

OCASIO-CORTEZ BEATS CROWLEY

Political novice, socialist wins Democratic primary

BY ALEX MITCHELL

"It's time to put the working class first" was Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez's message to Washington after pulling off one the biggest political upsets in history.

Ocasio-Cortez, aligned with the progressive Democratic Socialists of America, took down 14-year incumbent Joseph Crowley in a primary day romp 15,897 to 11,761 to become the next Democratic Party candidate to run for the 14th Congressional seat in November's general election.

When she first learned that the race was called in her favor she let out a gasp heard around the political world.

"Every person out here changed America tonight," she said while standing atop a barstool in the crowded Bronx pool hall that held her election watch party. "This victory tonight belongs to every person in this room," the victor declared.

While only 13% of the registered Democratic Party voters bothered to cast a ballot, Ocasio-Cortez won both the Bronx and Queens portions of the district.

While nabbing the Bronx's 36% of the district, 4,093 to 3,541, she demolished the man everyone was touting as the next speaker of the House in his home borough, where he is also the Democratic party leader, 11,804 to 8,220.

Justice for Junior: the Bronx mourns

BY ALEX MITCHELL

There hasn't been a dry eye on the corner of 183rd Street and Bathgate Avenue since the tragic death of 15-year-old Lesandro 'Junior' Guzman-Feliz on Wednesday, June 20.

A memorial that started with several candles and posters in front of Zesarina Grocery, at 526 E. 183rd Street, has rapidly grown into a shrine in less than a week.

Thousands have come from all over lighting candles, leaving hand written messages and much more to honor the innocent teenager that was savagely murdered.

"We all love you, we never met, God bless your family and friends," one message read.

A couple came from northern New Jersey on Monday, June 25 as soon as they heard the news.

Others came from all around the borough to the memorial. "I have a 15-year-old son that looks like Junior, what if that was my kid they got?" One father yelled in grief.

While the outcry for 'Justice for Junior' has reached a national level, Junior's family and friends are in a state of utter disbelief the past few days.

Three girls that Junior were friends with broke down hysterically in front of the bodega on Monday.

"The last thing he said to Vapor Lounge is located at 3758 E. Tremont Avenue in Throggs Neck.

CB10 letter to SLA: 'please approve Vapor Lounge change'

BY SARAH VALENZUELA

As the smoke clears, a new establishment may soon replace Vapor Lounge.

At the Community Board 10 full board meeting on Thursday, June 21, a resolution was passed to send a letter to the State Liquor Authority to allow Vapor Lounge to change to Karma Lounge & Tapas Bar.

The letter was sent before Vapor Lounge ownership was scheduled to meet with the SLA on Wednesday, June 27.

"Vapor Lounge cannot exist as it has in the past," said CB 10 district manager, Matt Cruz, in reference to the community's frustration with the establishment's violent past, like the March 7 altercation that left one patron slashed and beaten unconscious.

The incident proved to be the last straw for the community, with many calling for the Throggs Neck bars' complete closure or liquor license revocation.

On March 15, Vapor Lounge's owner, Troy Perez, spoke before the board and said the hookah bar would change their method of operation and restructure their business.

An earlier attempt in May to get CB 10 approval for the Karma Lounge & Tapas Bar, ended in a 15-15 tie vote with three abstentions, because some members of the board thought Vapor Lounge was applying for a new liquor license.

Vapor Lounge ownership team had stayed true to their word since then, complying with community board suggestions.

They even purchased new store signage, which the board believed was a good faith act to convince them the business was going in a new direction, according to the letter.

While the new Karma Lounge & Tapas Bar would still operate under the existing Vapor Lounge liquor license and with the same ownership, the business would be a completely restructured and revamped restaurant.

Karma Lounge & Tapas Bar would not offer hookah anymore. It was blamed for drawing Vapor Lounge's troublesome clientele.

Instead, the new business would install a kitchen to serve bar food, include karaoke and live music, and even present comedy shows.

"At the end of the day, the board supported the community," said Cruz of the majority vote to send the letter that collectively supported the brand new establishment. "We're happy to see Vapor Lounge change, that's for sure."

The community board letter and approval is only advisory. The SLA ultimately has the final say in whether Vapor Lounge at 3758 E. Tremont Avenue can become Karma Lounge & Tapas Bar, according to Cruz.

The Bronx Times was not notified of the final decision on whether Vapor Lounge would be permitted to become the Karma Tapas Bar before the story printed.

Matt Cruz said the community board would know of the official decision as early as Monday, July 2.

"Vapor Lounge, or whatever it becomes, will always have a target, [on its back]" said Cruz who explained the board would continue to monitor the establishment closely if the change to Karma Lounge & Tapas Bar is not approved and Vapor Lounge remains.

The 45th Precinct had not responded to any calls at Vapor Lounge since its last incident in March, according to Cruz, who has been in contact with the precinct about the bar.

It has changed its previous method of operation since the March altercation by closing earlier weekdays and weekends and changing its security team.

4th Annual SUV Peace Walk

Meet at the corner of Astor & Wallace Avenues and march up White Plains Road.
Reach East Gun Hill Road by 6 pm.
Finish at East 229th Street by 7 pm. Rain or Shine!

SUV was established thanks to the support of Senator Jeffrey D. Klein, who will join in the march.

SUV is NYC Health + Hospitals /Jacobi's violence prevention initiative. This innovative program is based on the premise that violence is a public health issue that can be treated like any other disease. The way in which violence spreads and is transmitted from person to person resembles a contagious disease. SUV has the advantage of being the first hospital-based model of the Cure Violence Program. The hospital's designated team is able to respond and provide specialized care to patients who have been shot, stabbed, or assaulted. Ongoing follow-up provides medical and social services and identifies productive alternatives to high-risk behavior and violence. Patients who are high-risk and eligible for the community-based services are connected with outreach workers who provide intensive, long-term follow-up in the community to prevent future incidents of violence.

Cullen-Morales chosen as Bronx Museum director

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

One of the borough's most important cultural institutions has a new administrator.

The board of the Bronx Museum of the Arts selected Deborah Cullen-Morales, currently the director and curator at the Miriam and Ira D. Wallach Art Gallery at Columbia University, to lead the organization beginning the week of Monday, July 9.

The Bedford Park community member fills a vacancy that was created when Holly Block, the previous executive director of the organization from 2006 to 2017, passed.

Cullen-Morales oversaw the expansion of the Columbia gallery, and prior to that worked at the El Museo del Barrio in Manhattan.

"We were looking for a candidate who could immediately lead the Bronx Museum forward and advance our mission for the future," said Joseph Mizzi, chairman of the Bronx Museum of the Arts board of trustees, adding that the board recognized her for actively engaging with the communities in which she works and for a strong focus on African-American, Caribbean and Latino art.

Cullen-Morales said that she had been visiting the Bronx Museum ever since she moved to New York in the 1980s.

"I am a huge fan and supporter of the Bronx Museum of the Arts," said Cullen-Morales, adding "It is a crucial institution in our cultural fabric here in New York, and as a Bronx resident it is even more important to me."

Since her focus in her own artistic career was Caribbean, Latino and African-American arts, Cullen-Morales said that she thought the position would be a good match to her own interests.

"My work has tended to be rooted in community, and often with larger New York City, national and sometimes international impact, but always starting with the immediate community," she said.

The new executive director said that she still has more to learn about the borough, but she said she already has a lot of familiarity with the museum and its initiatives.

She plans on continuing educational programs and long-standing collaboration with local schools that teach grades K-12 students, and perhaps look to expand such collaboration, said Cullen-Morales.

Free admission to the museum was championed by Block, and it is something that she plans on continuing, said Cullen-Morales.

The museum has plans to repurpose and renovate a former synagogue building that is part of its location at 1040 Grand Concourse, said the new executive director.

Another initiative she plans on being at the forefront of is building an endowment for the museum, which has never had a significant donation-driven cash reserve.

Building an endowment will be useful so that the Bronx Museum of the Arts' financial needs don't have to "start at zero" every year, she said.

Borough President Ruben Diaz, Jr. said in a statement that he was delighted that Cullen-Morales would be joining the museum, which he stated brings outstanding arts and education programming to the borough.

"As Deborah is a Bronx resident, I know she will bring her commitment to our borough to her role as the museum's next leader," said Diaz. "We all look forward to the great arts initiatives to come."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An ongoing traffic issue

Dear editor,

Read article 'Locust Point wants dangerous I-95 exit ramp fixed', June 24, 2018, and I totally agree with Maria Guzzone.

In the May 26-June 1, 2011 issue, I also wrote a letter, subject: 'Exit needs fix', which stated: If possible can you get this message to the Throggs Neck Home Owners Association. It pertains to an article written by Lynn Gerbino, on visibility issues as you exit to the left off Harding Avenue exit off the Throggs Neck Expressway.

The hedges are only one contributing factor in visibility limitations to oncoming traffic. The white stop line is three-feet back from the corner. Drivers have to roll their cars 6 to 8 feet past the line to see oncoming traffic. The green fence, put up by the construction crew, is the other obstacle.

The main issue is poor driving habits. Drivers do not stop, they roll through it. On any given day 25 or more drivers ignore the left and right stop signs off the exit, and there are always near miss accidents.

It is common for those living across from the exit to hear the screeching tires and the blaring of horns, or the occasional impact of a cars colliding.

I would also like to thank all those that were involved in improving the appearance and condition of the exit from what it was months ago, but more needs to be done.

In Issue July 4-10 2014, 'Obey Traffic laws' I wrote about drivers going up the exit ramps, running the stop sign, and speeding up and down the Throggs Neck Expressway Service Road between Pennyfield and Harding avenues, which continues to this date. The visibility of state police cars once in awhile helps.

A nicer NYCHA

Dear editor,

Tough times call for creative thinking and innovative solutions at the NYC Housing Authority. Thankfully, a new study from the Citizens Housing & Planning Council spotlights a path forward for NYCHA and its tenants.

CHPC looked at a pilot program that, through a public-private partnership, made $80 million in renovations at six NYCHA developments encompassing 874 units, and introduced new management structures. Renovations included both facades and interiors, improving landscaped areas, new boilers, elevators and security upgrades at the buildings.

The results show not only improved physical quality of the buildings, but a direct impact on quality of life for residents at these developments. Tenants in pilot buildings felt safer, day-to-day management was more responsive and that emergency repairs were fixed more rapidly.

This pilot shows that where you have funding, you have solutions, and that innovation can yield success. Moving forward, NYCHA should explore more public-private partnerships that will make necessary capital for improvements available while preserving affordability. It's a win for NYCHA, their partners, and most important of all, the tenants.

Express bus service a mess

Dear editor,

I saw an article about the BX M9 and the terrible service it provided back in 2012. Unfortunately six years later, the Throggs Neck community is still facing this awful service. I commute to the city everyday from Randall and Clarence avenues and I can honestly say the bus is always late. However the lateness going to the city doesn't compare to coming back home.

Today is a prime example of why the service is awful. A group of us waited for over 40 minutes for a bus to come, three of the scheduled buses never arrived. This puts a real damp spot on the day, because for us Throggs Neckers this is our only way to get back home.

BronxNet at Bronx Night Market

BronxNet will be on location at Fordham Plaza on Saturday June 30, providing live coverage of the first-ever Bronx Night Market. The station's on-site television studio setup will also provide opportunities for Bronxites to get an inside look at television production and to learn about how they can become independent producers in their own right.

The Bronx Night Market is a collaboration between the quarterly magazine Edible Bronx and the Bronx-based creative agency BLOX. The monthly, free open-air festival features food vendors, artisans, merchants and performances by notable artists.

"We're excited to have Bronx Net at the first ever Bronx Night Market, as the station is a true representation of the Bronx. The interactive live studio will be an unexpected addition to the market, showcasing all forms of Bronx flavor by way of food, drink, art, media, and technology," said Amanda Celestino of Edible Bronx.

Marco Shalma of the BLOX Creative Agency stated: "BronxNet, led by Michael Max Knobbe, embodies what the Bronx truly is; strong, ambitious, and innovative, so this collaboration with the Bronx Night Market, makes sense in every aspect, as we proudly present all the good that our community has to offer."

