery out of cremation.

Have you ever wondered about the cremation process? Curious about how your religion views your choice? How about the cost? Or what type of service to have? If you are considering cremation but have questions, call us today for a free copy of our brochure "Cremation Options." When you have questions, finding the answers doesn't have to be a mystery.

TOP DRIVER DISTRACTIONS

Using mobile phones

Leading the list of the top distractions behind the wheel are mobile phones. Phones now do more than just place calls, and drivers often cannot pull away from their phones, even when driving. According to the California Department of Motor Vehicles, studies have shown that driving performance is lowered and the level of distraction is higher for drivers who are heavily engaged in cell phone conversations. The use of a hands-free device does not lower distraction levels. The percentage of vehicle crashes and near-crashes attributed to dialing is nearly identical to the number associated with talking or listening.

Daydreaming

Many people will admit to daydreaming behind the wheel or looking at a person or object outside of the car for too long. Perhaps they're checking out a house in a new neighborhood or thought they saw someone they knew on the street corner. It can be easy to veer into the direction your eyes are focused, causing an accident. In addition to trying to stay focused on the road, some drivers prefer the help of lane departure warning systems.

Eating

Those who haven't quite mastered walking and chewing gum at the same time may want to avoid eating while driving. The majority of foods require a person's hands to be taken off of the wheel and their eyes to be diverted from the road. Reaching in the back seat to share some French fries with the kids is also distracting.

Try to eat meals before getting in the car. For those who must snack while en route, take a moment to pull over at a rest area and spend 10 minutes snacking there before resuming the trip.

Reading

Glancing at an advertisement, updating a Facebook status or reading a book are all activities that should be avoided when driving. Even pouring over a traffic map or consulting the digital display of a GPS system can be distracting.

Sea of litter storms beach; waves of disgusting debris hits the 'Bronx Riviera' after themselves and it's becoming both a problem and an eyesore.

The NYC Parks Department is aware of the problem.

In an effort to encourage the beach users to clean up after themselves this new season, Parks is implementing some new changes with trash disposal.

"We are experimenting with a new trash management approach at Orchard Beach by placing all trash cans on the boardwalk as opposed to directly on the sand," said a spokesperson for Parks.

"The hope is that this will encourage people to carry their garbage off the beach. This approach also allows our staff to empty trash cans faster. We are also installing orange banners near trash bins to direct beach goers," the spokesperson added.

While Parks is hopeful that this policy will encourage those on the beach to cleanup after themselves, other beachgoers are skeptical.

"Nothing is going to change. The trash cleanup policy didn't work when the cans were on the beach. So why would people that already aren't walking a few feet to a trash can now be inspired to walk back to the boardwalk?" said the perplexed beachgoer. "The best bet to fixing this issue is more cans in more places, not less," they added.

Michael Torres has called

Soundview his home and Orchard Beach his stomping ground for over 30 years.

He's personally seen people at the beach take an apathetic approach to cleaning up after themselves.

"Orchard Beach always had issues with trash, especially in the water, all over the park and the basketball courts. The park has improved in recent years but it is a long way off compared to other areas in city," said Torres. "I've seen some disgusting stuff float out into that water honestly. People joke around that no one goes in the water because if you go in, your bathing suit will be dissolved, from the things that float out there. I'm starting to wonder whether that's a joke," Torres added.

a bathroom here," said Silver, who added in remarks he calls it a 'comfort station plus' because of its ability to be used as a performance space.

The commissioner said in remarks that soccer players drink a lot of water and Gatorade and need public restrooms.

The 750-foot building was a $4.5 million dollar project funded with $2.9 million from the NYC Department of Environmental Protection and $1.6 million from the mayor's office.

Dotti Poggi, Friends of Ferry Point Park leader, said that plans for a new comfort station, the first in the park since the 1970s, were originally proposed when funds became available as part of the Croton Water Filtration Plant mitigation in the mid-2000s, but that the money ran out before it could be built.

She believes that it will make the park more environmentally sound.

Senator Jeff Klein, who attended the ribbon cutting, said that this comfort station would allow the public to expand recreational and educational service for children in the park.

"I thank the NYC Parks Department for their ongoing commitment to improving the quality of life, and health and well-being of Bronx residents," said Klein, adding in remarks that he looks forward to the future completion of a waterfront promenade.

The community, especially the various local sports leagues who utilize the park, will certainly welcome the facility, said Assemblyman Michael Benedetto.

"It is a magnificent park used by thousands of people every single weekend," said Benedetto, adding "It is a crying shame that this park too often gets neglected."

Those playing cricket and participating in remote-control aviation utilize the park.

Lesly Lowe, Commonwealth Cricket League president, said that the league has been playing there for four decades, most of the time without a working bathroom facility.

He said that players in the league often had NYC Parks Enforcement Police watching them while they played to make sure no one urinated in the wooded areas.

Frank Verdejo of the Bronx Blue Angels Model Aviation Club, which has been flying RC aircraft in park for 20 years, said that the comfort station alleviates a lot of issues concerning bringing women and children to the park, and allows the club to discontinue its port-o-san rentals.

"It has been so long coming, that we thank God finally the day is here," he said.

Yankees announce return of HOPE Week

The New York Yankees announce the return of HOPE Week (Helping Others Persevere & Excel) in 2018 for the 10th consecutive season. The initiative is a unique week-long community program that brings to light five remarkable stories intended to inspire individuals into action in their own communities. HOPE Week 2018 will take place at sites in the Bronx, Queens, Manhattan and Westchester from Monday, June 11 through Friday, June 15.

Each day over the five-day stretch, the Yankees will reach out to an individual, family or organization worthy of recognition and support, surprising honorees with a day celebrating their accomplishments. Outreach will often take place away from Yankee Stadium, allowing the Yankees to personally connect with individuals in settings that highlight their greatest successes.

This year's initiative will mark the seventh year that all of the organization's U.S.-based minor league affiliates will hold their own HOPE Weeks, allowing the initiative to reach five additional cities and touch nearly three dozen additional individuals and groups.

HOPE Week is rooted in the fundamental belief that acts of goodwill provide hope and encouragement to more than just the recipient of the gesture. Fans can learn more about the initiative by visiting the official website at www.hopeweek.com.