"We are pleased to participate in the Bronx Night Market with interactive multimedia demos and special in-depth coverage on BronxNet, in what's sure to be a great extravaganza of food, music and culture," said BronxNet executive director Michael Max Knobbe.

BronxNet is the independent not-for-profit organization serving the people of the Bronx with media production training, access to technology, and television channels. BronxNet programs six channels - 33, 34, 35, 36, 37 and 38 on the Verizon Fios system and six channels - 67, 68, 69, 70, 951 and 952 - on the Optimum system in the Bronx.

BronxNet's ultra-local programming helps connect the Bronx with the world while our training programs and partnerships are a part of community development through media.

DOT reveals plans for new Shore Road draw bridge

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

A new bridge is being planned to carry a major artery through Pelham Bay Park.

The NYC Department of Transportation presented preliminary plans to build a new Shore Road Bridge over the Hutchinson River beginning in 2022, according to a presentation officials made to Community Board 10's Municipal Services Committee on Wednesday, June 13.

The presentation included several design options, and seemed to lean towards a double-leaf bascule drawbridge that is taller than the present bridge linking Shore Road and Pelham Parkway over the river, according to attendees.

The current Pelham Bridge is over 100-years-old and is in need of replacement, with the DOT officials indicating that building a taller bridge would necessitate less need to open and close the bridge for nautical traffic.

CB 10's district manager, Matt Cruz, said that board members were very pleased that DOT came to the community for input early on.

"The board members were certainly pleased that the city took it upon itself to come before us years before there would be any action," said Cruz, adding "This was a nice example of good planning and good communication."

Cruz said that DOT will be back before CB 10 to further discuss the project as the start date of summer 2022 approaches, and that the board will have a vote on the project because the new construction will require a Uniform Land Use Review Procedure.

Bob Bieder, a member of the CB 10 Municipal Service Committee, said he was impressed that officials came before the board during the planning process.

"They came to us before anything is finalized, which is very unusual, and the DOT Bridges people told us this is the way they are going to do things from now on," said Bieder.

Bieder said that ULURP would be required because alienation of parkland is necessary.

The board would like to know how the alienated parkland would be replaced, said Bieder, adding that he is hoping that the land can be replaced, as is required by state law, with new parkland either in or near Pelham Bay Park.

The new bridge is expected to follow a path that would be alongside the current Pelham Bridge, said Bie-der, which would be expected to also limit any disruptions due to the construction.

Barbara Dolensek, City Island Civic Association vice president, attended the June 13 presentation, which was developed by DOT and engineering firm Hardesty and Hanover.

"This bridge is one of the busiest bridges in the city," said Dolensek, who added more and more openings are required because of large antennas that are sported on many seafaring vessels.

The new bridge is expected to be wider with better access for bicyclists and pedestrians, said Dolensek, with the presentation showing a preliminary design for a proposed cross section of the bridge including two 11-foot-wide lanes for motor vehicle traffic.

She too was pleased that the city came to the community very early in the design process.

According to the DOT presentation, the bridge replacement is expected to cost $250 million with construction expected to take three years.

Louella Hatch street co-naming honors Fordham activist

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

A true community leader described as a resource and advocate for her neighbors was honored with a street co-naming.

Louella Hatch, a woman who had a legacy of service that spanned a lifetime, was honored with a street co-naming outside of the building where she lived since the early 1970s in Fordham on Wednesday, June 13.

The street corner in front of 2200 Tiebout Avenue at East 182nd Street was named after Hatch. It was unveiled as friends, family, community members and community leaders looked on.

Hatch was known in her community as the 'mayor of Tiebout Avenue,' according to multiple sources.

She hosted National Night Out Against Crime events, served as president of the 46th Precinct Community Council, started a play street and a block association, and held toy and clothing drives during the holidays, said friends and family.

"We're here to celebrate a legacy of public service that Friends and family of Louella Hatch gathered to celebrate a street co-naming in her memory at East 182nd Street and Tiebout Avenue. Councilman Ritchie Torres, Councilwoman Vanessa Gibson, District Attorney Darcel Clark, police officials from the 46th Precinct and community leaders joined in the celebration.

spanned a lifetime," said Torres in his remarks adding "When I think of Louella, the word that comes to mind is 'happiness,' and happiness, in the original sense of the word, did not refer to an emotion or a feeling; it meant the fullness and fulfillment of a life well lived."

Torres said that he considered Hatch someone with a moral authority that only comes from a lifetime of public service.

Tisha Hatch-Loveless, Hatch's daughter, said his mother grew up in Mobile, AL and was active in the civil rights movement, moving to New York when she was 18-years-old.

"She was always a firm believer in helping people who needed help," said Hatch-Loveless. "That was something that was instilled in us."

Hatch-Loveless said that her mom began her community activism by operating a food pantry where she gave out five-pound blocks of cheese and three-pounds squares of butter to anyone who needed help, regardless of whether the recipients were working.

This was at a time when there were strict requirements that prohibited working-poor people from receiving food donations, explained Hatch-Loveless.

She later began to provide assistance concerning housing and getting youth registered for summer jobs programs, said Hatch-Loveless.

Her daughter said she was one of the first people in the Bronx to host a National Night Out Against Crime event.

She also fought against bad landlords on behalf of senior citizens who were concerned about losing their homes until her passing in 2017, and her daughter said she would have been thrilled to have a street co-named in her honor.

"I really wish (she could see the street sign), even if it was just for five minutes," said Hatch-Loveless when asked about what her mom would think of the honor.

One friend of Hatch, Rev. Kim Osorio, said that the NYS Chaplain Task Force made Hatch an honorary chaplain for her service to the community.

"Chaplains play different roles as advocates for people," said Osorio, explaining that electeds and police officials said that Hatch "spoke the truth whether they wanted to hear it or not, if it was in the best interest of her community."

Lead level concerns at Rodman's Neck pistol range

BY PATRICK ROCCHIO

As plans for the complete reconstruction of the Rodman's Neck range continue to develop, perennial concerns about lead contamination have resurfaced.

Three NYC Department of Corrections officers who were assigned to the NYPD's Rodman's Neck pistol range were taken off the job after they tested either high or borderline-high for lead levels, according to sources with knowledge of the situation.

The DOC areas of the facility where ammunition is stored are being tested and cleaned, said the sources.

To the best of their knowledge, nothing like this has ever occurred before, according to a DOC source.

The DOC uses only a small portion of the range, according to sources.

Barbara Dolensek, City Island Civic Association vice president, said that those living nearby have been concerned for years about levels of lead in the outdoor areas of the range because of how it could affect air and water in nearby communities.

Dolensek, a longtime activist who has also advocates for sound abatement at the range, said that high levels of lead were found at the range in 1989, prompting a lawsuit by a group called Soundwatch and the New York City Coastal Fisherman's Association in 1992 to get remediation in compliance with the federal Clean Water Act.

The lawsuit was settled in 1994, and the city began a $10 million lead remediation project to clean berms (where bullets are fired) that was begun in 1995 and completed in 1996, said Dolensek.

"Subsequently, we were told that this (cleaning) was happening regularly," she said.

She noted that another city contract to clean lead at the Rodman's Neck range was awarded in 2006 to MT2, a range service provider.

This development comes of the heels of news that a architect has been selected for a $275 million planned reconstruction of range, and the recent selection for the project of design firm Smith-Miller & Hawkinson.

According to Bob Bieder, 45th Precinct Community Council president, another meeting between NYPD officials and the community council is being planned for late July to discuss the overall reconstruction and the plans for sound abatement, a top priority of nearby communities on Eastchester Bay.

Bieder said that the issue with the high lead level was a separate one from the issue of noise remediation, with sound baffling expected to be included in the overall reconstruction project.

Based on his knowledge, Bieder said that while the contract had been awarded for the design, it has not yet been signed.

The precinct council board meeting with the police officials and the contractor was scheduled later in July so that if the contracts are not finalized, the meeting can be easily rescheduled, said Bieder.

"The tentatively scheduled meeting will be a meet and greet with the contractor to find out more about the project, what is going to happen with staging, and all the other things that have to be addressed on such a huge project," said Bieder. "All the stakeholders have been invited."

Bieder added that he also wants to ensure funding for the sound remediation at the range is budgeted to put to rest rumors that funding for sound remediation may not be available.

A Bronx fashion designer's clothing sends a message

BY ALEX MITCHELL

Talk about making a fashion statement. Edwin Reyes is a 19-year-old from Hunts Point with an eye for style and social justice.

Edwin began his serious interest in design and fashion when he was a sophomore in high school.

Naturally, the Bronx High School for the Visual Arts student took interest in all types of creative art at first, especially painting.

"Around that time my friend invited me to a fashion club and at the time I liked fashion but didn't know much about sewing or any of that, after the first time I went I just fell in love with it," Reyes said.

It wasn't until a lady from a local church lent Edwin her sewing machine that the designer could begin to master his craft.

"For those six months it was like a crash course," Reyes said.

After much petitioning with his school, Edwin convinced the administration to allow him to put on his own ten-piece fashion show.

This was Edwin's first chance to show off his style of 'minimal with a twist.'

"I love using basic colors and patterns," Edwin said as he showed off a blue jumpsuit he made with a pearl waistline.

The two colors he loves to work with most are both red and black.

Since Edwin's high school days his creative style has grown astronomically.

Now, he's created his own brand called "FINE by Edwin Reyes."

Most recently Edwin put on a 'FINE by Edwin Reyes Summer Collection Presentation Fashion Show' on Monday, June 11 at Mott Haven Bar and Grill.

He's in it for more than the fashion, though.

"I want my brand to represent things that are important to me," Reyes said.

"Women's empowerment, Puerto Rico, and equality are all represented by FINE," the designer added.

Reyes went on to mention how he uses women of color to model his clothing, which according to Edwin is something not widely seen or done in the fashion industry.

"Also I don't look for size zero models with perfect skin that would be in a Victoria's Secret Show. I want this to be by real people for real people," Reyes added.

As a proud Puerto Rican descendant, Reyes looks to work on projects dedicated to those lost in Hurricane Maria.

"I would love to make a jacket in memory to those that suffered from Maria, jackets are something I particularly love to make and work with," Reyes said.

He also mentioned he wants to make a similar jacket design template with phrases and slogans pertaining to issues found within minority communities.

"My brand is more than a brand, I want to use it as a political icon," Reyes said. "I want to represent equality and oppose bigotry with FINE," he added.

If all goes according to plan, Edwin would grow his brand in New York, ending up with some real estate in Midtown while keeping the brand Bronx based. For now, he's focusing on his latest pop-up shop at Charlie's Bar and Kitchen in Mott Haven on Thursday, July 12.

Cool Pools NYC program at Mapes Pool

BY SARAH VALENZUELA

All nine public pools in the borough have opened for the summer.

As children, parents and other Bronxites alike lined up to be the first in the water on Wednesday, June 27, the patrons of the Mapes Pool in East Tremont were treated to some new sights.

The pool had been enhanced and redecorated as part of the NYC Parks pilot program 'Cool Pools NYC,' with bold and attractive colors and signage that could be spotted blocks away.

Though the day was cloudy and gray, the energy and the atmosphere at the Mapes Pool could be heard and felt from afar as kids screamed in delight and played in the beautiful waterpark.

"I love the colors, it's so creative," said 7-year-old David Rivera before he jumped back in the pool.

The new designs of the pool area include brightly colored orange, yellow and blue murals of ice cream cones, giant sunglasses, beach balls and even a penguin.

In case any of these designs aren't enough of a harbinger of the season, a giant mural of the sun was also painted on the wall.

"They made the pool look like it's actually summer," said 11-year-old Davis Kenneth Amir Walker as he took a break from playing in the water.

Along with the new designs and paintings, the pool also received some new furniture, including new sun umbrellas, new lounge chairs and even cabana-style shading, which many parents tested out for the first time while keeping an eye on their children.

"I love this and all these new chairs," said David's mom, Judy Rivera, as she lied poolside on one of the reclined chaises while watching her son.

Mapes Pool was one of five pools in underserved neighborhoods citywide chosen to take part in the program.

The area has over a dozen schools and a youth and community center nearby. The pool serves thousands of children each season, according to Community Board 6 district manager, John Sanchez.

"The enhancements really bring more life to the area," said Sanchez in a phone discussion about the pool.

It had initially been constructed in the early 1970s as a 'vest-pocket pool,' similar to the 'vest-pocket parks' of the time which were built on empty lots for underserved city kids, according to NYC Parks.

Prior to the current aesthetic modifications, the pool had remained virtually unchanged in appearance since it was built more than 45 years ago.

"The Mapes Pool enhancement shows that NYC Parks Commissioner Mitchell Silver and Mayor de Blasio are engaged in providing our community with the best of the best of what they deserve," said Bronx Parks Commissioner Iris Rodriguez-Rosa during the opening day of the Mapes Pool.

For now Mapes Pool will be the only one in the Cool Pools NYC program in the Bronx and plans have not been made to enhance the remaining public pools in the borough, according to NYC Parks.

Some of the other programs at Mapes and all the boroughs public pools include a partnership with the SchoolFood Lunch Program, according to Rodriguez-Rosa.

All the borough's pools will serve free breakfast and lunch to all kids 18-years-old and younger.

The Mapes Ballfield is also scheduled for reconstruction and renovation, a project slated for completion by October 2018.

Ocasio-Cortez beats Crowley; political novice, socialist wins Democratic primary battle plastic bags, overcame being outspent 18 to 1 per vote from the establishment-based Crowley. "It's no secret he's very well financed," Ocasio-Cortez said days before her first primary election ever. "But people don't know him, especially the Bronx, so we aren't scared of big money because we have big people," the Parkchester native added.

Without the funds available to take out major ads like Crowley, she turned to social media.

She ended up running a cost efficient, savvy social media campaign that went viral catching the attention of both her district and the nation.

Ocasio-Cortez, a Bernie Sanders organizer, has lived a humble life. Her father passed away during the great recession of the late 2000s; so, it was up to Alexandria and her mother to find ways to get by.

"I had to bartend, I had to wait tables, I know what it's like to be a working class New Yorker," Ocasio-Cortez said as she criticized Crowley for not even living within his district any more. "I grew up uninterested in politics, I thought it was just a local political machine," she added.

"Now we're going to organize the community, we will have town halls, focus on housing improvement, stop forecloses, rent increases and forced rezoning," the 28-year-old said. "We can't wash our hands of these local issues, it's time we bring the fight home," she added.

But prior to the next battle, Ocasio-Cortez wants to take a little breather and catch up on some much needed sleep.

While Alexandria and her crew were celebrating her dramatic victory on Tuesday, late endorser and gubernatorial candidate Cynthia Nixon came to congratulate her win.

"I think she's an amazing human, I think she's run an amazing race. She shows that when you oppose the status quo even when it seems like a mountain, what matters in the end is how you speak to voters and that they can put their trust in you," Nixon said. "It makes me feel doubly excited for my own campaign and makes me excited for New York and United States that we have so many progressive women running for office and being embraced," Nixon proudly added.

Ocasio-Cortez's platform includes the abolishment of ICE, Medicare expansion, free public college tuition and immigration reform.

Meanwhile on the other side of the East River in Queens, Crowley faced the music that his political career was for the time being on hold, by signing tunes to his supporters, while strumming his guitar.

He dedicated his performance of Bruce Springsteen's 'Born to Run' to his Democrat competitor that ousted the powerful congressman during his first primary challenge.

Crowley later released a statement congratulating Ocasio-Cortez, stating, "This is why we must come together. We will only be able to stop Donald Trump and the Republican Congress by working together as a united Democratic Party."

Come this November, Ocasio-Cortez will face GOP candidate Anthony Pappas in the general election hoping to complete one of the most unexpected political spoils in American history.

Congressman Eliot Engel, who also represents the Bronx, easily defeated his three challengers.

Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez learns she won the primary.

City Island traffic problem prompts petition drive

BY SARAH VALENZUELA

An online petition calling for more police presence at a traffic circle leading to City Island has gained much attention since it was released.

The petition was a response to the decades-old traffic problem the area has faced as the traffic circle almost resembles a parking lot from May to September because of the increased number of visitors to the island.

“It’s a community and a safety issue,” said City Islander and creator of the petition, Dan Treiber, of the traffic problem.

Part of the issue with the traffic circle is how it forces cars trying to get onto the island, to merge from three lanes into one.

The congestion slows down cars as they approach the traffic circle.

“The traffic is bad for business,” continued Treiber, who also owns Dan’s Parent’s House, a vintage store on City Island. “If people can’t get to the businesses here, stores and restaurants suffer.”

Treiber initially created the petition on the website Change.org on Monday, June 18.

The online document started gaining traction after it was posted to Facebook on Thursday, June 21 and less than one week after that, the petition had over 300 signatures and counting.

The 45th Precinct regulates traffic at the circle and on City Island during the weekends due to the heavy traffic to and from the area during the summer months and other big holidays, according to Sergeant Edward Lawyer from the 45th Precinct’s Traffic Department.

However, the uptick in warmer weather tourism usually starts earlier than steady traffic regulation does, according to Treiber and other City Islanders.

Sergeant Lawyer said his team is well aware of the island’s traffic and congestion issues.

“We are prepared,” said Lawyer of the concerns and explained the traffic issues were nothing they couldn’t handle.

Lawyer also confirmed that the island, as well as the rest of the precinct, would see additional police officers soon as a result of the new NCO program.

When Treiber approached the City Island Civic Association about his petition at their meeting on June 26, more than 50 people stood in support of his efforts with various others muttering about their frustration with the traffic problem.

“I’ve once seen traffic backed up all the way to the Bronx Victory Memorial (in Pelham Park),” said City Island resident, Teddy Monte. Monte also owns the Grindstone Equity Group office located at the start of City Island Avenue and said he sees the traffic building daily.

“You can easily be stuck in traffic for one hour when it’s really backed up,” Monte continued.

Another resident, John Mitchell, who commutes to and from Manhattan for work, said the traffic can sometimes be worse than the traffic he faces in Manhattan.

The petition will be sent to NYPD administration and the mayor’s office to provide the 45th Precinct with more resources to increase weekend police presence in May, June and September, in addition to more consistent police presence through July and August.

Treiber hopes to gather at least 500 signatures as a starting point, but will continue to reach out to others in the community to get involved, as well.

Children separated at border are housed in the Bronx

BY ALEX MITCHELL

A national controversy is hitting close to home, literally.

Some children separated from families at the U.S./Mexican border are being sheltered in the Bronx.

In collaboration with local social services, the children are being detained at Lutheran Social Services, 831 Eagle Avenue while others have been placed in the care of Catholic Guardian Services throughout the borough and elsewhere.

When this was made public, elected leadership from all over the Bronx held a rally on the steps of the Bronx County Building on Friday, June 22 to oppose the separation of migrant children from their families.

"If anyone has any doubt of the contributions of the immigrant communities just look at the turnaround here in the Bronx," said Borough President Ruben Diaz, Jr. to open the rally and prayer vigil. "We are here today because of a humanitarian crisis...we are here today to address a stain on the nation's soul," he added.

Senator Jeff Klein also spoke on the steps of the courthouse, saying that if not for open immigration policies during the time of the Holocaust he wouldn't be standing there.

"We won't tolerate detaining our children, we won't tolerate these policies on immigration...all of us standing here today are sending a message to Donald Trump, we want to keep the American dream alive," said Klein.

The rally received support on both sides of the political spectrum as well. Conservative district leader Oswald Denis stood alongside the Bronx electeds holding a sign with "Mr. Trump don't mess with our kids" written on it.

"This isn't an issue of parties, this is an issue of humans," Denis said. "We should unite for this, it's what makes the Bronx unique," he added.

Congressman Joseph Crowley also expressed his opposition to these policies that are effecting his district.

"This issue isn't just happening in Texas, it's happening right here in the Bronx, it's so close to home what we're calling for is all Americans to speak out against separating children from their mothers and fathers.

Father Eric Cruz is working with Catholic Guardian Services to care for these children.

The pastor of St. John Chrysostom Church had just returned from his trip to McAllen, TX to speak during the rally.

While the stubble on his beard was incidental, the mud on his shoes was left intentionally to show the thunderstorms he had to trudge through to see the detention centers.

"When we were in that storm it made think, who's is going to be there for those kids when they get frightened my thunder and lightening? When they cry out for their parents, when they're scared? Who is there to comfort them and remind them that they are safe?" Cruz said.

Cruz also assured that the children would be receiving the best of care underneath Catholic Guardian Services as Diaz thanked him for his devout work to the issue at hand.

NY Road Runners' Open Run expands to Pelham Bay Park

BY ROBERT WIRSING

A new program at NYC's largest park is inspiring Bronxites to become more active this summer.

In a fitting tribute to the summer solstice, the New York Road Runners launched its latest free NYRR Open Run Program on Thursday, June 21 at Pelham Bay Park.

The weekly 5K walk/run is scheduled every Thursday at 7 p.m. at the park's Sweetgum Playground located near the intersection of Wilkinson Avenue and Bruckner Boulevard.

The 2.5 mile course starts and finishes at Sweetgum Playground and passes by the historic Bronx Victory Memorial Monument.

Approximately 81 runners and walkers participated in the exciting community exercise.

Pelham Bay Park is the fourth Bronx park, which includes Crotona, Soundview and St. Mary's parks, to host an NYRR Open Run.

It is the third and final NYRR Open Run expansion planned for 2018.

The park is the 16th site across the five boroughs to offer the program.

"When I saw this event I said to myself that I didn't do anything, but work so I need to really do this for myself," expressed Miriam Quinones, Bedford Park resident and NYRR Open Run participant. "It's the cheapest form of physical therapy and you get to meet everyone, from the baby in the stroller to the person on a cane in a comfortable setting."

Pelham Bay Park joins ten citywide parks to have NYRR Mile Markers installed by the end of the year.

The mileposts are designed to assist parkgoers with navigation, distance tracking, mapping their fitness progress and improving their health and wellness.

NYRR Open Run sites are led by community volunteers and are selected based upon local community members' demand for programming, park size, infrastructure and perceived need as measured by NYC Parks' Community Parks Initiative standards.

Held in coordination with Parks' CPI, NYRR Open Run launched in June 2015 with St. Mary's Park being its first site.

NYRR Open Run is a community-based, volunteer-led running initiative providing free weekly runs and walks to local neighborhood parks across all five boroughs.

The program welcomes participants of all ages and experience levels: walkers, strollers and dogs.

"Through the first three years of NYRR Open Run, we have witnessed firsthand the benefits and positive impact that offering free access to group runs and walks can have on members of communities," shared Michael Rodgers, NYRR vice president of youth and community runner engagement.

Since its launch, NYRR Open Run has attracted over 37,000 finishers and 5,000 volunteers.

"Year round, our team is activating at parks in all corners of the city to help motivate and inspire people of all ages and abilities to get outside and stay active for life," expressed Rachel Pratt, NYRR senior vice president of youth and community services.

Weekly 5K walks/runs are scheduled for St. Mary's Park and Soundview Park on Saturdays at 9 a.m. and for Crotona Park on Sundays at 9 a.m.

Participants are encouraged to arrive 15 minutes before the run's start and to leave their valuables at home.

Managing medications by Healthy Seniors CliCC

Many older adults take a variety of medications. On average, they take more medications than any other age group. It is important to take medication as prescribed, but this can be a challenge. Today's article will present some key terms and safety tips to keep in mind.

Prescriptions are medications that you receive with a doctor's order for treatment (for example, pills to treat diabetes or high blood pressure).

Over-the-Counter (OTC) medications can take the form of pills, liquids, or creams and do not need a doctor's order to purchase. These include such things as allergy medications, pain pills, and cough medicine.

Dietary Supplements and Vitamins also do not require a prescription and are used to supplement the diet with additional nutrients. These can include multivitamins, specific vitamins such as B12 and D3, St. Johns Wort, Ginkgo Biloba, etc.

Before starting a new medication have a conversation with your healthcare providers. Make sure that you give them a list of your current medications including any OTC medications and dietary supplements you may be taking. This is important to avoid any drug interactions that could prove harmful to your health. Also discuss any allergies or reactions, such as hives, trouble breathing, etc. that you may have had before from specific medications. This is crucial when seeing a specialist who may not have access to your entire medical record, so you can be treated in the best way possible.

If you are put on a new medication and it is making you feel sick or you are experiencing adverse side effects, call your provider immediately or 911.

Do not stop taking prescription medications even if you feel better unless your provider tells you that it's ok.

If you are having trouble paying for medications, there are programs available to assist. The Partnership for Prescription Assistance provides information on programs offering free and low-cost medications. BigAppleRx is NYC's official discount prescription card. RxAssist provides an online database of patient assistance programs run by the drug companies.

We encourage you to review all the current drugs and supplements you are taking with your provider at your next visit.

Message from Councilman Mark Gjonaj

COUNCILMAN MARK GJONAJ

This week I introduced legislation that would require the NYC Department of Transportation to expand ferry service to Throggs Neck and Queens. The ferry is a common-sense solution that will use one of our most precious natural resources - our waterways - without overburdening our communities or our taxpayers.

Instead of inefficient, half-hearted efforts to repair our broken subway system, or fantasizing about impractical trolleys, we need to work towards a modern infrastructure that can meet the demands of the 21st century. That means investing in new technology to upgrade our existing transportation and coming up with innovative new solutions that will last for generations.

Expanding ferry service is a cost-effective solution that will bring a desperately needed service to our communities.

While the last budget may have ignored this priority, I won't stop fighting until my constituents can make it to Manhattan in a reasonable amount of time, and this is the quickest and easiest way of achieving that.

Our infrastructure is aging and our pothole ridden roads cannot support all the cars that our currently out there. This leads to major congestion and all of the problems that go with it such as traffic delays and environmental damage.

Ferry service may not solve all of our city's transportation woes, but it will certainly help alleviate some of the more immediate stress placed on our system. This is only the first step to what should eventually be a more efficient and reliable transportation system, and we are taking the first steps in the Bronx.

Our district, and our borough, has long been underserved, but that stops with the implementation of this legislation. With this legislation now introduced it is up to the mayor and the city administration to execute the plan.

(Councilman Mark Gjonaj represents the 13th Council District, which includes the Allerton, City Island, Country Club, Edgewater Park, Ferry Point, Locust Point, Morris Park, Pelham Bay, Pelham Gardens, Pelham Parkway, Schuylerville, Silver Beach, Spencer Estate, Throggs Neck, Van Nest, Waterbury LaSalle, Westchester Square, and Zerega neighborhoods.)

MetroCard Mobile Van scheduled stop

Assemblyman Michael Benedetto, in conjunction with Senator Jeff Klein and Councilman Mark Gjonaj, announces that the MetroCard Mobile Van will be parked at the curb in front of the assemblyman's office located at 3602 E. Tremont Avenue, on Friday, July 13, between the hours of 1 to 3 p.m.

The MetroCard Mobile Van enables:

- Senior citizens 65 years of age or older to apply for Reduced-Fare MetroCard and receive a temporary card on the spot (Bring proof of age such as a Medicare card and valid photo identification);

- People with disabilities that qualify, and who present a Medicare card and valid photo ID such as a driver's license to apply for Reduced-Fare MetroCard;
- Daily riders to add money to their Reduced-Fare MetroCard; and

- Everyone to get all MetroCard questions answered.

BY GENE DEFRANCIS, FOUNDER

Summer is here and so is the loud music. Allerton still has very quiet blocks that even a regular radio can echo up and down the neighborhood if turned up to eleven. For all purposes it's a quiet neighborhood and we like to keep it this way.

Men working in their driveway on their car or doing some form of manual labor while listening to loud music does not seem to effect the neighbors as much. Neighbors who know each other don't seem to mind when they are playing loud music either. This is a phenomenon that can either be explained by the working class history of our community and should be recognized if new to the neighborhood or receiving complaints about your loud music.

Also music with swearing and violence on a quiet block is also not appreciated. My block in particular is experiencing this the past few weeks with new neighbors. I noticed the new neighbors keep to themselves. They sit outside drinking and relaxing. Aside from the music, not really bothering anyone.

But because of who I am, I have all the neighbors run up to me with their complaints. I don't mind the neighbors reaching out to me. And I don't disagree with them. The way of dealing with it when it gets out of hand is, I tell all my neighbors how I'm going to solve it and I take my giant speaker, point it at their home and I play my music, Darrius Rucker's 'Wagon Wheel' is my personal favorite.

Keep in mind we are talking about inconsiderate neighbors not necessarily dangerous ones. If you suspect the neighbors are conducting illegal activities then loud music is a great opportunity for one of our NCO officers to pay a visit and introduce themselves.

But as for the inconsiderate neighbors blasting their music simple communication usually works. Especially during the very hot summer days keep your cool and be respectful even though we know you are in the right. If they become rude or belligerent remain calm and then you can email us or another civic association. But whatever you do it is no cause to resort to violence.

Allerton International Merchants Association

In our case my first line as their neighbor is... "I hear your music and it's a rule that anyone who can hear the music is invited to the party." If the person is decent this usually get a laugh. Then leads to an introduction. Keep a smile on your face. Be the first to introduce yourself. If they are rude then walk away and contact a civic association. If they are friendly then find common ground and get to know each other.

Late night music after 11 p.m. is not ok. Be lenient with your neighbors if they are celebrating a graduation or birthday responsibly. Meaning only the loud music is the issue. But if you are playing the loud music be courteous and let your neighbors know that you will be having an event.

These are general rules and conditions. Every case is unique. But we have many people with different habits and different perspectives of what is socially acceptable. So keep communication open. Stay calm. And remember your community is your business.

Once again we remind you that the Allerton International Food Festival is July 21st. Contact us at AllertonMerchants@gmail.com to inquire about sponsoring or renting a table to sell or promote your product.

I also want to speak to all merchants and those who contribute to the holiday lights. Myself and other volunteers will be collecting early this year. I will not have volunteers going door to door in the dead of winter anymore. And the vendor would like to receive payment upon completion of the job. They have been very cooperative with us. Please have your checks ready by September or October. Halloween is the absolute latest we want to accept a check. We are setting a goal of $10,000 to collect this year because we want to include more lights and professionally light the Bronxwood tree.

We are looking for more trustworthy volunteers to help us collect as well and if we can get enough people and raise enough money maybe we can connect the lights on Williamsbridge Road.

Our email address is AllertonMerchants@gmail.com and our next meeting will be held on Monday, July 2 at the beautiful Sanz Banquet Hall.

Finally, we are going to begin another year of advertising in this great newspaper. If you would like to participate we suggest you consider a discount offer so when people see your ad they are encouraged to visit your establishment. It's an extremely affordable way to build relationships and get your name into the public. It helps us also promote various upcoming events. Allerton businesses have priority and there are only 15 spots available. But if you cater to the Allerton community you are welcome to reach out to us and will be considered if a spot is available.

Weekly insurance tips from John Cerini

John Cerini, Enrolled Agent

How are our car insurance rates calculated in New York State? Has this been a question on your mind that eats at you every time you pay your auto insurance bill? As an insurance agent in the state of New York, it was always a mystery to me and sometimes I still wonder how the algorithm really works. However today I will describe a few of the items that go into the mix and decide how much you will pay for your car insurance rates.

The most recent part of our pricing that has changed in the last few decades is our credit score. In 2003, The University of Texas conducted an analysis based on 175,647 policies. This study found that drivers with lower credit scores had a tendency to incur more car insurance losses and had larger payouts on claims. Therefore, illustrating that these consumers were a greater risk to auto insurers. The Federal Trade Commission also did an independent study to comprehend if there were any true links between credit history and the insured risk. In a similar way, they found that credit-based insurance scores effected the risk of the insured drivers. These and other studies that have been continuously ongoing and have continued to agree that this is a fair and reasonable way to assist in a pricing system.

The next is your age, experience and resident household members. This is a big part of your pricing as well. Why? Well if you are a young inexperienced driver, then the insurance companies know that you will most likely have a 'situation' happen more than a driver that has lots of experience. At one time, we were all that young inexperienced driver, and we know (if we are honest) that we were not the best drivers. However, like everything else, practice makes you better. Therefore, the longer you have been driving, the better price you will get. Now if you are like me with teenage children, regardless how long you are driving, your children will raise your rates simply because they live in your household. However, if they don't have a driver's license they will not affect your premiums.

Many people will try not to disclose their young drivers for the obvious reason to save money. However, if your children have an accident and the insurance companies realize that your policy was not being rated properly, the insurance company will have the right to either retroactively rate your policy to the correct premium as of the date your child was licensed or cancel your policy. It is our obligation as the insurance policy holder to be truthful to the insurance companies. When we start a policy, we sign a contract with the insurance company. If we deliberately omit an important fact, that omission may void the contract you signed. This goes for all types of insurance including home owners and business risks as well. Therefore, be like Honest Abe, and tell the truth. You may have to pay more, but you will be covered properly in the event of a loss.

The type of vehicle you are driving will also play a factor in your premium calculation. For example, if you are driving a minivan, you should pay less than if you are driving a Porsche. There are three factors that go into this philosophy. One, the vehicle is considered a sports car which typically people drive faster. Two, the vehicle may be more likely to be stolen because it is a very rare car and parts are in high demand. Three, the simple fact that it would cost the insurance company more money to replace it in the event of a theft, makes it a higher risk. Now this would be the same for many other vehicles, not just very expensive vehicles. For example, you may be able to go buy or lease a brand-new vehicle today for under $200 a month, however that vehicle may actually have an MSRP of $40,000 and the insurance company will have to pay a large amount all at once to your finance company in the event of a loss.

The location where you live and park your vehicle at night will also be part of the premium calculation. In New York City, residents will usually pay different rates based on which borough they live in. For example, a Brooklyn resident will pay more than a Bronx resident. The 'territory' has an effect simply because based on losses in any given community will statistically show the insurance companies that it is a higher risk for that insured. Specific area accidents, claims, thefts, fraud and other factors will come together with all the other pieces we have been discussing in the article as a whole to rate your policy. This is the unfortunate reason we see many cars in our area with out of state license plates. Simply because Florida, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states are less expensive than New York state and New York City specifically. Many people will try to insure a vehicle at a friend or family members house upstate to save money. However, this is still considered insurance fraud. The insurance company is supposed to be compensated based on the facts of where you live, work and drive your vehicle on a regular basis. If you claim to live and work in Albany, when you are actually in the Bronx, your rates will be lower, but once again you may have a huge problem when you have a loss. Insurance fraud is a huge offense and can result in jail time. I am sure you have heard the phrase 'Money can buy happiness.' Please don't try to save a few dollars, by giving your insurance company a false address. In the end, it won't be worth the few dollars you save.

Your marital status may affect your price. This factor and others described in this column may not affect your pricing. Each insurance company will have their own variables which will go into the pricing calculations. However, in some cases two drivers the exact same age will pay different rates if one is married. The logic is that a married person may be a safer driver.

Males will typically pay more than females for the same coverage in the same community for the same car with the same credit rating with the same driving experience. Studies have shown that women are better drivers. This statistic may be up for discussion at your next family dinner, but the insurance companies are confident in this decision.

Your occupation may be a factor in your insurance rate. For example, some companies may not accept an insured who is a delivery person for a living, or a cab driver. The fear is that you will use this vehicle for work. Now does this mean that you can't insure your vehicle no matter what your occupation? Of course not, every person is insurable at a cost. Therefore, if you want to deliver goods with your vehicle, that is fine as long as the insurance company rates your policy for that risk. Therefore, once again, be honest with your insurance carrier and you will be fine. If you use the vehicle for work, then it must be rated as such.

The coverage you need will also affect your price. For example, if you have a 1995 Ford Escort, you will most likely just need liability coverage and not theft, fire, vandalism or collision coverage. Based on the fair market value of the vehicle you would not want to pay a higher premium if the cars value is very low. If you have a very expensive car, you can imagine it will cost more to insure. If you have a brand-new 2018 GMC Acadia, you would not want to take a chance and drive this vehicle without full coverage. If you own a home or other assets, you will want to increase your limits of liability to protect yourself financially. Don't take a chance in losing your home due to an auto accident lawsuit. The lawyer for the person you might have hit with your vehicle will not have a problem in seizing your assets to compensate his client as well as himself. Your future earnings may also up for grabs. Therefore, if you own other assets or have money in the bank, insure yourself well. It may cost a few dollars more, but your peace of mind will be well worth the additional premiums.

Having no prior insurance or a lapse of insurance coverage will also affect your insurance premiums. You must be careful of a lapse. Obviously if you have a lapse of coverage, you are driving with no protection. In the event of an accident, you can lose everything you worked so hard for. There is also a fine from NYS Department of Motor Vehicles of $8 per day for a lapse of coverage. Now a few days is not that bad, but the amount can quickly accumulate. If it happens once, you may be able to pay the fine, but on your second offense the DMV will suspend your license for the same number of days as your lapse of coverage. Many of us need our driver's license in life.

Without it, you may not be able to get to work, or even work (if you drive for a living).

The last, but not the least impact on your insurance price is your the driver's actual driving history. This means, your accident and moving violation history. If you have had accidents, this will affect your pricing as well as if you have had any moving violations. DMV assigns points for certain traffic violations to track dangerous drivers. When a driver accumulates multiple points in a short period of time, their license may be suspended. DMV may also charge a Driver Responsibility Assessment fee, which is separate from any fines imposed by the court.

Failure to pay a DRA charge can also result in a suspended license. A few common violations and points assigned are as follows: Speeding 1 to 10 MPH over law (2 Pts.) Speeding 11-20 MPH over (4 Pts.) Cell Phone or Texting (5 Pts.) Stop Sign or Red Light (3 Pts.)

As you can see in this comprehensive article, there are so many factors that can affect your auto insurance rate. These and other factors will have positive or negative effects on your current and future rates. Our office will be happy to discuss these variable with you in more detail during an auto insurance policy review. Give us a call at (718) 829-3200 to set up an appointment. We are located at 3600 E. Tremont Avenue. As local insurance brokers, we live here as well. We know your insurance needs and will provide the best service while searching for the right coverage at the correct price. Due to the complexities of the insurance system, not every insurance company will weigh every factor the same. As an insurance broker and agent this article was written from my experience, but does not reflect the opinion of ANY insurance carrier. Your insurance company may not use any of the factors I have discussed. Feel free to contact your broker or agent or call us for a detailed policy review. Have a safe summer. When the weather is nice we tend to drive more. Be safe out there.

Country Bank receives Burke Award

Country Bank was bestowed with the highest honor by the Burke Rehabilitation Hospital's board of trustees at the 23rd Annual Burke Award Dinner. The award was presented on Thursday, June 7, at Brae Burn Country Club in Purchase, New York.

The Burke Award Dinner recognizes individuals or groups who have made significant contributions to the field of rehabilitation, either through personal achievements, the development of research or the establishment of programs and facilities to assist individuals with disabilities.

Since Country Bank's founding in 1988, the Murphy family has ingrained their culture of philanthropy into the business. With Joseph Murphy, Jr. serving as president and CEO, Country Bank's charitable efforts can be seen throughout the New York communities they serve.

Several members of the Country Bank family have turned to Burke to meet their rehabilitative needs. Their positive experiences are the driving force behind their continued support of Burke's mission.

The Burke Award Dinner is the hospital's largest fundraiser of the year. Country Bank served as the Diamond Sponsor of the evening, helping to raise thousands of dollars for Burke's new Marsal Caregiver Center, the first on-site caregiver center at a rehabilitation hospital in the country. Jeff Menkes, president and CEO of Burke Rehabilitation Hospital, acknowledged the timeliness of the award as Country Bank celebrates its 30th anniversary.

"It is a distinct pleasure to celebrate these extraordinary people at our dinner," said Menkes. "Our honorees this year demonstrate the very essence of the Burke Award. They have made significant contributions to the hospital by their example, advocacy and financial support."

"Throughout Country Bank's existence, our core mission has remained the same – to be a community bank in every sense and a model for corporate citizenship," said Murphy. "It is our privilege to serve and support local non-profit organizations. We are humbly honored by this recognition."

Since opening the bank's first New York City branch at Woodlawn, Country Bank added locations in Riverdale, Scarsdale, Second Avenue and the flagship branch located on Third Avenue. To mark their anniversary milestone, the bank unveiled a fresh identity, including a new message inspired by the local connections the bank has with New Yorkers, which reads, 'Here You Are Family.' The bank has also offered special promotions and events throughout the year, in appreciation of its loyal customers and business partners.

"The Murphy family and Country Bank's spirit of generosity helped to make the Burke Award Dinner once again, a tremendous success," said Menkes. "The funds raised will help us continue to position Burke as a leader in rehabilitative medicine."

Founded in 1988, Country Bank is an FDIC-insured, full service commercial bank offering products and services for commercial banking and lending customers, small business customers and individual consumers. Country Bank is a regional leader in the commercial real estate lending business devoted to building relationships with their customers. In 2015 it opened its flagship branch on 42nd Street and Third Avenue in NYC. The bank has additional branches in Midtown NYC, Riverdale, Woodlawn and Scarsdale. Consecutively rated one of the top 200 Com-

St. Barnabas High School receives STEM Grant

Saint Barnabas High School has been awarded a $15,000 grant to support STEM-related education with the development of a Virtual Reality (VR) program through Gannett/USA Network's 2018 'A Community Thrives' (ACT) Program. Non-profits were challenged to apply and compete for much needed funding.

Saint Barnabas High School's VR learning program will now be able to open a new world to current areas of study such as math, science, history and art.

The project will also be integrated into the Saint Barnabas High School Internship Program, which allows for qualified seniors the opportunity to study in a specific field of interest. Students will be able to discover and learn in 3-D elements of the human body in their biology and health classes; chemistry students will participate in lab work otherwise not possible to perform in their classroom; and history students will take 'field trips' to European battlefields or visit museums around the world without ever leaving the school building.

"We are very grateful to Gannett/USA Today Network for this special opportunity. The options are endless and provide a whole new level of potential learning. Medical interns can watch surgeries and other procedures to help them narrow down their field of interest. Law interns can be present for past and current court trials that can help them learn how to navigate during a cross examination or questioning their client. It will enable us to explore new subject areas and electives such as astronomy, engineering and architecture", stated principal Theresa Napoli.

ACT, now in its second year, awards grants to non-profit organizations with projects focused on improving local communities in the categories of Wellness, Education, or Arts and Culture. The nationwide program empowers communities to take on local challenges and spread the word about the issues important to them by using the platform of USA Today Network, which includes USA Today and 109 local publications.

"ACT is all about making an impact through the reach of the USA Today Network," said Andy Yost, chief marketing officer, Gannett. "This year's recipients are certainly deserving, and we are honored to support them."

"We were so moved by the number of inspiring ideas submitted to ACT," said Bob Dickey, president and chief executive officer of Gannett. "We are excited about the opportunity to empower these organizations to create real change in their communities."

About Andrea's Dance Studio

Andrea's Dance Studio has been a family owned and operated dance studio for over 50 years. Our first studio opened in the Bronx in 1962, and we have been teaching the local area kids to Love Dance and Love Life ever since. The studio is now owned and directed by Nicole Fusco who has been a student, teacher and choreographer with this studio for 30 years. Nicole Fusco has trained in all different styles of dance. Throughout her childhood she attended American Ballet Academy summer programs and as she grew older trained in Manhattan at Broadway Dance Center and Steps in NYC. She was accepted for the dance program at LaGuardia High School for Performing Arts. As a teacher and choreographer Nicole's students have won numerous awards and competitions throughout the tri-state area. She has also taught dance in many public after school programs in the Bronx and in Westchester as well as teaching dance programs in Fordham University and Hostos Community College. Nicole is honored to have been given the opportunity to own the dance studio she started her training in. She now wants to continue to grow the studio with the same family feel Andrea's Dance Studio has always been known for with a fresh new look and style!

Andrea's Dance studio accept students from Beginner to Professional Level of all ages starting at 1.5 years old through adults. We offer many different styles of dance including Jazz, Tap, Ballet, Hip Hop, Contemporary/Lyrical, Salsa, Gymnastics, Musical Theatre & Mommy & Me. We also offer competitive level classes and our competition students regularly compete in regional and national competitions through out New York, New Jersey & Connecticut. Our Company students have also travelled and performed at Epcot Center in Disney World Florida, Madison Square Garden for a New York Knicks Pregame show and many other dance events! Our dedicated staff is highly trained not only in their dance specialties, but also to work with children of all ages!

Business Owners and State Legislators Annual Bronx Day In Albany

Fordham University
Founded 1841

The history of Fordham University spans over 175 years, from the university's beginnings as St. John's College in 1841, to its establishment as Fordham University, and its clerical independence in the 1950s. Fordham is the oldest Roman Catholic institution of higher education in the northeastern United States, and the third-oldest university in the state of New York, after New York University and Columbia University.

In 1840, the Irish-born Most Reverend John J. Hughes purchased the bulk of Rose Hill Manor, a private farm in the village of Fordham for slightly less than $30,000 with the intent of establishing St. Joseph's Seminary, which was paired with St. John's College in 1841.

Rose Hill was the name originally given to the site in 1787 by its owner, Robert Watts, a wealthy New York merchant, in honor of his family's ancestral home in Scotland.

After the turn of the 20th century, the university began to expand considerably, opening several new schools as well as changing its name.

St. John's College officially became Fordham University on March 7, 1907.

Beginning in the 1920-1921 calendar year, all students attending the university who did not reside with parents or immediate relatives were required to live in the university's residence halls.*

Urban Health Plan
Founded 1974

Urban Health Plan, the predecessor of the San Juan Health Center, began in 1974 as the brainchild of Dr. Richard Izquierdo, a life-long resident of the south Bronx, and a pedestrian/family practitioner.

Affectionately known as 'Doc', he set out to provide basic and specialty medical care, comparable to those found in the local hospital outpatient clinics, to the community's predominantly Hispanic and poor residents.

In 1967, Dr. Izquierdo purchased an abandoned building on Southern Boulevard and Westchester Avenue with a down payment of $3,000 to create the San Juan Health Center. Seven years later, Urban Health Plan, a private, non-profit corporation licensed by the NYC Department of Health, was established to broaden the scope of the work started by San Juan Health Center.

Today, Urban Health

Center provides comprehensive and affordable primary and specialty health care services to the Hunts Point, Mott Haven and Morrisania neighborhoods.

The street intersection that borders Urban Health Plan was recently co-named Dr. Richard 'Doc' Izquierdo Way, in honor of the practice's charismatic founder.

Arthur Avenue Retail Market
Established 1944

During the Prohibition era, the Italian immigrants were known for booze smuggling and the proliferation of pushcart vendors. In order to bring the vendors together in a more sanitary environment, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia opened the Arthur Avenue Retail Market.

At first the market was made up of 100 vendors, each occupying a small stall that sold a single product, such as tomatoes, olive oil, chickens, etc.

By 1950 the composition of the market changed with its 30 vendors now specializing in a broader selection of product. As shops merged and shopkeepers retired the number of retailers consolidated to 15 by 1970. Today the market is occupied by ten solid businesses.

The Arthur Avenue Retail Market is the lynchpin of the Belmont 'Little Italy' neighborhood. Every day Bronxites and shoppers from Manhattan, Westchester, Rockland, Connecticut and New Jersey trek to the market to purchase the finest Italian delicacies.

The market is anchored by the 80-year-old Liberatore's Garden Of Plenty, followed by Peter's Meat Market and Mike's Deli. Rounding out the market's roster are: La Marqueta Coffee (the newest business), Casa Grande Cigars, Bronx Beer Hall, Boiano Fruits, Mt. Carmel Grocery, Cafe Al Mercato and Felix Apparels.

Eastwood Manor Caterers
Founded 1960

Richard Naclario, born on Wallace and Alerton avenues, and his five brothers, purchased a catering hall on Eastchester Road, off Boston Road, in 1960.

The Naclario's operated a heavy construction company that installed sewer mains and paved roadways. In the later part of the 1950s the firm was hired to lay the sewer and water lines, as well as build the lakes, mountains and desert for the iconic Freedomland.

After serving in the Korean Conflict, Richard qualified to separate from the service two weeks early because he had lined up a construction job from a developer that was building homes and a catering facility called Racine Way on Eastchester Road. Little did Richard realize at the time that a few years later he and his brothers would be purchasing the wedding hall that he actually had a hand in building.

After 58 years in the catering business, Richard appreciates all the great memories that the establishment has been a part of in thousands and thousands of Bronxites' lives.

Eastwood Manor Caterers has provided its space for free to local church groups and civic organizations and hosts a gigantic Christmas Party, complete with gifts, for the neighborhood youth, each year.

Golden Glow Cookie Co.
Founded by 1954

In 1954 Golden Glow Cookie Co. was established on Barnes Avenue at Burke Avenue by Rose Florio and her father. They began baking traditional homemade cookies from old family recipes. Now 64 years and four generations later the Florio family continues to produce delicious cookies, cakes and pastries

The family pays close attention to detail and only high-quality ingredients are used. Decades of experience ensure that the baking and caramelized processes are followed exactly, producing consistent quality.

Golden Glow Cookies, cakes and pastries are baked fresh daily to guarantee maximum taste and freshness. From traditional Italian cookies to all-American favorites like chocolate chip and oatmeal raisin, there is a cookie for everyone.

The home-style category offers 32 different varieties, while the Mama Rosa cookie line boasts another 21 delectable treats. Golden Glow also developed a variety of sugar-free cookies.

Golden Glow's carrot cake easily bested its Brooklyn challengers, MIA and Jr's Cheese-cake, at the Carrot Cake Tasting Challenge at this year's 'Made In The Bronx' exhibition.

Golden Glow cookies are a part of every Bronxites' lives - making their appearances at school events, private parties and catered gatherings.

McCall's Bronxwood Funeral Home
Established 1966

In 1966 three entrepreneurs from Morrisania came together to create McCall's Bronxwood Funeral Home. Herbert T. McCall owned the Herbert T. McCall Funeral Home since 1952; Emma Brisbane operated Flowers By Emily next door to the funeral home; and James Alston ran Freddie's Bar and Cafe.

Realizing that the community they were serving was moving to the northern part of the borough, the three combined resources to lease and then purchase the site at 4035 Bronxwood Avenue where the funeral home stands today.

Despite the passing of the original operators, Alston's son James Alston, an attorney, has continued as the sole survivor of the group.

McCall's incorporated technology into the industry: computerized funeral arrangements, web broadcasting, stretch limousines and state-of-the-art embalming and viewing accommodations.

The community business supports churches, civic associations and social groups during Christmas, Memorial Day and Thanksgiving. The funeral home contributes to numerous scholarships for underserved children and for college-bound community youth. The funeral home recently donated $500 towards the annual Co-op City Youth Scholarship awards.

Fair @ The Square Brings Summer Fun

Bronxites enjoyed some early summertime fun at the tenth annual Fair @ The Square on Saturday, June 16 along East Tremont and Lanes avenues. The free event presented by Westchester Square Business Improvement District and Image Marketing featured live musical performances, vendors, food and carnival games. This year's honorees included Sanitation Salvage, Metro Optics, Montefiore Westchester Square and Santwer Locksmiths.

Elder question of the week

SALVATORE M. DI COSTANZO

Dear Mr. Di Costanzo: I am in the process of a divorce. What happens if I die or lose my capacity?

In many cases, a divorce is a traumatic experience for both parties. Usually, neither party has given much thought to the unintended consequences of death or disability during divorce. Until there is a final decree or judgment of separation or divorce, each party remains the spouse of the other.

Upon the death of one party, and without proper planning, the surviving spouse maintains all inheritance rights, whether by Last

Will and Testament ("Will"), Revocable Trust or intestacy (meaning you have no Will). Moreover, all beneficiary designations, transfer on death accounts, fiduciary appointments (such as agents under a power of attorney, executors in a Will, trustees of a trust and health care agents under a health care proxy) remain intact until the divorce is complete.

None of us know when we will die or become disabled, but if it happens during the pendency of a divorce, your spouse may receive a windfall and/or be in a position to make your financial and medical decisions. To prevent this from happening, you must redraft your Will or Revocable Trust to disinherit your spouse to the fullest extent permissible under New York State law. In New York, a surviving spouse is statutorily entitled to receive a portion of your estate and this cannot be changed.

You should also remove your spouse as agent under your power of attorney and health care proxy.

Children's Hospital at Montefiore ranks one of best in nation

On the just-released list of Best Children's Hospitals in the United States, the Children's Hospital at Montefiore (CHAM) continues to rank as one of the finest in the nation. According to U.S. News & World Report, CHAM is among the top 50 in Gastroenterology & GI Surgery, Neurology & Neurosurgery, Neonatology, Cancer, Nephrology, Orthopedics and Urology.

The annual rankings highlight pediatric centers that deliver state-of-the-art medical care to children with complex conditions. Since opening in 2001, CHAM has built a reputation for providing cutting-edge care to infants and children with a wide range of healthcare needs, including complex surgeries such as liver and kidney transplants, brain surgery and orthopedic procedures.

"Our surgical specialists at CHAM perform hundreds of procedures every year, ranging from minor surgery to the most challenging cases," said Daphne Hsu, M.D., interim chair of pediatrics at Montefiore and Albert Einstein College of Medicine and physician-in-chief at CHAM. "Families choose CHAM because they are confident that we provide the highest level of care, using advanced techniques, while addressing the overall needs of children and their families."

Among the specialties ranked at CHAM:

Gastroenterology & GI Surgery jumped up 14 places to number 16 in the nation this year.

Neonatology, including our Neonatal Intensive Care Units (NICU) and services also moved up 23 places to rank at number 27.

Neurology & Neurosurgery placed 26th on the top 50 list.

Pediatric Cancer care is ranked number 34 in the nation.

CHAM's commitment to patient safety and continuous performance improvement efforts, robust infection prevention policies and practices, and integrated teams of surgeons and healthcare providers are just some of the reasons the Bronx-based children's hospital continues to feature among the best in the country.

The Best Children's Hospitals rankings are the only comprehensive source of quality-related information on U.S. pediatric hospitals. They rely on clinical data and on an annual survey of pediatric specialists. The rankings methodology factors in patient outcomes, such as mortality and infection rates, as well as available clinical resources and compliance with best practices. This year's rankings will be published in the U.S. News & World Report's "Best Hospitals 2019" guidebook in stores late September. Visit Best Children's Hospitals for the full rankings. For more information go to <http://www.cham.org>.

BY MICHELE TORIONI

We would like to offer our condolences to our district manager Matt Cruz on the loss of his father, our prayers to him and his family.

Our last meeting of the season on Tuesday, June 19, brought updates on community concerns. The owner of the building at 3250 Westchester Avenue, has agreed to not erect a 12-story building but rather a 7-story building with parking for 298 cars. Senator Jeff Klein was influential in negotiating these changes. People blocking residents driveways, continues. It is feared that issue will get worse once the new building at 3250 Westchester Avenue is operational.

NYC Department of Transportation Bronx Borough Commissioner Nivardo Lopez was informed of large trucks cutting through St. Paul Avenue trying to get to Westchester Avenue. The trucks then cannot turn on to Westchester Avenue so they have to back up thereby causing the cars behind, to also back up. This has happened several times already. It was suggested that placing a sign at the foot of St. Paul Avenue saying 'No Trucks' might help. No response has yet been received but this issue it will continue to be followed up on.

People disposing of their personal trash in the cans on the street and not in their personal cans, has increased. Elaine Fiorio of Assemblyman Mike Benedetto's office, who was in attendance at our recent meeting contacted the NYC Sanitation Department, and received the following response: "Chase is consistently getting summons."

The Sanitation superintendent personally has gone into the bank to speak with the manager on a few occasions. The manager told him they only have a person in once a week to sweep.

The superintendent told him regardless, they need to sweep every day. They pay their summons, but still don't clean up. The superintendent will pay them a visit again. His night crew does pick up the garbage but they will be on the lookout between the hours of 10 to 11 a.m. when summons are issued.

He said he will also look into putting a trash can back on that corner."

Local food and recycling return to Bronx greenmarkets

The Bronx is getting greener, thanks to the opening of nonprofit GrowNYC's seasonal Bronx Borough Hall and Parkchester Greenmarkets, bringing more than just fresh, locally grown produce to the area.

Every week shoppers at these farmers markets can drop clothing and other textiles for reuse and recycling, and deposit kitchen scraps into bins for transport to a local compost site.

GrowNYC has accepted food scraps at its Bronx Borough Hall and Poe Park Greenmarkets since 2013, through its zero waste programs funded by the New York City Department of Sanitation. This service was added to the Parkchester Greenmarket in 2014.

Since they began accepting food scraps, such as vegetable trimmings, stale bread, and coffee grounds, 70,820 lbs. have been collected and transformed into renewable energy or compost for local farming and gardening projects.

GrowNYC also provides drop-offs for clothing and textiles at these markets. Tax-deductible donations come in the form of clothing, shoes, bedding and towels. Materials are sorted for reuse or recycling.

GrowNYC has collected more than 5 million pounds of clothing and textiles and over 11 million pounds of food scraps at dozens of collection sites throughout the five boroughs.

Together, food scraps and textiles comprise 27% of New York City's waste, making efforts like these critical to reducing the Big Apple's environmental footprint.

Bronx Borough Hall and Poe Park Greenmarkets take place Tuesdays through November 27.

Food scraps and clothing are accepted at 161st Street and the Grand Concourse from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.; food scraps and clothing are collected at 192nd Street and the Grand Concourse from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Parkchester Greenmarket runs on Fridays through November 30 at Westchester Avenue and White Plains Road food scraps and clothing are accepted from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For more information, visit www.grownyc.org or call (212) 788-7964.

BY STEVEN GLOSSER

The Pelham Parkway Neighborhood Association had two guests at its last meeting before the summer recess. It was very well attended with over 60 community residents. Our speakers were Councilman Mark Gjonaj and Neighborhood Initiatives Development Corporation director Hazel Miura.

We had a few announcements before the meeting started. Senator Jeff Klein will be hosting a Fireworks Extravaganza at Orchard Beach on Thursday June 28 starting at 7 p.m. There will be a program and live entertainment. To RSVP call his office (718) 822-2049. Klein and the NIDC will be having a free Peephole Installation initiative for seniors and the physically impaired. They are partnering together to provide peephole installations to seniors at eye-level for ease and safety.

This offer is exclusively for residents of the 34th Senate District. For more information about this program please call (718) 231-9800, ext. 24 or (718) 822-2049. Please take advantage of this program.

Councilman Gjonaj captured the audience's attention as they listened intently as he elaborated on his first 100 days in office. Mark explained the mayor's proposed budget for NYC is $89 billion dollars which broken down comes to $10,400 per each resident.

We spend four times more than the top five city's in the country. A $1.6 billion increase in property tax is also part of the mayor's budget.

Mark is very critical of how taxpayer money is spent. He reiterated we need to spend money more wisely. Especially on education, transportation and quality of life. Mark has received statistics and feedback from the 49th Precinct on the high crime areas in the neighborhood. In response to that he will procure three cameras for the following high crime areas: Cruger Avenue and Lydig Avenue; White Plains Road and Pelham Parkway; and Lydig Avenue and White Plains Road. The cameras cost $100,000 per camera and will be well worth it to help combat the influx of crime and drug sales in those areas. One of Mark's goals is to improve the quality of life in the community. As proof of how in tune with the community Mark is, his office is open one late night per week and Mark will be there himself to assist those in need. His new office is located at 1478 Williamsbridge Road.

On the subject of temporary classrooms commonly known as trailers to accommodate for overcrowding schools. Mark has introduced a bill to make school trailers illegal. Currently there are 5,400 students going to school in trailers meaning the children and the teachers must also go outside all year round to these trailers to teach our students. What an inconvenience this must be for both teachers and children. On the subject of children Mark is hell-bent on better educating and preventing our children from using drugs.

Mark is exploring the use of cameras on city buses as a way of additional law enforcement. The delicate subject of homeless on White Plains Road was brought up by a member of the audience. Also appearing at the meeting and making note of all the homeless locations were the neighborhood coordination officers for our sector. If you spot something that you need our NCO's for please contact them by call or text. Sector B officers are police officer Sanchez phone (929) 273-9685 and police officer Mujaj phone (929) 364-8600. Mark informed us there are currently 63,000 homeless in the city due to rising rents, drugs. Mark suggested permanent housing is needed to get the homeless off the street.

The topic of redeveloping on Pelham Parkway was tackled next by Mark. Right now there is a major improvement on the north side with the replacement of water pipes which will take years according to Mark. It was mentioned that there were more trees cut down that was supposed to be but the NYC Parks Department insisted they only cut down sick trees. The PPNA thanks Mark very much for appearing at our meeting and keeping the community up to date on all the issues.

Next guest speaker to appear was Miura who was accompanied by Suad Hassan, Crime Prevention coordinator.

The NIDC offices are located at 2523 Olinville Avenue. To reach her call (718) 231-9800. Hazel's direct email is hmiura@nidcny.org. The NIDC handles a litany of services to the residents of the Bronx. We strongly suggest you check their website at www.nidcny.org. Among the services are Housing and Community Services where they will work with both tenants and property owners to address a broad variety of housing issues. Their goal is to ensure tenant rights to safe, decent and affordable housing are protected.

Tenant Counseling - NIDC assists tenants with repairs, harassment, lease renewals, and rent overcharges.

Eviction Prevention - They serve as lay advocates for tenants who do not have legal representation and have conducted clinics to help prepare tenants to represent themselves in court.

Tenant Organizing - The NIDC has an extensive record of accomplishment of organizing effective tenant associations that get results.

Landlord Assistance - The NIDC goal is to give owners the information and assistance they need to ensure that their properties are well maintained and that they fulfill their obligations under the law.

Workshops and Community Outreach - The NIDC conducts workshops on tenants rights, produces newsletters, and sends out informational mailings.

Community Organizing - They provide technical assistance to local community organizations helping them form and develop the infrastructure and outreach necessary to have real impact in their communities.

Crime Preventative Initiative - The crime preventative initiative helps seniors live independently and safely in our communities. Through the program they have been able to help seniors more safely remain in their homes provided them with relevant information and are ensuring the issues that seniors are confronting on a daily basis are made known to the police and other crime prevention authorities as well as their elected officials.

Building Security - The NIDC has produced a building security handbook with useful advice on how tenants can organize for safer buildings.

Abandoned 'Zombie' Property Project - The NIDC in partnership with Senator Jeff Klein has initiated a program to address the growing problem of abandoned properties throughout the senator's district. Please take advantage of all these free wonderful programs offered by the NIDC.

The Pelham Parkway Neighborhood Association works around the clock and year round to improve the quality of life in Pelham Parkway. Please follow us on Facebook for all the current happenings in the neighborhood. We can always be reached by email at pelhamparkwayNA@gmail.com. The next meeting of the PPNA will be Tuesday, September 4 at Bronx House 990 Pelham Parkway South at 7:15 p.m. The PPNA wishes everyone a safe, wonderful summer. See you in September.

BCA opens photo-based art exhibition

Bronx Council on the Arts – Longwood Arts Project opens their first ever all women photography and photo-based art exhibition, Through a Feminine Lens at Longwood Art Gallery @ Hostos. Through Wednesday, August 8, seven emerging female artists of African and Latino descent will present their artworks capturing the urgent and compelling ideas on what it means to be an immigrant, a racial minority, and a mother.

This exhibition will also present an Artist Talk on Wednesday, July 18, at which the artists will discuss how reclaiming a feminine voice is reflected through their work and how this can initiate change.

Frequently questioned, critiqued, and debated around the world, especially in the given socio-political environment, is: what does it mean to be an inclusive society when often people are segregated due to their various differences – racial, sexual, gender, personal beliefs, economic, or immigration status? The works featured in Through a Feminine Lens enunciate a dialogue between art and social politics. While the artists' works are rooted in a combination of historical contexts, memories and past, the various forms of their representation challenge convention and spark a conversation that can't be ignored.

Some artists in this exhibition use photographs juxtaposed with everyday objects (bright color fabric) to create a relational experience of being. Others use double exposure, superimposition or fragmentation to evoke memory.

Through both straightforward and abstract expressionist artworks, Through a Feminine Lens connects Christa David fuses the mediums of painting, collage and assemblage to examine faith, power, politics and identity.

Lisa DuBois's photographs are based on the spiritual significance of water in ritual practices.

Maria Estevez tackles frailty and the ephemeral using translucent, double exposed faint black and white images of beauty; likewise, Melanie Gonzalez captures landscape in monochromatic and double exposed photographs to reflect on her own complex cultural and national identity.

Woodrow Wilson Triangle War Memorial in Soundview

I always enjoyed wandering around the Bronx with John McNamara. One day, sometime after stopping to visit with Artie Seifert on Clason Point, we decided to check out a few odd place names including Murray Court. After walking through the court and looking over the bungalows, he wanted to take a break so we walked across the street and stopped at Wilson Triangle where I snapped this photograph. The triangle is bounded by Soundview, Underhill and Patterson Avenues and was acquired by the City of New York in October of 1912 through condemnation proceedings when some streets were being laid out in the area.

I was facing south when I took this photograph and Soundview Avenue is at the left and Underhill Avenue is at the right shaded by a huge elm tree. The war memorial, visible behind John, is facing Soundview Avenue and was commissioned by the residents of Clason Point who raised $3500 to have it created and installed. It honors the neighborhood residents who lost their lives in World War I and was sculpted by James Novelli (1885-1940) in 1928, one year after the triangle became park land. Unfortunately, the advent of World War II caused a decline in commissions and led the sculptor into the throes of depression. He hanged himself at his home on May 31, 1940 leaving his wife and 16 year old son.

The bas relief bronze plaque he created of the life-size female on the memorial at Wilson Triangle is seven feet high and is set on an eleven-foot monument of Deer Isle granite. A bronze eagle with spread wings adorns the top of the steel while the dates 1917 and 1918 are carved at the bottom of the memorial.

The wording at the top of the memorial reads: Dedicated to those who made the supreme sacrifice and to all others from Clason Point who entered the service of our country in the World War. New York City, AD 1928.

Below that are quotations from four United States presidents beginning with Washington which reads: Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair, the event is in the hands of God. The next quote is from Lincoln who wrote: That government of the people by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth. William McKinley is next and says: No imperial designs lurk in the American mind. They are alien to American sentiment, thought and purpose. The final quote is from Woodrow Wilson himself and simply states: That the world may be safe for democracy.

Wilson was our 28th president serving from 1913 to 1921

REPRINTED FROM 5-12-2011

John McNamara stopped to rest at Wilson Triangle after a day of hiking around Clason Point. The war memorial behind him faces toward Soundview Avenue and was installed in 1928. The big elm tree at the right faces Underhill Avenue and Patterson Avenue would be in the background connecting both avenues. I took the photo on February 21, 1998.

and was actively involved with the armistice as well as the creation of the League of Nations. He was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1919 for his efforts in helping to create a lasting peace. Thus he was a natural choice for the naming of a park in his honor and for having the World War I memorial installed thereat.

He had passed away in 1924 so was still very much in mind when this park was created. Now that you know how and why the park was created, think if him the next time you pass that way

Lots of great stuff for everyone. Food and beverages will be available for purchase. Help the association raise funds.

Derfner Judaica Museum + The Art Collection at Hebrew Home at Riverdale announces its latest exhibition, Swords into Ploughshares: Sculpture by Jay Moss on view in the Pauline and William Goldfine Pavilion Lobby Gallery from July 15–October 7.

A reception will take place on Sunday, July 15, from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the Goldfine Pavilion Lobby Gallery, located at 5901 Palisade Avenue in the Riverdale section.

This event is free and open to the public. R.S.V.P. to (718) 581-1596 or art@hebrewhome.org. Photo I.D. required for admission.

Upcoming Wave Hill events and programs:

Saturday, July 7; Sunday, July 8: Family Art Project: Billowing Sails and Handmade Boats: Use brightly colored kite paper to design colorful, flag-like sails.

Then collage a mixture of buoyant materials cut from repurposed foam trays, corks, plastics and reeds, and construct a handmade sailboat. Keep it as a small sculpture—or see if it floats! Free, and admission to the grounds is free until noon.

Saturday, July 7; Sunday, July 8: Garden Highlights Walk: Join a Wave Hill Garden guide for an hour-long tour of seasonal garden highlights. Free, and admission to the grounds is free until noon.

Saturday, July 7: Gallery Tour: Learn about Glyndor Gallery exhibitions on a tour led by Wave Hill's Curatorial Fellow. Ecological Consciousness: Artist as Instigator continues Wave Hill's efforts to examine the ways that artists engage in ecological projects that present a call to action.

The exhibition documents environmental art that explores persistent problems throughout New York City. In the Sunroom Project Space, Priyanka Dasgupta and Chad Marshall's installation uses traditional landscape architecture, such as a conventional English garden maze, to expose the instability of identity in the United States. Working collaboratively since 2015, Dasgupta and Marshall's work explores the dichotomy of the sanctuary—its ability to protect as well as restrict.

In the Sun Porch, Katie Westmoreland's presentation of kinetic tapestries responds to the space's architecture, evoking the patterns cast by sunlight through trees and plants. Her immersive installation utilizes the passing light and shadow patterns of the day as active mediums in her work, calling attention to the sun's enduring, inspirational qualities. Free with admission to the grounds.

Sunday, July 8: Summer Birding: Naturalist Gabriel Willow contributes his extensive knowledge of diverse bird species and their behavior on these walks through the gardens and woodlands. Observe the plants, insects and habitats at Wave Hill that make it so appealing for such a wide variety of birds.

Birders of all levels welcome! Ages 10 and older welcome with an adult. Free with admission to the grounds. NYC Audubon members enjoy two-for-one admission.

Anyone who missed the last time an Amorphophallus titanum bloomed at the New York Botanical Garden will now have an opportunity to witness this rare spectacle. A new specimen of the horticultural marvel—one of the largest flowers in the world—is on display in the Enid A. Haupt Conservatory and about to bloom. Known as the corpse flower, it releases an infamous odor, which some have described as similar to the smell of rotting meat, during its brief 24-to-36-hour peak bloom.

Its unpredictable blooming cycle and notorious stench are part of the plant's allure. Native to Sumatra in Indonesia, the corpse flower bloomed in the Western Hemisphere for the first time on June 8, 1937, here at The New York Botanical Garden. A second specimen bloomed at NYBG on July 2, 1939.

Bronx Borough President James J. Lyons commemorated the event by designating the Amorphophallus titanum as the official flower of the Bronx (replaced by the daylily in 2000.) Almost 80 years later, a new specimen bloomed at NYBG on Thursday, July 28, 2016, creating a sensation as hundreds of thousands of people experienced, in person or online, some portion of the plant's life cycle.

Now, the bud of a new specimen is indicating that it is ready to bloom, giving visitors a chance to experience it again or for the first time.

The bloom cycle occurs extremely quickly.

On June 1, NYBG horticulturists noticed what looked like the flower bud starting to form. The corpse flower was moved on Thursday, June 21, the first day of summer, from NYBG's behind-the-scenes Nolen Greenhouses for Living Collections to the Enid A. Haupt Conservatory, where it is now on display in the Palms of the World Gallery, allowing visitors to experience the development of this spectacular curiosity—from bud to flower—with their own senses.

Its strong, distinctive odor, which attracts pollinators that feed on dead animals, will be at its most pungent during its peak blooming. The final opening of the bloom is unpredictable, but is expected to occur in the next week or two. Amorphophallus titanum is the largest unbranched inflorescence (a cluster of flowers on a spike) in the plant kingdom, growing 12 feet tall in its natural habitat and about six to eight feet tall in cultivation.

Although the enormous plant in bloom resembles one giant flower, it actually comprises a fleshy central spike called a spadix that holds two rings of male and female flowers, wrapped by the frilly spathe, a modified leaf that resembles a petal.

In the first several days of the bloom cycle, the bud grows about four to six inches per day. Then growth slows significantly. The two bracts at the base of the spathe shrivel and fall off. Next, the spathe, which was once tightly wound around the spadix, loosens and begins to open, revealing the deep-red color inside. During bloom, the spadix self-heats to approximately human body temperature, which helps disseminate odor particles. The spathe unfurls during the course of about 36 hours (full bloom) before withering and dying back. Generally the life cycle of the bloom is only one or two days.

A young corpse flower takes about seven to 10 years to store enough energy to begin its bloom cycle. This specimen has been carefully nurtured for years by NYBG horticulturists in the Nolen Greenhouses. After the current cycle is complete, it will be several more years before this plant is ready to bloom again.

Visitors can watch the corpse flower online via the Garden's livestream at <http://www.nybg.org/corpseflowerlive> or see and smell this rare plant first-hand during its limited time in the spotlight at NYBG by purchasing an All-Garden Pass, available at www.nybg.org.

CON ED LIGHTBULB DISTRIBUTION

Con Edison is providing Food Banks in New York City and Westchester County with 200,000 high-efficiency lightbulbs for distribution to residential customers. The light-emitting diode bulbs will save an estimated 7,100 megawatt hours of power per year. That would prevent more than 5,000 tons of greenhouse gases from entering the atmosphere, the equivalent of taking 1,100 cars off the road.

Con Edison workers packed 100,000 LED lightbulbs, food and other needed items for distribution to 25,000 households across the five boroughs.

In addition to seeking assistance from an attorney or legal aid, there are government agencies, and non-profit organizations that you may contact for information about possible options, including trying to work with your lender during this process. To locate an entity near you, you may call the toll-free helpline maintained by New York State Department of Financial Services' at 1-800-269-0990 or visit the Department's website at <http://www.dfs.ny.gov/FORECLOSURE> RESCUE SCAMS Be careful of people who approach you with offers to "save" your home. There are individuals who watch for notices of foreclosure actions in order to unfairly profit from a homeowner's distress. You should be extremely careful about any such promises and any suggestions that you pay them a fee or sign over your deed. State law requires anyone offering such services for profit to enter into a contract which fully describes the services they will perform and fees they will charge, and which prohibits them from taking any money from you until they have completed all such promised services. If you see something, sometimes you should keep your mouth shut

Every couple of weeks I get an e-mail from someone time-stamped 2 or 3 am, because the sender can't sleep. Here's one that came three weeks ago, shortened a bit:

"Dear Lenore: I am a special police officer in Washington, DC. I wake up 4 am to work 6 am-6 pm and get home by 8 pm. No family at all. No support. Never been arrested or anything. Don't drink. Don't smoke. Don't date. Don't party. I literally have no life trying to be the best parent I can. My son is 2 and had fallen asleep after our second grocery store looking for rice milk. It was 7:50 pm and 65 degrees."

Can you guess what happened next? She let him snooze in the car a few minutes while she got the special milk. She emerged to find "multiple police cars" swarming.

Why?

Someone had called 911 about a child alone in a car. As if that is automatically neglect. The police grilled the mom for an hour, "All looking at me like the worst mother ever. I can potentially lose my career over this. How then will I support us?"

Until she finds out whether she is let off with a warning or is found guilty of a crime, this mom doesn't know what lies ahead. Perhaps nothing but a bad memory, but perhaps the life of a single mom out of a job, forced to live someplace cheap and dangerous. How will that make her son "safer"?

It won't.

And here's a note I got today. It should sound familiar:

"Dear Lenore: I'm a father of two boys in a Midwestern suburb. I took my kids to school, one of them threw up on the way. So I took him home and cleaned him up. I'm a dad that works at home. I'd sent two files for FedEx to print so I went to pick them up. My son said, 'I feel better, dad. Can I stay in the car?'"

Reader, what would you do? I'd do what this papa did:

"I parked in front of the FedEx, which is completely made of glass. He's in plain sight. It's 63 degrees, the windows are open, the doors are locked."

RHYMES WITH CRAZY

Lenore Skenazy

Again, someone called 911. Long story short:

"Child protective services made a ruling and I will be marked as a 'child abuser' for five years. I'm a 40-year-old man, without a single mark on my record. But because of this, I won't be able to coach my kids' teams any more, or go on field trips with them. What do I do?"

Right now, there's not much any parent can do other than stop calling 911 when you see a child in a car and it isn't boiling hot and the car is in view of a retail establishment.

A truly good Samaritan does not set a case in motion against a family. A good Samaritan stands by the car a few minutes to make sure the parents are coming right back, or goes into the store to see if they can locate them.

How dare I say that? Here's how:

• Kids do not die the instant they are in an unmoving car. Of the 30-40 children who die in cars each year, KidsandCars.org reports, the overwhelming majority were forgotten there or climbed into a car unbeknownst to the parent and couldn't get out. They were not just waiting out a brief errand.

• Believe it or not, more kids die in from getting hit by cars in parking lots than in parked cars. So let's stop pretending "Take the kid out, he's automatically safe. Leave him in, he's automatically in danger." Plenty of parents rue the day they took their kids out of the car instead of letting them wait.

• Yes, cars get hot in the summer. So don't get mad at parents who leave the air conditioning on while they run in to get a gallon of milk.

• If you see a child in someplace like the IBM parking lot, that kid is in danger. Clearly she's been forgotten by a parent who went into work. Calling for emergency help there makes sense. Calling in front of the grocery does not.

• Remember we are all in this together. Let's support parents like that valiant mom, above. And let's assume that most parents who make a seat-of-the-pants decision are not evil or abusive, but just trying to do what makes sense in the moment, like that dad, above.

• Since forgetting kids is the real danger, the best prevention is to put your phone or wallet in the backseat with your child. That way, even if you're distracted, you will open the door to get your wallet and see your precious child.

BY FRANK V. VERNUCCIO, JR.

New York City's hard-left government (the mayor, Bill de Blasio, had, several decades ago, worked with Nicaragua's brutal Communist Sandinista regime, and honeymooned in Cuba) is now seeking to sue major oil companies for 'global warming.'

The lawsuit is occurring despite increasing doubts about the accuracy and honesty of those seeking to address claims of man-made global warming (by many of the same sources who warned about global cooling several decades ago.) Not coincidentally, the draconian solutions climate change extremists advocate dovetail with long-held left-wing goals in key areas.

Leftists in NYC and elsewhere have also been harshly critical of President Trump's withdrawal from the Paris Climate Accord, despite the fact that the onerous costs related to it would, by all accounts, have at best a barely negligible impact on any potential global warming.

The Associated Press recently reported that District Judge John F. Keenan appears 'unimpressed' by NYC's attempt.

In both the legal and diplomatic spheres, there is increased evidence that claims of a dramatic human impact on climate is based on flawed and biased data, particularly ignoring natural causes of climate change, and the reality that the planet has alternately warmed and cooled in the past, far in advance of any human influence. Temperatures in Europe were warmer than today 1,000 years ago. Temperatures cooled significantly during the 'Little Ice Age' which began about 800 years and which the planet is still recovering from.

A 2007 National Geographic review reported that "Simultaneous warming on Earth and Mars suggests that our planet's recent climate changes have a natural—and not a human-induced—cause,

Community Action civic Association

according to one scientist's controversial theory. In 2005 data from NASA's Mars Global Surveyor and Odyssey missions revealed that the carbon dioxide 'ice caps' near Mars's south pole had been diminishing for three summers in a row. Habibullo Abdussamatov, head of space research at St. Petersburg's Pulkovo Astronomical Observatory in Russia, says the Mars data is evidence that the current global warming on Earth is being caused by changes in the sun. "The long-term increase in solar irradiance is heating both Earth and Mars," he said... Abdussamatov believes that changes in the sun's heat output can account for almost all the climate changes we see on both planets. Mars and Earth, for instance, have experienced periodic ice ages throughout their histories."

In a recent interview, climate researcher Gregory Wrightstone outlined the lack of scientific substance to many of the claims made by climate extremists: "There is a legitimate and worthy argument that is being made by scientists like myself that, while the additional CO2 is likely having a slight warming effect, the majority of the rise in temperature is due to a natural rise in temperatures since the end of the Little Ice Age. That cold period lasted for 550 years and only ended in the mid-1800's. Bear in mind that really bad things occurred during that cooling period including famines, crop failures and death (half of the population of Iceland perished).

An unbiased opinion may legitimately be that the current warming is a welcome respite from that harsh era. Prior to the current politicization of climate science, the warming periods were called 'climatic optima' because humans flourished during those times.

"The temperature rise we are witnessing today is neither unprecedented nor unusual. An inspection of the chart below compares CO2 and temperatures from the Greenland Ice Sheet Project (link is on chart) of the last 12,000 years from the beginning of the current interglacial period to 1855 when the data starts. Several important take-aways from the chart:

• Preceding warm periods commonly reached significantly higher temperatures than we see now,

• The one constant regarding temperature is that it is always changing

• We are about 11,600 years into the current interglacial warming period which typically last 10,000 to 15,000 years

• There is no discernible correlation between CO2 and temperature during this time.

Justice for Junior: the Bronx mourns

me was ‘when are we going to hang again it’s been forever since I’ve seen you,’” said one of the girls.

Brianna Schaar taught Junior’s tenth grade English class this year at Dr. Richard Izquierdo Health & Science Charter School.

“Lesandro was such a great and genuine kid with such a good heart,” Schaar said.

She also mentioned how he struggled in English class but was the most improved by the end of the academic year.

“He saw a book on my desk one time and told me ‘I love books but they’re hard to read,’” she added.

Schaar also mentioned how he brought her and a colleague red roses on Valentine’s Day, calling the boy a true gentleman.

The last time that Junior and Scharr spoke was before school ended, when he told her that his family was looking into moving to Florida and how excited he was to visit Miami.

Right now his intermediate school is looking for a fitting way to remember the young man properly. One idea bounced around was a scholarship fund in his honor.

Junior’s dream was to become an NYPD detective since the age of five; he was a member of the NYPD Explorers in the 45h Precinct, growing up and living a life avoiding trouble.

Unfortunately when trouble found Junior, many bystanders failed to act in even the smallest way, to stop the brutal attack.

Surveillance video shows Junior running into a bodega, attempting to hide behind the counter, when he is pushed away by the owner, as the gang members come into the store, dragging him out in front of a group of customers, who watch the travesty unfold.

As he’s pulled out of the store, he grasps a doorframe for dear life. A man and woman can be seen in medical scrubs on the street who chose to keep walking rather than help.

After the senseless knife and machete attack, Junior runs back in the store where the people there advise him to seek medical attention at St. Barnabas Hospital, a block away. Mortally wounded he collapses, and dies before he can get help.

Similar to Kitty Genovese, half a dozen bystanders did nothing to help the innocent boy.

Some neighbors witnessed the attack outside from their apartments above.

“We heard ‘Open up! They’re going to murder me!’ and by the time we saw from our window it was all over. The entire attack was less than ten seconds,” one neighbor said.

Vanessa Gibson and Rafael Salamanca, Jr. were so repulsed with the apathetic bodega workers that they called for the Zesarina Grocery to have its business license revoked.

In a written letter to the Commissioner of the NYC Department of Consumer Affairs, the trio expressed “An owner who stands by idly while a 15-year old is dragged out of his store and murdered in cold blood with a machete is no longer worthy of doing business in NYC.” An online petition with 39,000 signatures also calls for the revocation of the bodega’s license.

Police believe that the attack on Junior was a case of mistaken identity. Higher-ups in the gang that is being blamed for the horrendous attack have taken to social media claiming the attack wasn’t meant for Guzman-Feliz and even went to the extent of expressing condolences to his family.

The NYPD was flooded with tips in the hours and days following the killing to the point that police had to add extra staff to monitor the tip-line.

This public outcry has led to the arrest of eight gang members believed to have been involved in Junior’s murder.

“At the end of the day it’s about making sure justice is done. You can’t just say it, this has to be seen through [to the end],” said community advocate Tony Herbert during an organized walk from the bodega to where Junior collapsed. “They cannot set a light bail and let these people back on the streets to do it all over again.”

Letitia James Warns
Consumers About
Classified Ads

Toll numbers may be a direct line to trouble.

Classified ads are intended to help people by facilitating communication and advertising available services; however, some of the hotlines & service numbers in classifieds actually hurt the people who rely on them by cheating them of their hard-earned dollars. "Most newspapers print a disclaimer in their classified ad section to warn readers about numbers that are a direct line to trouble. Any number starting with 900, 540, 595 or 871 charges a fee beyond a local call. In some instances, ads initially advertise calls to a local number, but then direct callers to a second number starting with one of the paid exchanges. "Consumers must also question the legitimacy of vague classifieds because they too could be a scam. Before responding to an ad, consumers should verify the source of all information & always be wary about sending money or signing a contract with an unknown party."
